Our Own Devil's Island.
Vitamin A for Hens.
New York Sees a Riot.
Gus Winkler's Diamonds.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

THE UNITED STATES will have a little "Devil's Island" of its own, much more secure than the French "Devil's Island" whence criminals escape often.

The Department of Justice will supply "devils" for the island in the shape of bad men, prison-breakers, kidnapers, and other hard characters.

The new "Devil's Island" is now a military prison on Alcatraz Island in San Francisco Bay. The twelve acres of island space are located on a high rock, with currents running swiftly all around.

Nobody has ever escaped. Attorney General Cummings says kidnapers, and others sentenced for life, will really stay in prison when they enter one of the 600 very safe cells on Alcatraz.

A SCIENTIST says "feed cod liver oil to your chickens," and tells of hens that laid $125 worth more eggs, when fed cod liver oil, than were laid by an equal number of hens without cod liver oil.

Breeders of race horses have for years been mixing cod liver oil with the feed of race horses, particularly mares and young foals in winter, when there is a lack of sunshine.

The same learned Dr. Holmes announces a new substance, condensation of oil from the liver of the halibut that contains 9,200 times as much vitamin A as the ordinary cod liver oil. A small swallow of that should make hens lay copiously.

A MOB of several thousands, roaring around headquarters of NRA in New York, reminded the big city that unpleasant happenings are always possible.

In a short time the police, after turning in a riot call, had gathered in fifty prisoners. Crowds said by the police to be made up of "three groups of radicals" had come to demand that NRA guarantee them a "living wage."

GUS WINKLER, Chicago's "gang overlord," had a handsome diamond-studded belt that Al Capone gave him, a diamond-studded watch chain, other diamonds, and his wife said tearfully that she "would bury Gus's diamonds with him." Reporters say the diamonds were not in the coffin.

Frau Cosima Wagner, daughter of Liszt, cut off her beautiful brown hair that reached to her knees and put it under the pillow in the coffin of her husband, Richard Wagner. She regretted it later perhaps, after publication of interesting letters that he had written to another lady.

THE AMERICAN Federation of Labor votes to boycott all goods produced in Germany, Italy, Russia, China or "any other country which forbids free organization of labor unions."

It agrees to support President Roosevelt in his recovery program, but union labor must get greater benefits under it.

Employers are expected to comply without any qualifying "buts."

MR. ROCKEFELLER'S investigators, looking into the question, "what to do after prohibition goes?" believe wise taxation of liquor should yield $700,000,000 a year.

The Rockefeller report advises state control of the liquor industry and says it is foolish to talk about "socialism." Government agencies that "own and operate bridges, tunnels, irrigation projects, power developments, shipping, and a dozen other things," might well own and operate liquor dispensaries.

ARABS ARE rioting in Palestine, because "too many Jews are admitted to the 'Holy Land.'" Coming from their mosques, where they had prayed against the incoming of Jews yesterday, the Arabs sang songs directed against Zionism. All Arab stores were closed in a general strike. British police kept order.

It must amuse the Jews to hear that they should not be permitted to settle in what was originally their own country. As well forbid Scotchmen to go back to Scotland.

THIS PROUD government, once absolutely out of business, believing all it was told about "the government that governs least governs best," is now in business with a vengeance.

It is in the pork business among other things, and it recently purchased 5,000,000 pounds of pork to help farmers and will give the pork to the hungry.

F. H. LaGuardia, one of several running for Mayor in New York, informs a cheering crowd that he has arranged with the government to give beef instead of pork to those that do not like pork.

Clothing the naked and feeding the hungry is no longer a simple business.

YOUR WOBBLING dollar rose in value yesterday, to 68 cents, in the opinion of European money dealers. Our government's recent "conversion" of $1,875,000,000 worth of Liberty bonds convinced them there is "no danger of dollar inflation."

The dollar may go to 68 cents or back where it was, at about $1.68, if the government continues its policy of "dollars few and precious." But the prosperity of Americans generally will not go up correspondingly.

If the government doesn't make money more plentiful, there will be trouble in this country, and trouble for the government: such as neither has yet seen.

MINERS BOW TO BAN ON ROVING

Murray Asks Head of 'Captives' to Quit 'Stalling'

1—Gov. Pinchot's request that the miners halt their roving picketing was obeyed. Only captive mines in Fayette County were being picketed.

2—Philip Murray, negotiator for the United Mine Workers, directed a sharp note to Thomas Moses, spokesmen for captive mine owners, calling for action towards recognition and demanded he stop "parrying."

3—Murray indicated he was satisfied with the "qualified checkoff;" Martin Ryan reiterated: "It's not recognition."

4—Federal Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins, in Washington, today denied the rumor that federal relief would be denied strikers whose cause was "unjustified." He said the only discussion on the subject was flatly to deny the rumor relayed to him by a press association.

Gov. Gifford Pinchot's call on the striking coal miners to ban the roving picket today settled storm-torn Fayette County into peaceful protest.

Martin Ryan, insurgent leader, said he believed the Governor's order did not prevent picketing mines, and added:

"If the men want it, we can call the pickets off the commercial mines."

While a parley, expected today between Murray and Moses, apparently failed to materialize, Murray called for a showdown in the dispute of the captive mine owners and the union, of which Murray is international vice president.

In a letter, Murray told Moses, president of the H. C. Frick Coke Company, largest of the firms mining coal for the exclusive use of their parent companies:

"You are not negotiating.

"Such sparring on clear and irrelevant technicalities as is contained in your letter of October 13 is neither collective bargaining nor is it remotely in

STRIKER RELIEF BAN DENIED

By JOHN P. COWAN
Sun-Telegraph Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—Harry L. Hopkins, federal relief administrator, said today that there had been no discussion whatsoever about withdrawing federal relief from those waging strikes found to be "unjustified."

He said:

"I have had no such arrangement with the Department of Labor and there has been no discussion at any time to withdraw federal relief from places where there are labor disturbances. The only time I heard of it was when a press association asked me to verify such a report early this morning.

"You can deny any report of this sort."

Labor Department officials issued similar flat denials.

Asked if he had recently discussed relief with Gov. Pinchot, Hopkins replied:

The rumored threat to withhold federal relief as a club over strikers was not taken seriously by those considered well-informed on both national and local policies in such matters. Flat denials that it was even considered were expected from all agencies involved.

100 STRIKERS CLUBBED AT WEIRTON

W. Va. State Troopers Clash With 3,000 Before Mill

By DAVID ROSENTHAL
Staff Correspondent.

WEIRTON, W. Va., Oct. 14.—Three men were in hospitals here and at Steubenville and between 75 and 100 strikers were clubbed by West Virginia state police in a battle to disperse a crowd of 3,000 strikers assembled last night at the entrance of the strip mill of the Weirton Steel Company.

The troopers advanced upon the crowd, swinging clubs right and left, after five tear gas bombs hurled into the strikers' midst had failed to scatter them.

The disturbance started after a state trooper's automobile had been stoned by men hidden on top of a building near the mill entrance.

BLAME STEEL HEAD

Blaming J. C. Williams, president of the Weirton Steel Company, for the attack by the troopers, a committee of strikers, headed by George Ellison, acting chairman, today sent a telegraphic request to Gov. H. G. Kump, of West Virginia, to withdraw the state police. The telegram read:

"Situation concerning strike in Weirton is critical. State police are taking orders from J. C. Williams, president of the Weirton Steel Company, beating innocent citizens. We demand immediate removal of the state police. Petition for charges following."

Williams returned to Weirton this week from a vacation in Wales.

The three men injured were Jesse Evans, 54, of Hollidays Cove,

EAST LIBERTY MEN DENY BOMBING

Chef Who Discharged Suspect Hurt by Explosion

A father and son, the former a discharged employe of the University Club, were being held by police in connection with the dynamite bombing last night of an Oakland dwelling owned by Tony Tortorelli, brother of Michael Tortorelli, head of the city detective bomb and arson squad.

The bomb, placed under a side porch, rocked the three-story apartment building at Oakland square and Parkview avenue, terrifying the occupants, the families of Otto Spielbichler and Paul J. Beck. Spielbichler was slightly injured. The porch was damaged and windows broken in nearby homes.

FATHER, SON HELD

The two held are Fortunato Costa, 56, and his son, Anthony, 18, of 133 Mayflower street.

Detective Tortorelli testified at a hearing in Central Police Court today that the older Costa had been discharged as a silver polisher at the University Club by Spielbichler, the chef.

He said he desired to check on the movements of the two. No evidence to connect the Costas with the blast was produced. The two denied all knowledge of the bombing.

SEE SPEEDING CAR

A few seconds before the explosion, an Oakland police cruiser approached the dwelling in answer to a telephone call from Sidney Reinwasser, of 2634 Perrysville avenue, visiting at the home of Mrs. Bennett Levy, 13 Oakland Square. Reinwasser had reported hearing a revolver shot in the vicinity. Police noticed a black sedan speed away from the scene and the explosion followed.

Mrs. Levy, treasurer of the Jewish Home for Babies; her daughter, Marcella, 17; Ruth Braun, 21, and Reinwasser were shaken by the blast.

Second Wife Divorces McCready

The second wife of the McCready heir was granted a divorce today by Judge W. Heber Dithrich. She is Marguerite Heasley McCready, of 5810 Hays street.

They were married in December, 1931, 48 hours after McCready had ben divorced by Margaret Long McCready.

Mrs. McCready No. 2 testified that her husband had called her a gold-digger, but that during the two months she lived with him he never gave her a penny.

McCready recently announced he had turned over a new leaf.

GRIFTLO PARK OWNER 'BROKE'

Henry Albert St. Peter, operator of Griftlo Park, scene of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers' much juggled meeting addressed by Mrs. Cornelia Bryce Pinchot, wife of the Governor, today had a bankruptcy petition on file in Federal Court.

After steel workers, who had been denied permits for the meeting in Apollo and Vandergrift, had hired Griftlo Park in Kiskiminetas Township, it was said, efforts were made to cancel the contract.

When St. Peter filed his bankruptcy petition, he listed liabilities of about $22,000. Attached to the petition was a memorandum, showing he owes the Apollo Steel Company $8,400 and the First National Bank of Apollo $10,460.

Nurse Role for Dads 'Possible,' Says Doctor

AKRON, O., Oct. 14.—(AP.)—Although qualifying his statement, Dr. Oliver Kamm, of Detroit, says "it is entirely within the realm of possibility" that "fathers soon will be nursing their babies."

He spoke before the Ohio-Michigan section of the American Chemical Society, adding that he didn't want to make an out and out prediction concerning the fathers "from this platform."

Dr. Kamm announced the discovery of an extract of the posterior pituitary gland, a single injection of which "will stimulate the lacteal glands of mothers" and permit any mother in normal health to nurse her babies at the breast.

Experiments with cats, he said, showed the gland extract enabled tomcats to nurse kittens.

Britain's Prosperity And War Debt Policy

ENGLAND'S attitude toward her debt to the United States—a debt which she is unwilling, not unable, to pay—calls for plain speech.

Not because she persists in trying to avert the discredit of her defaults of interest with the transparent artifice of "token payments"—paltry sums on account, nor because of her unceasing effort to obtain a remission of the principal of her obligation, notwithstanding its great reduction through the voluntary action and prodigal generosity of the United States.

The thing which calls for outspoken comment at this moment is the new evidence at hand of the insincerity of England's whole attitude toward her debt and the disingenuousness with which she treats the United States, notwithstanding our patience and indulgence as a creditor.

What business has this British commission, headed by Sir Frederick Leith-Ross, to come to Washington pulling a poor mouth and trying to trade on our needs and the depression which prevails at the moment in this country, to put through a bankrupt's composition with the United States, when England is boasting that she is THE LEADING FINANCIAL COUNTRY OF THE WORLD?

THERE IS no financial or industrial leader of greater authority in England than Walter Runciman, now president of the Board of Trade, an important post in the British cabinet. He is also a director of the great Westminster Bank, with its branches throughout the kingdom and on the continent of Europe, a leading ship master and owner, and now and for many years past a member of Parliament.

In a speech delivered to his constituency on Wednesday of this week, he boasted of England's stability, her regained credit, now buttressed by the greatest amount of gold she has ever in her history possessed. He recited how England was regaining, IN EVERY DIRECTION, her old position as a great world trader.

"By contrast with 1931," said Mr. Runciman, "when we were almost on the financial rocks, we have now attained the position of being the STRONGEST FINANCIAL COUNTRY IN THE WORLD, with THE BEST CREDIT, and we have been able to place OUR NATIONAL FINANCES upon a FOUNDATION almost AS SECURE AS BEFORE THE WORLD WAR."

In his joyousness he could not forbear a dig at President Roosevelt as "the greatest autocrat in the world, who has chosen to make a huge experiment which might prove successful if the United States were a little world all its own."

"But it (United States) is also involved," said this boastful Briton, "in foreign trade, in which it cannot compete with the rest of the world."

AND ONE, perhaps the chief reason, for our handicap in competing with England for world trade is that England, by her default as a debtor, has shifted the burden of paying her huge war borrowings from the United States upon American industry and the American taxpayer, where it is reflected in the higher production cost of every article of commerce made in this country.

We loaned England in the darkest years of the war between four and five billions of dollars to save her from collapse as a belligerent and overthrow as a nation.

We did not attempt to take advantage of her needs as England seems quite eager to do, now, of ours. We were straining our power to its limits to aid her and to save her.

Later, before she reached the sturdy and affluent position of which Mr. Runciman now speaks so vauntingly, when her trade was languishing and unemployment threatened her with civil disorders, we voluntarily reduced this great debt by approximately fifty per cent.

What has she paid on account of the principal of her indebtedness? Less than FOUR PER CENT of what she borrowed!

It is reported that the commission now in

Action Also Involves Withdrawal From Arms Parley

International News Service.

In protesting against the world's refusal to grant her immediate arms equality, Germany today severed relations with the League of Nations and quit the Disarmament Conference.

The Hitler government dissolved the Reichstag and all state diets, calling a national plebiscite for November 12 to enable the people of the reich to voice their support of the cabinet's precipitate action.

These steps were taken after all leading nations represented at Geneva approved a British plan for an eight-year period of gradual disarmament, at the end of which Germany would be allowed defensive equality with the rest of the world.

Geneva was stunned. France foresaw an immediate disarmament race and charged unofficially that Germany had taken this step because she is already rearming and fears international inspection and control.

The action caused consternation in London and in Washington, while other capitals expressed gravest anxiety over the future.

PANTHER EAGER FOR NAVY TILT

By JESS CARVER

The most formidable football warship to put out from Annapolis in 10 years, mounting a score or more heavy guns, bombards Pitt's gridiron fortifications today as the Middie varsity eleven tackles the Panthers here in the Pitt Stadium.

The Navy eleven today is granted an even chance against the Panthers, and is here not only to do itself some good, but to make up, if possible, for the rout that attended the visit here two years ago of the Army. There is little love lost between the Tars and Cadets, but the two branches of service resent deeply any indignities that may be inflicted on one another by outsiders. Besides, if the Navy can win over Pitt today it will have something over which to crow that the Army does not have and which will be cause for mild and dignified exulting at Annapolis.

Today's struggle is the fifth between the locals and Tars and the

compliance with your repeated assurance to the President that you are moving with dispatch in an earnest endeavor, in good faith, to settle these difficult problems."

Along with his letter of today, Murray released a letter to Moses dated Thursday, the day of their last verbal conference, and Moses' reply, dated yesterday.

The notes revealed that Murray is standing pat for an agreement between the captives and the union, while Moses maintains his miners already have everything other miners have and professes ignorance of what Murray is making all the noise about.

SHOWDOWN SOUGHT

Murray's letter of today was interpreted as a call for a showdown. The strength of the language he used was probably calculated to appeal to insurgents in the union.

He apparently wants a settlement in the near future and he is prepared to insist that Moses call a conference of other representatives of captive mines to agree to and sign that settlement.

Indicative of Murray's attitude was his remark:

"I'm telling him (Moses) to stop sparring around and to come to an agreement."

That the voluntary checkoff—deduction of union dues from miners' pay envelopes by the company and their payment to the union when the miner so directs — is probably satisfactory to the union was indicated when Murray, asked if he ever wanted a compulsory checkoff or a checkoff for non-union miners, said:

"Absolutely not."

Murray and Moses had held verbal conferences on Tuesday and Thursday, after President Roosevelt, last Saturday, obtained from operators of captive mines an agreement to try to reach a satisfactory bargain with the United Mine Workers.

Their meetings produced no visible results, other than that Moses, after each, apparently went back to his superiors, the heads of the steel companies that own the captive mines, for more instructions.

Then, after the Thursday meeting, those steel firms pledged themselves in a letter to President Roosevelt, to grant the checkoff if miners asked it but to protect non-union miners from a forced checkoff.

Apparently in the Thursday Moses-Murray conferred, Moses had requested Murray to write him a letter stating what he wanted from the captives. So Murray wrote him, according to the letter released last night, that:

"We expect compliance on the part of the captive mine operators with the provisions and conditions embodied in these agreements."

REFERS TO AGREEMENTS

And then he referred to the agreements between commercial mine operators, mining coal for public use, and the union in this district. He went on to say that if the machinery set up in the agreements for settling miner-operator disputes is not satisfactory:

"I believe district conferences can be convened for the purpose of mutually agreeing upon a method of adjusting disputes."

The agreements with the commercial operators call for a mine committee to deal in disputes between miners and mine executives, if the individual miner or miners cannot first settle the trouble with the management.

That failing, a board of two representatives of the miners and two representatives of the operators must discuss the dispute, without strike being called. If that board cannot settle the quarrel, it shall name an umpire, or, if it cannot agree on an umpire, the National Recovery Administrator must name one. The umpire's decision is final.

To Murray's Thursday letter, Moses replied that:

"Neither in our conversations nor in your letter have you made any specific proposal that we do anything more for our employes than we have already undertaken to do. If you have any specific proposal to make . . . we shall be glad to consider it."

Moses carefully set forth that he dealt with Murray only as a representative of those miners belonging to the United Mine Workers.

PINCHOT BANS ROVING PICKETS

By AL GOUGH
Staff Correspondent.

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Oct. 14.—The roving picket was banned today by "executive" request of Gov. Gifford Pinchot.

The Governor's "request" was transmitted by state police last night to Philip Murray, international vice president of the United Mine Workers of America, at Pittsburgh; Attorney Anthony Cavalcante, voluntary mediator for the "holiday" miners, and Martin Ryan, so-called insurgent leader of this region.

GOVERNOR'S REQUEST

The Governor's "request" follows in full:

"To the members of the United Mine Workers of Western Pennsylvania who have not returned to work:

"You have won a great fight. You have forced the steel trust to do what it has never done before: give you your own checkweighmen, and agree to recognize your mine committees. And now, in a letter to the President published in Friday's papers, the captive mines agree to the checkoff of union dues. Without the fight you made they would never have done that.

"But there are many miners who want to work in mines which have signed the code and have signed the agreement with the United Mine Workers of America. These men who want to work must be protected in their right to work.

"I have upheld in every way open to me the rights of the working people of Pennsylvania. I sent the National Guard into Fayette County to preserve the peace of the commonwealth and prevent acts of violence by deputy sheriffs in the pay of the steel trust. I have defended the rights of the miners to free speech, free assemblage and peaceful picketing as guaranteed by law.

"But roving picketing by thousands of persons to prevent union miners who want to work from going to work under the NRA and under union agreements has ceased to be peaceful picketing.

"The roving pickets by intimidation and violence are raising public opinion against the cause of the miners. They are preventing the production of coal which is absolutely necessary if President Roosevelt's recovery program is to succeed. They are shifting the soft coal business to other states to the detriment of Pennsylvania miners and Pennsylvania industry.

"Therefore, I appeal to you who are leaders of idle miners who have been marching from one mine to another or from one county to another to stop. I believe you will do as I ask."

INTERPRETATIONS DIFFER

Cavalcante, to whom the Governor's message was transmitted verbally last night, said he understood the "request" to apply only to mines where agreements have been made with the U. M. W. A. If these men wish to return to work, they may do so without interference from pickets from other mines, he declared.

The state police version was different. The official explanation, they pointed out, was contained in the last paragraph of Gov. Pinchot's message in one sentence:

"I ask you miners who have been marching from one mine to another or from one county to another to stop."

PLANE BOMBERS TRAILED BY U. S.

International News Service.

CHICAGO, Oct. 14.—Laboratory tests showing that high explosives literally blew apart the United Air Liner last Tuesday night in midair near Chesterton, Ind., killing seven persons, sent Department of Justice agents today on a search for instigators of a suspected plot.

Although no motive could be learned, federal agents were investigating the preparation and servicing of the plane for its flight, which began at Newark, N. J., with one stopover at Cleveland, O.

D. B. Colyer, vice president of the air line, definitely announced that high explosives placed either in the lavatory compartment of the twin-motored plane or in the adjacent baggage space, blew the ship apart in flight.

FOUR INJURED IN TRUCK FALLS

Charles Drago, 15, of 615 Strawberry street, McKeesport, fell from the side of a dairy truck at Bailey and Converse streets, McKeesport, last night, and was in the McKeesport Hospital today, suffering from a fractured skull and ankle.

In a similar accident three 17-year-old Swissvale youths fell from the rear of a truck when it turned from Braddock avenue into Fifth street, Braddock, last night. The injured, Stephen Savish, 7708 Lloyd street; Paul Hempser, 7718 Evans street, and A. K. Roberts, 2222 Columbia avenue, were treated in the Braddock General Hospital, where they were taken by Alement Huot, of 2302 Columbia avenue, Swissvale, driver of the truck. Savish's shoulder was fractured; the other injuries were slight.

NRA Issues Ultimatum To Weir to Arbitrate Strike

By JOHN P. COWAN
Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—E. T. Weir, president of National Steel Corporation, parent firm of Weirton Steel Company, whose West Virginia and Ohio plants have been tied up by strikes of workers demanding recognition of their union, must submit to arbitration whether he wants to or not.

Weir doesn't want to and he has already stated that he won't recognize the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, whose locals in Weirton and Clarksburg, W. Va., and Steubenville, O., walked out.

But Senator Robert F. Wagner, chairman of the National Labor Board, which offered its services in arbitration of the dispute earlier this week, only to have Weir reject the offer, has ordered Weir to appear here at 2 p. m. Monday for a hearing.

ULTIMATUM ISSUED

Employes of the firm will be heard at the same time.

Wagner issued this order at the same time he ordered other firms—including Western Kentucky coal operators who have ignored the arbitration offers of the board—to put in an appearance here.

An ultimatum will be issued on Monday, in which the board will remind the coal operators and others that refusal to deal with it subjects them to court actions and fines under the National Industrial Recovery Act.

Included among those firms over whose labor troubles the board will take jurisdiction is the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company's plants in East Springfield and Chicopee Falls, Mass., and auto factories in Detroit, Pontiac and Flint, Mich.

EMPLOYES TO BE HEARD

Hearing of these firms will be slated throughout next week and may eliminate any possibility of the board's convening in Weirton to hear employes of the Weirton Steel Company voice complaints against their management.

All employes on strike will be considered employes of the companies where they formerly worked, even though they have been discharged for their walkout, Wagner announced, and they can obtain hearings and will be notified of the hearings held to discuss their individual disputes.

Some Burning Questions, But Who Will Be Burnt?

To the Editor of The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph:

It is almost unbelievable—and a little while ago it would have been quite unbelievable—that the Democratic labor party administration at Washington is seriously considering an investigation under the Blue Eagle as to whether Baby Leroy's salary in the movies is excessive or not.

The Eagle must be fairly blue by this time, but it will probably get a good laugh out of that. The findings of the investigating committee will doubtless be embodied in an early edition of the Joe Miller code book.

Another thing that is solemnly under consideration at the headquarters of the Lenin experiment at Washington is whether certain especially competent directors and producers in the moving picture business should be allowed to make larger incomes than the President of the United States.

Did it ever occur to the Washington group of state socialists now masquerading under the ancient and honorable name of democracy that there are thousands of rich men in the United States who do nothing but cut their coupons from tax exempt securities whose incomes are many times greater than that of the President of the United States?

Why pick on the creative minds in a business which contributes so much to the enjoyment of the public?

Why attack those who in their few years of usefulness make money freely and pay taxes extravagantly and who earn the money they spend and earn the taxes they pay through hard work and creative genius?

If useful and successful men in various walks of life make more money than the President of the United States, why cannot the Congress correct that anomaly by paying the President the salary he deserves?

Why complain of the creative mind of men who make business for the nation and make jobs for labor and who possess and employ for the common good the order of brains which have made America what it is, the leading nation of the world?

Do you think that the politicians made America great? Do you think that the labor people (God bless them—I have no quarrel with them) made the jobs they fill?

You know perfectly well that some creative mind had to devise an article or an instrument or a form of product before it could be manufactured and before labor could be employed on its manufacture.

The value of the creative minds is not what they do for themselves, but what they do for others. That is a great value and, if the laborer is worthy of his hire, the creative mind, which makes labor for the laborer, is worthy of its compensation. That the public may benefit.

And as for the politicians!

Have you ever thought that the ranks of the politicians are in the main made up of those who have been failures in every other line of endeavor?

The businessmen without businesses, the executives and sub-executives without jobs, the lawyers without clients or cases, all become politicians.

Think of the colossal impudence of these failures trying to tell the successful people of this great country how to run their affairs.

Ridiculous, to be sure, but just as surely calamitous in the end.

In the meantime, after the burning question of Baby Leroy's salary has been satisfactorily settled, and after the problem of the useless coupon clippers and tax dodgers has been solved in the usual way by increasing the taxes on the taxpayers and conveniently forgetting about the tax dodgers, and after the creative minds which have created America have been further taxed and further harassed and further hampered and eventually driven abroad to build business in some other country, in the meantime, I say, are we not to hear anything from a reform administration, a state socialistic administration, a Demo-labor-union-crat administration about movie stock jobbing and movie stock swindling, about the public robbed of their earnings through false stock statements and manipulated market fluctuations in movie stocks?

Are campaign contributors immune from investigation?

Are the actual evils in the moving picture business to be overlooked while investigators ponder the matter of Baby Leroy's salary and while the failures in business, gone into politics, debate how they can drive the successes in business out of business and out of the country?

We have a big country and a strong, long suffering people and I guess we can survive anything. As a matter of fact, we have survived almost everything, including the perennial plague of politicians. So I remain,

Still hopefully yours,
A PLAIN AMERICAN.

LABOR SOUNDS MILITANT NOTE AS MEET ENDS

Code Revisions, German Boycott and Right to Strike Demanded

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—(AP.)—The American Federation of Labor set out today upon a more militant organization campaign than ever in its history—a campaign that its just-concluded fifty-third annual convention held necessary to effectuate the Recovery Act.

That, plus demands for NRA code revisions and greater speed in the public works program, along with continued insistence upon the right to strike, stood out in the minds of the officials as the biggest accomplishment of the two week meeting.

Today, President William Green, re-elected and victorious in a number of brushes that tried the strength of the conservative against the more liberal element, called the Executive Council into session to plan for the future.

AGITATE BOYCOTT

Their problems included everything from agitation for a boycott of German goods and services to a general revision of NRA codes so as to provide higher minimum wages and a 30-hour-week for all workers.

Green's analysis of the convention was this:

"We have shown our own capacity and determination to run our own affairs. We remain masters of our own movement.

"We have voted full support to the recovery administration, but we have refused to extend that approval to its mistakes, and therein lies the great value of our support. It is not the support of a 'yes man' movement."

RIGHT TO STRIKE

He reiterated labor's insistence upon the right to strike, although Hugh S. Johnson, NRA Administrator, in a speech to the convention called them "economic sabotage." Green said:

"As long as there is freedom in America the right to strike must be maintained inviolate and inviolable."

The convention voted for a boycott of Germany, shouting it through on a chorus of "Ayes." This marked the first time the federation ever had asked its members—now around 3,000,000—to cease buying the goods of another nation. This action was taken, the convention agreed, because of "dangerous tendencies."

RIOT FIGURE'S FATE MYSTERY

Police first said Benn was out on $1,500 bond, awaiting hearing. Further questioning, however, brought refusal to discuss the case or verify the release of Benn on bond. He was charged with drawing a gun in the riots.

Edith Briscoe, Communist agitator of Pittsburgh, and Cy Ecker, Ambridge Communist, are in Beaver County jail, Beaver, serving 30-day sentences for disorderly conduct at the funeral of Adam Pietraszeski, confectioner victim of the riots, last Sunday. They tried to make speeches. Ecker's wife, Mae Ecker, was released in a similar case.

Roosevelt Blames Peace Threat on Imperialism

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—(AP.)—People with "imperialistic desires for expansion and domination" today were viewed by President Roosevelt as the modern threats to world peace.

He said:

"It seems clear to me that it is only through constant education and the stressing of the ideals of peace that those who still seek imperialism can be brought in line with the majority."

These statements were made by Mr. Roosevelt in an address from the White House last night to the third annual Women's Conference on Current Problems, meeting in New York. He added:

"The complete lack of a national desire for territorial expansion makes the rest of the world begin to understand that the United States is opposed to war.

"I will go one step further in saying that the very great majority of the inhabitants of the world feel the same as we do about territorial expansion or getting rich or powerful at the expense of their neighbors."

Mr. Roosevelt emphasized the importance of cutting local government costs "by good business methods and the elimination of the wrong kind of politics," but said schools must be restored to their pre-depression educational level.

He said:

"The quality of our teaching in almost every state of which I have knowledge can be definitely and distinctly raised."

Film Code Puts $10,000 Fine on High Pay

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—(AP.)—Under Presidential influence a provision was written into the revised motion picture code late yesterday by Sol A. Rosenblatt, NRA deputy administrator, calling for the assessment of fines up to $10,000 against producers found to have hired talent at "unreasonably" high salaries.

Recently it was disclosed that the White House was opposed to the payment to film people of salaries five or six times as large as the President's.

Originally the proposed code contained nothing which would be interpreted as an attempt to fix maximums. It did, however, provide for checks on competitive bidding for a star's services, a practice generally held accountable for the size of some Hollywood salaries.

The purpose of the new provision was self-described as intended "to avoid the payment of sums unreasonably in excess of the fair value of personal services which results in unfair and destructive competition."

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 14.—(AP.)—Rumors of a threatened strike of some motion picture players in the event the film industry's NRA code is adopted in its present form were spiked today by Kenneth Thomson, secretary of the newly organized Screen Actors' Guild.

He said:

"Under the existing conditions, a strike would be almost an impossibility and certainly has not been considered.

"Some remarks of Eddie Cantor, our president, were considered to mean we were discussing a strike, but that was not their intent."

Washington is being received coldly. Can anyone be surprised?

THERE IS something radically at fault in England's attitude and in her approach to this far-reaching question of her war debt to the United States.

It is not pleasant to employ the only words which would properly characterize British policy with reference to the debt. We forbear to speak them.

But we rely upon the administration's spokesmen in Washington to convey to the British commissioners, and through them to the British public, how thoroughly England's attitude is understood in this country, how profound is the disillusionment throughout the United States as to English faith, and how transparent it is to American eyes that England is building prosperity upon her defaults as a debtor, and is willing to become strong by disabling a competitor with the burden of her own callously disavowed obligations.

READY TO PLEAD NOT GUILTY AT TRIAL

No Attempt Made to Gain M'Keesporter's Release on Bond

Robert S. Soles, McKeesport businessman, charged with the murder of his attractive wife, Mrs. La Roux Soles, will repudiate his alleged six-page confession, it was learned today.

Soles will enter a plea of not guilty, according to his attorney, Oliver K. Eaton. The case probably will be presented to the November grand jury.

For the present there will be no attempt to have Soles released on bond.

LINK 'OTHER WOMAN'

It was learned from the District Attorney's office that the jewels belonging to Mrs. Soles, which Soles is alleged to have given "the lady" in the case, were not of great value. According to county detectives, Soles and the woman, a widow for four years, have been friendly for six months and within a month after Mrs. Soles' death discussed marriage.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Soles' body lies in a public mausoleum in Versailles Cemetery. It was to have been moved to the family plot and buried beside the graves of her two children, but plans were upset with the arrest of Soles. It is understood that Harry B. Lynch, retired mill superintendent and Mrs. Soles' father, wanted his daughter buried beside her mother in Newcastle, Ind.

MAID QUESTIONED

The accused man muttered talk of blackmail several times before the fatal night when Mrs. Soles was shot, and was excited to violent language invariably by newspaper accounts of kidnaping, according to the Soles' maid, Iva Johnson, who has been questioned by District Attorney Andrew T. Park. Before going to Atlantic City with Mrs. Soles early in May, Soles had the locks on almost every door of their McKeesport home changed, the maid said.

Park and County Detective Peter Connors say Soles' alleged confession says he shot his wife June 19 with a .38-caliber pistol during a quarrel with her after coming home at 1:30 a. m., and that Mrs. Soles, prompted by her great love for her husband, wrote a suicide note to clear him.

KELLY BEGINS LIFE SENTENCE

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., Oct. 14.—(AP.)—George (Machine Gun) Kelly, convicted kidnaper, today was behind the high walls of Leavenworth Federal Penitentiary from which he declared he would soon escape.

The associate of Harvey Bailey and Albert Bates, who preceded him to the prison with similar life sentences for the $200,000 ransom abduction of Charles F. Urschel, made his boast at Kansas City. In the train yards where the armored, window-barred coach which brought him from Oklahoma City was transferred to another locomotive for the short run to the prison, numerous guards were scattered.

It was in front of the Kansas City Union Station that four officers and their convict-prisoner, Frank Nash, were slain last June 17, as Nash was being transferred from a train to motor car to be returned to Leavenworth.

TELLS OF RIDE WITH CORPSE

International News Service.

TOLEDO, O., Oct. 14.—Mrs. Eva Timmer, 42, barn-storming lecturer, today confessed, according to police, that she shot and killed R. V. Brown, 45, former Powhatan Point, O., marshal and then threw his body from their private bus near Carey, O.

The woman, whose home is in Ferndale, Mich., declared in what authorities claimed as a signed confession:

"I did it to save myself."

Mrs. Timmer related a strange story of a gypsy life and a ride across almost the entire state of Ohio with a dead man as cargo.

'MISS AMERICA, 1926'

BEAUTY SUES INDIAN MATE

PAWHUSKA, Okla., Oct. 14.—(AP.)—Norma Smallwood, of Tulsa, who won the "Miss America" contest in Atlantic City in 1926, and her husband, Tom Gilcrease, Creek Indian, are the principals in an unusual divorce action filed here.

Gilcrease named the blue-eyed beauty's mother, Mrs. Mahala Smallwood, as a co-defendant in the first petition, in which he seeks custody of the 4-year-old son. The Gilcreases were married in 1928, when Norma was 20.

In a cross-petition, Mrs. Gilcrease likewise asks for the boy, and also $500 a month temporary alimony until a property settlement can be reached.

Gilcrease has been married twice. His first wife was an Osage Indian.

FALL IN SHAFT REVEALS STILL

A 150-gallon still and 26 barrels of mash were reported seized by North Side police last night in a building on Foreland street, after a youth was found injured in a freight elevator there.

Samuel Russo, 20, of 805 Madison avenue, was found lying in the elevator on the first floor by John Wandinger, a watchman, police said. Taken to Allegheny General Hospital, he told police, he stepped into the shaft from the third floor, thinking the elevator was there. He suffered a fractured leg.

Lieut. James J. Callaghan visited the building and reported finding the still and mash in the front part of the third floor. Russo was to be questioned about them today.

Asks Mortgage Aid In Special Session

Gov. Pinchot has been asked by Congressman Henry Ellenbogen to include a program of mortgage relief in the call for a special session of the Pennsylvania Legislature to be held next month.

Ellenbogen suggested a stay of sheriff's sales until May 1, 1935, an act to protect home owners from deficiency judgments, and legislation to make bonds of the Federal Home Owners' Loan Corporation legal investments for many financial institutions.

Alice Tells Jury All Of 'Brutal' Beating

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 14.—(AP.)—At least one actor, the record of testimony before the Los Angeles County grand jury suggests, has exercised in real life man's right in the motion picture films to slap a woman.

Alice White, testifying before the inquisitorial body, had this to say about John Warburton, English actor:

"It was pretty brutal. He not only smacked me, but he just threw me down in front of my house and sat on top of me and beat me up all over the street, and grabbed me by the hair. It's a wonder I didn't die."

Miss White was testifying before the jury which investigated the beating and robbery of Warburton, a former "boy friend" of the actress.

The two men arrested for the robbery, Martin Block and Russell Brown, testified that they were hired by Sydney Bartlett, sweetheart of Miss White, to disfigure Warburton.

The jury absolved Bartlett of any connection with the alleged plot.

On the movie screen the fad of slapping women was started by James Cagney. It occasioned some protests from film fans, but has become an accepted practice in movie-making.

propaganda, and confirmed by Chancellor Adolf Hitler.

The Chancellor, he announced, will go on the air in a nation-wide broadcast tonight to tell the people of the Reich why this drastic step has been taken and call upon them to support the government in the national emergency.

'DAY OF MOURNING'

Simultaneously with announcement of the bolt, Goebbels made known that the Reichstag has been dissolved and that new elections will be held on November 12—the day after the anniversary of the signing of the Armistice, a "day of mourning" for Germany for the last 13 years.

Germany's Withdrawal Strikes Geneva Like Bomb

International News Service.

GENEVA, Oct. 14.—Announcement of Germany's withdrawal from the League of Nations and the Disarmament Conference struck Geneva with the force of a bombshell this afternoon.

It came just half an hour after the steering committee had concluded its final session before the conference is scheduled to assemble on Monday.

The general view had been that the door was open for a compromise enabling Germany to accept the allied thesis of an eight-year gradual disarmament period.

It was learned, however, that Dr. Werner von Rheinbaben, acting head of the German delegation, had made overtures to American, British and other delegations in an effort to tone down the opposition of British Foreign Secretary Sir John Simon to immediate German arms equality.

Much work was done during the night in an effort to find conciliatory phraseology which would forestall a German bolt, and the delegates lulled themselves into the belief such a wording had been found.

No new effort was made to obtain Germany's opinion when the steering committee assembled this morning, with the result the Reich's precipitate action came as a terrific blow.

U. S. BACKS BRITAIN

GENEVA, Oct. 14.—(INS.)—American adherence to the British eight-year disarmament plan, which Berlin dispatches declared was responsible for Germany's withdrawal from the League of Nations, was announced here today by Norman H. Davis, American disarmament expert.

Davis indorsed the statements of British Foreign Secretary Sir John Simon in full, informing the steering committee of the Arms Conference that they confirmed with the position of the United States "as communicated by President Roosevelt to the Disarmament Conference last May."

The American position, Davis said, opposes all re-armament and indorses the thesis that "qualitative equality of armaments should be sought through reduction of the arms of heavily armed powers and not through other nations attempting to build up their arms."

COURT ACTION PERILS REPEAL IN PENNA.

Drys Seek Injunction To Prevent Vote In State

HARRISBURG Pa., Oct. 14.—(AP.)—Disruption of Pennsylvania's plans to vote November 7 on repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment is threatened in a court action by dry leaders, who state similar tactics are planned in Ohio.

The Keystone State is one of six whose elections next month may send the repeal movement over the top.

Action to prevent Pennsylvania from voting on the question was taken in Dauphin County Court yesterday by G. W. Hartman of Harrisburg, and Gerald Disney, of Cheltenham. They filed a petition for a temporary injunction enjoining Richard J. Beamish, Secretary of the Commonwealth, from placing on the ballot names of 15 repeal and 15 anti-repeal convention delegates.

The court granted a rule returnable October 30 and arguments will be heard immediately.

Pennsylvania's repeal convention is set for December 5, but a permanent injunction would result in its cancellation.

Dr. William Sheafe Chase, of Washington, D. C., superintendent of the International Reform Federation, is supporting the petition.

COL. HAWKINS, ATTORNEY, DIES

Orphans' Court, of which his father was the first judge, was adjourned today in respect to Col. Richard H. Hawkins, well-known lawyer, who died at his home, 1405 Squirrel Hill avenue, early today. Judge Thomas P. Trimble ordered the adjournment.

And Judge W. Heber Dithrich, presiding in Common Pleas Court, announced that when the court adjourns today it will be in honor of Col. Hawkins.

Stricken last week with a cold, the attorney, who was a member of the University of Pittsburgh faculty, developed pneumonia. His father, first judge of Orphans' Court, was W. G. Hawkins.

Attorney Fred C. Houston made the announcement in Orphans Court, and Attorney R. M. Holden in Common Pleas.

Col. Hawkins practiced law here from 1913 until the World War, when he joined the Army and was assigned to the War Department in Washington. He first visaed all contracts for war supplies, and later served in the judge advocate's department. Most of the time since he had devoted to teaching.

He leaves his widow, Mrs. Lotta Boyd Hawkins, and three children, Klemm and Eliza Boyd and Richard Hawkins.

AUDIT RESULTS GIVEN TO PARK

Evidence of reputed diverted fees, altered records and missing documents allegedly uncovered during an audit of the books in the office of Coroner W. J. McGregor today had been ordered turned over to District Attorney Andrew T. Park by County Solicitor J. P. Fife.

Fife made no comment as he dispatched the audit revelations that in 82 instances prior to 1933 embalming fees of $10 each paid to the coroner's office by undertakers had not been remitted to the County Treasurer; that cash books pertaining to these collections were missing from 1922 when Coroner McGregor took office and that 235 erasures had been made in available records and that pages had been removed from other records.

The audit, instigated by charges of former Chief Deputy Coroner Harry T. Ewing, was made by Main & Co.

Two Coraopolis Men Drown in Ohio River

Police today were dragging the Ohio River at Coraopolis for the bodies of two Negroes drowned when their junk-laden canoe sank late yesterday.

The victims, George Young, 47, and his nephew, James Withrow, 26, both of Brook street, Coraopolis, were paddling from Haysville to Coraopolis, when the canoe, full of junk which they collected, sank.

Judge Points Out Park's Zeal to Jurors

Introducing District Attorney Andrew T. Park as the man behind the scenes in criminal circles, Judge Sylvester J. Snee presented Park to the 240 jurors who yesterday completed two weeks' service.

Park had been up until 5 a. m. questioning witnesses in the Westwood jury-fixing case, and two days before he had been at his office until 3 a. m., when Robert S. Soles finished making his alleged confession to killing his wife. The Judge said:

"If you jurors think you have worked hard serving eight hours a day, occasionally staying in later, we have a district attorney who thinks nothing of working all night when the occasion demands."

ARRESTS LOOM IN JURY PROBE

Continuing his investigation into the alleged plot to tamper with the jury in the trial of Justice of the Peace James J. Westwood, of McKees Rocks, and two of his constables, accused of faking cases to defraud the county of costs, District Attorney Andrew T. Park said today further arrests may be made before Monday.

James Connors, 36, a county truck driver, has been held for court in connection with the alleged plot.

Weather Conditions.

The high that has centered over the lake region yesterday is now centered over West Virginia, Elkins, 30:42 inches. It is attended by clear skies generally and cold weather for the season. Heavy frost occurred over the Upper Ohio Valley states and in the Pittsburgh district suburban temperatures were below freezing. At the Weather Bureau sub-station, Mt. Lebanon, the minimum temperature this morning was 29 degrees, and in the lowlands temperatures as low as 26 degrees occurred. There was a marked rise in temperature over the plains states and the Upper Mississippi Valley. Precipitation was limited to small areas in Northern Louisiana, Eastern Texas, and along the Middle and North Atlantic coast. The principal low is centered over Saskatchewan and covers most of the Rocky Mountain and plains states section. Lowest pressure (29.42 inches) at Prince Albert.

WALKER DOUBLE DIES HERE

A native of Pittsburgh, Mr. Wall, 56, had lived in the South Side all his life. His home was at 1000 West Carson street. He died Thursday in West Penn Hospital. He was a member of the Keystone Athletic Club, the Amen Corner and Lodge, No. 11, B. P. O. Elks. He leaves a brother, Richard A. Wall.

Burial will follow requiem mass at 9 a. m., Monday, in St. Mary's Catholic Church, downtown Pittsburgh.

'NOVICE' WITH GUN SHOOTS 2

MONESSEN, Pa., Oct. 14.—A man who claimed never to have fired a gun before, shot two Negro brothers after he had attempted to protect the woman companion of one in a Monessen cafe shortly before midnight, police say.

McKinley Simms, 18, of Castle Gardens, Monessen, began throwing beer mugs at his companion, Edna Johnson, Negro, in a dispute, police said.

When Fred Feldman, 23, tried to quiet Simms, the latter hurled a cuspidor at him. Enraged, Feldman snatched a gun from behind the bar and fired twice at Simms. The bullet lodged in his side, police reported.

Simms' brother, Monroe, 23, standing outside the cafe, chased Feldman several blocks, followed him into a store and threw the top of a stool at him, striking him on the head, according to police.

Feldman fired a volley of three bullets, police said, striking Simms.

MACON MEETS TEXAS STORMS

MIDLAND, Tex., Oct. 14.—(AP.)—The transcontinental flight of the Navy dirigible Macon was interrupted by thunderstorms near this West Texas city today and four times the huge airship turned about after heading toward El Paso.

The fourth time it returned to circle low over the city, radio operators on land reported the airship was calling for weather reports to the west. There was no signal from the airship, however, that anything was amiss aboard.

Thunder storms, accompanied by much lightning, still rolled along the eastern scarp of the Davis Mountains, which the ship would have to surmount before reaching El Paso, where the weather was reported as clear.

EL PASO, Tex., Oct. 14.—(INS.)—The Navy dirigible Macon arrived over here, approaching from the East on the way to the coast at 10:15 o'clock eastern standard time. It was receiving regular weather bulletin reports from government officials here. The sky was clear and there was very little wind.

CLERK OF HOUSE LINKED TO VICE

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 14.—(AP.)—Eugene F. White, clerk of the Pennsylvania House of Representatives, again is linked in Federal Court testimony to the alleged conspiracy to collect "protection" money from vice and liquor establishments in Delaware County.

White, who is being tried with State Senator John J. McClure and 76 others on charges of conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws, was named by a government witness at last night's session of the trial as the man who increased the levy on an alleged illegal establishment at Chester.

Vincent Massey, the witness, testified that he took Millie Santoni to White to protest against the increase to $75 from $60 a week in the fee demanded from her. Massey said White refused to reduce the figure and suggested that the woman increase her revenue.

Massey, a former deputy sheriff of Delaware County, also named Senator McClure as having put him "on the payroll" in return for his promise to "make no raids in Chester."

Mrs. Gottfried Schaaf, of the Steubenville pike, asked the Missing Persons Bureau today to help find her 16-year-old son, Gottfried. He disappeared a year ago, she said, en route to Pittsburgh after visiting relatives in Los Angeles.

Loan From U. S. May Complete Pitt Cathedral

A loan of $1,500,000 for completion of the Cathedral of Learning may be asked of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation by the trustees of the University of Pittsburgh, it was revealed today. Announcement of plans for asking aid was made by Joseph C. Trees, heading the executive committee of the truestees.

Due to lack of funds much of the lower section of the building as well as the top never has been completed. When finished the building will be about 50 feet higher than at present.

The Cathedral was started seven years ago, after more than $5,000,000 had been subscribed. Funds began to run low and subscriptions to decline when the depression began, and after a time work ceased altogether.

All costs have been paid with interest, officials said. If the RFC loan [illegible] granted it will be the first [illegible] incurred on the structure. [illegible] completed the building [illegible] 40 stories high.

WAR OBJECTION STAND MAY BE URGED UPON DISCIPLES

NAME OFFICERS AT MORNING SESSION

A definite stand by the Disciples of Christ (Christian Church) supporting the right of individuals to conscientiously object to service in wartime is expected to be urged before the international convention today ending its business sessions in Syria Mosque.

The resolution, already presented to the committee on recommendation to which all convention business must be submitted, is reported ready for membership action.

RESOLUTION READY

Likewise, the resolution recommending the establishing of two new separated boards now functioning under the United Christian Missionary Society and which was delayed in the recommendation commission through early inability to decide on what proportion of existing obligations the groups would share, was reported ready for submission. The action, if adopted by the convention, would place the Board of Church Extension and the Department of Benevolence as separate agencies.

While a recommendation was expected at this convention from the Commission on Function and Structure urging the membership to place the conventions on a legislative rather than its existing advisory basis, indications today were an extension of time for further study would be asked. The commission's report is expected to indicate that progress has been made but that subcommittees have not completed their work.

OFFICERS ELECTED

Re-elected were: General secretary, the Rev. Graham Frank, Dallas, Tex.; recording secretary, Miss Elizabeth Jamieson, St. Louis; transportation secretary, H. B. Holloway, Indianapolis; treasurer, J. H. Nance, Dallas.

New members of the executive committee chosen were: The Rev. S. M. Dividian, Lima, O.; the Rev. Chester F. Grubb, Bloomington, Ill.; Mrs. J. M. Stearns, Indianapolis; the Rev. John R. Golden, Topeka, Kan.; Mrs. L. N. D. Wells, Dallas.

No city will be recommended for next year's convention. The commitee probably will ask for additional time to study invitations from Long Beach, Cal.; Colorado Springs, Col.; Chicago, Des Moines, Ia., and St. Louis.

The convention yesterday approved the establishing a unified fund promotional agency. The plan now awaits ratification of the various church agencies that will share in the new department. The unified plan calls for the seeking of funds for yearly budgets and other denominational-wide programs through one general drive. It will eliminate overlapping of the drives now directed by the various agencies. Local church groups, however, will be privileged to conduct campaigns for their own purposes.

PRAYER MEETING

The convention's final prayer meeting will be held tonight. Kirby Page, noted writer and lecturer, and Taymond McLain, will speak.

A sunrise prayer service in front of Memorial Hall will be held tomorrow morning at 6:30 o'clock. A communion service in the mosque will be the afternoon program, while a world convention session will be held at night. A motor tour through Western Pennsylvania and West Virginia, through sections where the church's early history was made, will close convention activities Monday.

Flames Destroy New Avalon Home

An early morning blaze, believed caused by a gas stove used to dry plaster in a newly-built home, destroyed a two-story brick dwelling in Home avenue extension, Avalon, according to police. Loss was estimated at $3,000.

The Story of Ruth -:- CHAPTER III -:- Told in Pictures by Dan Smith

And when Naomi and Ruth came unto Bethlehem, to those who greeted her Naomi said, "Call me not Naomi, call me Mara; (meaning sad) for the Almighty hath dealt very bitterly with me." And the time of their return was the beginning of the barley harvest.

Boaz, a kinsman of Naomi's husband, Elimelech, was a mighty man of wealth in Judah; and Ruth said to Naomi, "Let me now go to the field and glean ears of corn after him, in whose sight I shall find grace." And Naomi said unto her, "Go, my daughter."

So Ruth went and gleaned after the reapers, and by chance lighted upon a part of the field belonging unto Boaz. And when he saw her, Boaz said unto his servant that was set over the reapers, "Whose damsel is this" And his servant told him.

Then Boaz bade Ruth to glean in no other field, but to abide fast by his maidens, and she would be safe. He told her he knew of her kindness to Naomi. Then Ruth said, "Let me find favor in thy sight, my Lord, for thou hast comforted me." (Continued next week)

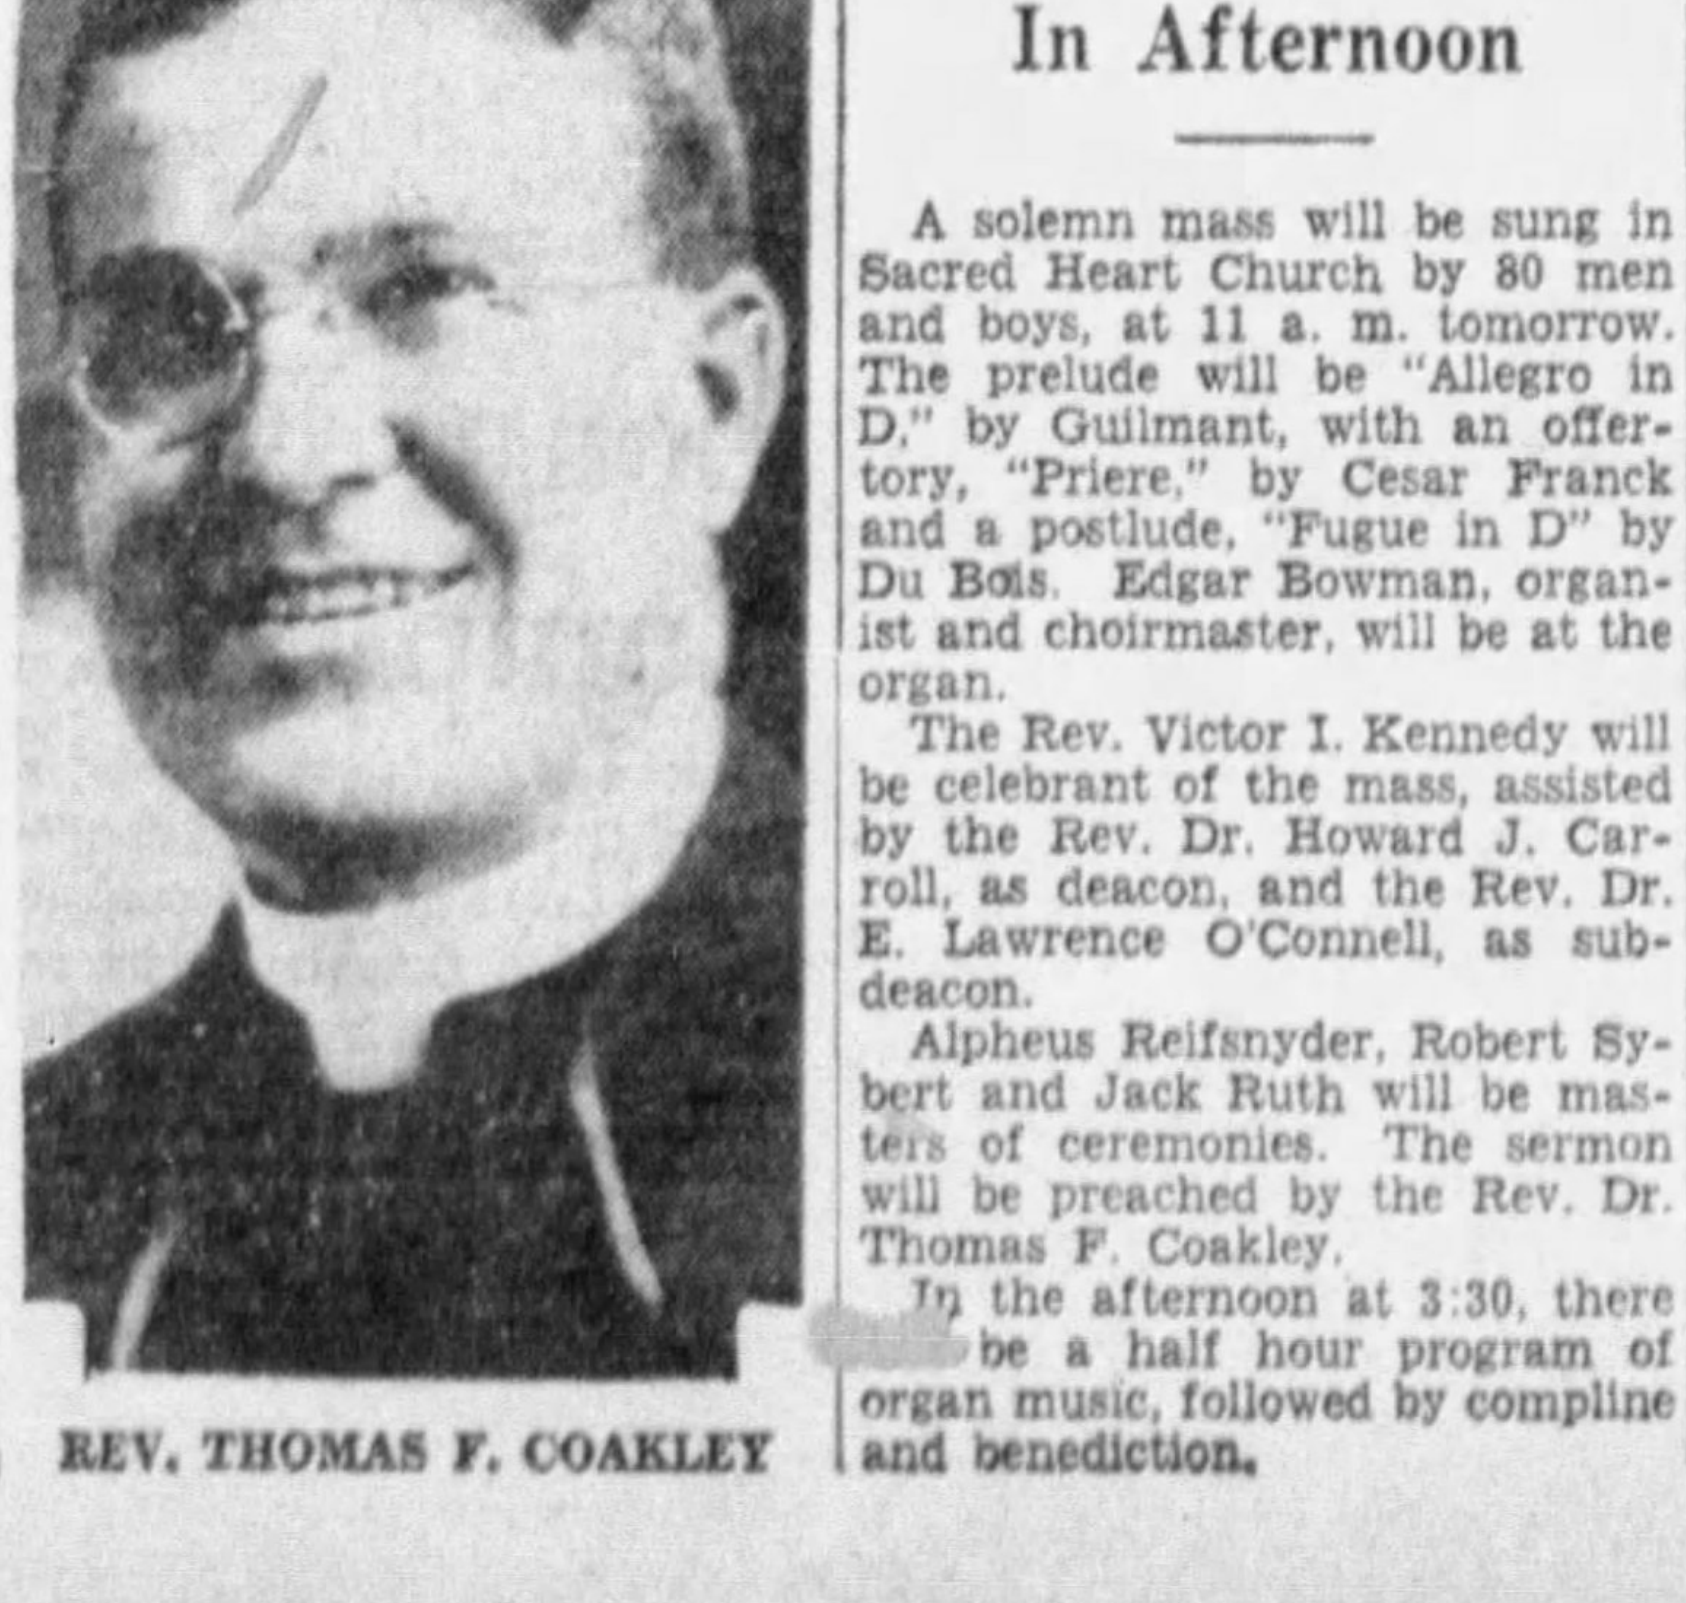
CHOIR OF 80 TO SING MASS



REV. THOMAS F. COAKLEY

Sacred Heart Church Organ Program In Afternoon

A solemn mass will be sung in Sacred Heart Church by 80 men and boys, at 11 a. m. tomorrow. The prelude will be "Allegro in D," by Guilmant, with an offertory, "Priere," by Cesar Franck and a postlude, "Fugue in D" by Du Bois. Edgar Bowman, organist and choirmaster, will be at the organ.

The Rev. Victor I. Kennedy will be celebrant of the mass, assisted by the Rev. Dr. Howard J. Carroll, as deacon, and the Rev. Dr. E. Lawrence O'Connell, as subdeacon.

Alpheus Reifsnyder, Robert Sybert and Jack Ruth will be masters of ceremonies. The sermon will be preached by the Rev. Dr. Thomas F. Coakley.

In the afternoon at 3:30, there will be a half hour program of organ music, followed by compline and benediction.

Church Anniversary Observance to End

Observance of the seventy-seventh anniversary of the East Birmingham Sabbath School, and the sixty-third anniversary of its successor the Walton Methodist Episcopal Church, will end tomorrow when the Rev. Dr. L. D. Sapugy, district superintendent of the Pittsburgh Conference, will conduct services.

A sacred concert will be given in the evening in the church, at South Twenty-fourth and Sarah streets.

Young Evangelist Here for Third Week

The second week of the old-time evangelistic campaign at the Second Presbyterian Church closed last night. The campaign will go into its third week tomorrow night with Junior Lehman, 19-year-old evangelist, preaching on "The Hope of the Godless."

Bellevue Spiritual Conference to End

A three-day Spiritual Life Conference in the Bellevue United Presbyterian Church will be concluded tomorrow. The Rev. Dr. James M. Ferguson, pastor, will preach at 11 a. m.; the Rev. Dr. E. C. McCown, of Mt. Lebanon, at 3 p. m. and the Rev. Dr. W. B. Anderson, of Philadelphia, at 7:45 p. m.

HARMARVILLE CHURCH 95 YEARS OLD

The Harmarville United Presbyterian Church, one of the oldest churches in the Allegheny Valley, tomorrow will celebrate its ninety-fifth anniversary.

The Rev. H. J. Rose, oldest living former pastor, will conduct the service, assisted by his son, the Rev. Parker Rose.

At a fellowship service at 3 p. m., greetings will be given by former ministers and visiting pastors. The Men's Chorus and Young People's Chorus will sing.

MARK ANNIVERSARY

Actually falling on last Thursday, the anniversary was observed that day with a preparatory service, followed by another service last night, in charge of the Rev. Roy Lash, of Ross Community Church.

The Rev. Ralph Ayers is the present pastor of the church, which, on its founding in 1838 was known as the Associate Reformed Congregation of Indiana.

The first preaching in the township, before the organization of the church, was done in a log barn on the Denny tract. Later a rude church was erected, also on Denny property.

DONATED PROPERTY

During the first 12 years the church was spared all expense for grounds and buildings, these being provided by Mr. and Mrs. Harmar Denny, great-grandparents of the present Director of Public Safety.

In 1851 the Dennys provided a location for the present church. A parsonage was erected in 1927 when Mrs. Mary O'Hara Spring, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harmar Denny, donated an additional plot of ground.

SUNDAY SCHOOL GROUP ELECTS

GETTYSBURG, Oct. 14.—(AP.)—The seventy-first annual convention of the Pennsylvania Sabbath School Association closed yesterday with the selection of Indiana for next year's meeting and the re-election of Harry E. Paisley, of Philadelphia, as president.

Other officers elected: Vice presidents, F. E. Parkhurst, Wilkes-Barre; Mrs. W. Burnet Easton, Stroudsburg; Dr. J. W. Manon, Charleroi; Arthur P. Zuck, Erie; Edwin G. Trexler, Allentown; Henry E. Cole, Pittsburgh; Edward H. Bonsall, Jr., Philadelphia; A. R. Pollock, Bakerstown; Dr. H. E. Ober, Elizabethtown; H. S. Smeltzer, Harrisburg; Julian F. Ulmer, Pottstown, and C. C. Culp, Gettysburg. Directors—Ives L. Harvey, Huntingdon; H. C. Heckerman, Bedford, and O. R. Myers, Huntingdon.

Joseph M. Steele, Philadelphia, was re-elected treasurer and Romain C. Hassrick, Philadelphia, counsel.

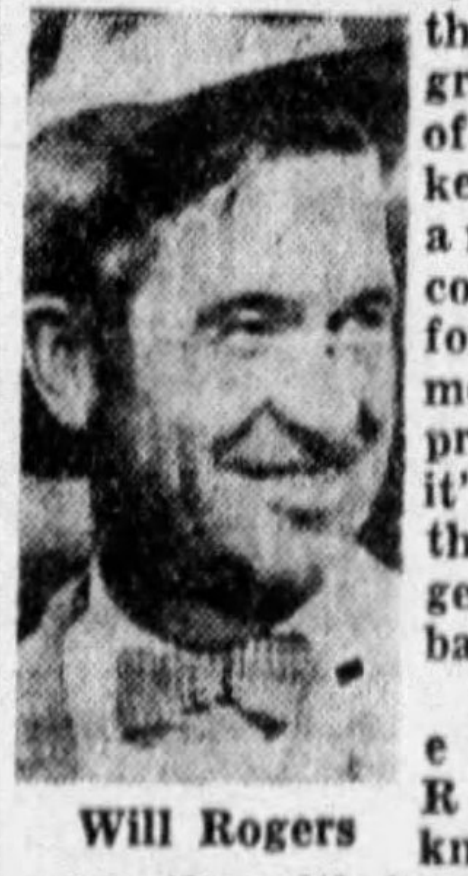
Series at Mission To Close Tomorrow

Concluding a series of three weekly evangelistic meetings at the Rescue Mission, 14 East Park way, North Side, the Rev. F. P. Festa will speak on "Divine Love" tomorrow at 3 p. m.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Oct. 14. To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

It must be terribly discouraging to Mr. Roosevelt after eight months of hard work to try to get people a job, to have 'em strike the minute they get it. It looks like if all these dissatisfied groups instead of striking would keep on working and lay their complaints before the government, with the proviso that if it's settled in their favor they get the extra back pay.



Will Rogers

Labor has seen enough of Roosevelt to know he is in sympathy with 'em, and that in a government arbitration they would get a square deal. Help your company to start making some money, and when they do, Roosevelt will see that you get a fair part of it.

If American labor would work while their case is being arbitrated, instead of striking, they would have the gratitude of our President, and the sympathy of everybody. Yours, WILL.

Grid Games Broadcast Today

Football fans unable to attend the Pitt-Navy game in town this afternoon, nor to hear it on the air, for it will not be broadcast, may listen to other gridiron contests played in Cincinnati, Chicago and Ann Arbor.

The Carnegie Tech-St. Xavier game is described telegraphically over WWSW at 2:15, with Ed. Sprague and Joe Sartori reproducing the plays.

WCAE carries a play-by-play account of the Michigan-Cornell contest at 1:45, with Don Wilson, new NBC sports announcer, at the Ann Arbor sideline microphone.

The Northwestern-Stanford game in Chicago is carried by both KDKA and WJAS, Graham McNamee and Dick Hyland observing for KDKA listeners, Ted Husing and Les Quailey for WJAS fans.

* * *

Mary Pickford

America's (if not Doug's) Sweetheart is heard over WCAE at 7:30, speaking for the NRA.

* * *

B. A. Rolfe's Orchestra, playing in NBC's Fifth avenue studios, and Lew White, playing an organ in Radio City, a half-mile away, offer orchestra-organ duets during tonight's dancing party, heard over WCAE at 10.

They'll keep time with each other by means of earphones.

* * *

Georgie Jessel, Vera Van and Freddie Rich's Orchestra are featured on WJAS at 10:30.

* * *

Solomon Lightfoot Michaux and his singing congregation move to a later hour for tonight's program, broadcast over WJAS from a little church on the banks of the Potomac.

Henceforth they will be heard at 9, instead of 8:15.

* * *

Lenroot

Judge Irving L. Lenroot, of the United States Court of Customs and Appeals, speaks for the NRA during the WJAS Public Affairs program at 10.

* * *

Pittsburghers going to Pinehurst, Asheville, Southern Pines this winter will hear NBC Blue network programs over WSOC, Charlotte, N. C.

KDKA joins the other chain stations in welcoming the Tarheel station into the network family tonight at 9:30.

* * *

The K-7 dramas, no longer carried locally, may be heard on WEAF, WTAM, WGY at 8 Saturday nights.

* * *

At Last!

"The Last Roundup," has had its last roundup as far as one Chicago station is concerned. Word comes from the CBS key there, WBBM, that an immediate ban has been put into effect.

Globe-Trotting

—By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN—

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

Well I should say that this bit of neighborhood news deserves mention.

It is not often that one wakes up in the morning to find a stray cow has taken possession of the front yard. That's the experience of Mrs. D. Pinkerton, of Grass Run road, Bellevue.

If this keeps up we'll have to have cow catchers as well as dog catchers.

* * *

Dr. H. L. Reinecke, the Carson street dentist, rushes over with an announcement from a former Pittsburgher, Maj. P. S. Reinecke.

It bears the NRA insignia with modifications.

The NRA stands for New Reinecke Arrival, and the eagle, supplanting the stork, has little eight-pound Roderick Laury suspended comfortably in its talons.

* * *

She had written a poem and sent it to Washington and the letter is her reply.

* * *

What does B. H. Rue mean when he says that the clock stopped at 1:23 at the Elrama Odd Fellows card party?

* * *

I'm still hearing about those Zinnia seeds. Mrs. Garlick, Avalon, writes that her bloom was beautiful and still is.

* * *

* * *

Local Highlights on WJAS Tonight

Gus and Ray with their "Songs of Today" occupy a new schedule spot, being billed at 11:15.

Paul Gannon sings "Dear Love, My Love" as the feature of his 6:45 broadcast.

Naval Ships the World Over To Follow Pitt-Navy Game

Play-by-play description of the Pitt-Navy game this afternoon is broadcast around the world in telegraphic code. A detailed account of the contest is wired from Pitt Stadium to the Naval Radio Station at Arlington, and thence short waved to all ships and stations of the United States Navy. Naval crews on the East and West coasts; in Hawaii, the Philippines, China station, Alaska, Cuba, Europe—in every corner of the world, get a report of every play an instant after it occurs.

President's Cabinet To Speak

By AIRCASTER

President Roosevelt has decided to put his cabinet members on the air, one by one, week by week.

Cordell Hull, Secretary of State, will take the air via the NBC waves (the stations as yet undetermined) on Monday, October 23, at 10:45 p. m.

The cabinet members, as I understand it, will go in as oratorical builder-uppers for the President's own speeches on recovery from time to time, sharpening the appetite of the listeners for more of the head man's radio appearances.

But, alas! It appears that tradition is being too scrupulously followed. They've completely overlooked the Vice President.

* * *

Dithery Jitters

Dear Aircaster:

I'm taking advantage of the opportunity you are offering those severest of critics — the radio audience—to speak their minds in your column. I'm going to complain.

Why, oh, why do announcers have to say "So now I see I have only a few seconds left," or "My time is almost up," when they could end it by ad-libbing for the remaining seconds, or follow the very obvious effort Lowell Thomas makes in ending his current events broadcasts? That can be tolerated.

When I hear the announcer or performer say, "My time is almost up," I am, by that time, having a fine set of the sober jitters. For immediately he begins to talk rapidly, and I am afraid he won't be able to get everything said.

The suspense makes me dithery. Pardon my coinage. Can you do something about it?

Sincerely,
Aspinwall Complainer.

* * *

Holding the Bag

Dear Aspinwall:

I don't know what to do for the dithery jitters, and alas! even less about coinage. But don't blame it on the announcers.

Program directors and continuity writers, responsible for accurately timed broadcasts, are at fault.

Many a time, in sketchily managed stations, I have seen artists and speakers breeze into the studios a few minutes or seconds before they were due on the air.

The announcer, utterly unprepared with any advance information—without even the artist's name or musical numbers—was obliged to put the show on, on scheduled time, asking the performer whispered questions between numbers, and attempting to make a smooth performance of it.

When you hear an announcer stalling for time, or racing it, he's usually holding the bag for the program director who is, in the first and last analysis, responsible for smooth productions.

AIRCASTER.

Protests Fee Denial In Vote Fraud Quiz

Asserting the Board of Registration Commissioners refused to pay fees to witnesses subpenaed for its vote fraud inquiry, Attorney Albert E. Leven sent a letter of protest to the Commissioners today.

He claims that vote-fraud witnesses are entitled to $1.50 per day, the legal rate. Board members and the County Commissioners have declared they know nothing about fees, and no money has been appropriated, Leven says.

Big World Tour To Pursue Our Vanished Dollar

—By ARTHUR (Bugs) BAER—

Prettiest one is picture of 37,000,000 in American investments going to Bolivia to pay off English munition firm.

Travel bureaus urging Americans to scram around the indebted world should use the following slogan:

The brokers who wanted to go to Jersey City ain't so anxious to go to Washington. That's because Pecora ain't in Jersey City.

'Unforgivable Sin' On Air Tonight

"The Unforgivable Sin," a gripping radio drama adapted from the story entitled "Guillotined Her Faithless Royal Lover" appearing in tomorrow's American Weekly Magazine, distributed with the Sunday Sun-Telegraph, is heard over Pittsburgh, Wheeling and Fairmont stations this evening on the following schedule:

WWVA, Wheeling, 5:45.
WMMN, Fairmont, 7.
WCAE, Pittsburgh, 7:45.

LEAGUE KEEPS HANDS OFF IN MAYOR RACE

Keeping hands off in the mayoralty fight, the Citizens' League has indorsed for city office only William A. Magee, Council candidate on the Republican, Democratic, Independent and Liberal tickets.

Action by the league followed a protracted meeting yesterday of the executive committee, at which strenuous efforts were made to secure an indorsement for William N. McNair, Democratic mayoralty candidate. Leslie M. Johnston, chairman of the league, is understood to have led the fight for McNair, but a majority of the committee rebuffed his efforts after a debate which at times was full of heat.

There was no sentiment at all for Mayor John S. Herron, Republican nominee, whom the league had opposed in the primary. The majority, however, persisted in the assertion that the principles of the league were not to be served by a McNair indorsement, reiterating an expression which some members had made at various times during the campaign.

INDIVIDUAL ACTION

Johnston, it is understood, plans to indorse McNair in his individual capacity.

McNair and John M. Huston, John J. Kane and Walter Demmler, Democratic Council candidates, were present during the meeting of the committee yesterday, but left prior to the issuance of a statement by Miss Hannah Patterson, vice chairman of the league, which made no reference at all to the mayoralty campaign.

Democrats had expected that as a result of placing Magee, indorsed by the league during the primary, on their ticket this week, that an indorsement of the whole Democratic movement would be voted by the league. County Chairman David L. Lawrence had held conferences with league leaders on the subject.

INDORSE JUDGES

With the exception of Magee, the league confined its indorsements for the November campaign to the judiciary, reaffirming indorsement of its primary candidates who had been nominated. With the exception of Judge Thomas P. Trimble for Orphans' Court, and Gustav L. Schramm for Juvenile Court, all are on the Republican ticket only.

Schramm was not indorsed in the primary, the league keeping hands off between him and Mrs. Lois D. McBride. The Republican nomination was won by Charles G. Lane, Jr., while Schramm was victor in the Democratic column.

Mrs. McBride has Independent and Socialist nominations, from which she did not withdraw yesterday, the last day when candidates might do so.

For Common Pleas Court the league indorsed Judges Harry H. Rowand and Ralph H. Smith, and for County Court Judges Benjamin Lencher and Frank A. Piekarski.

MACKRELL WITHDRAWS

Register of Wills Joseph N. Mackrell, defeated in the Republican mayoralty primary, yesterday withdrew as the Independent candidate, as did Robert N. Waddell, candidate for council. As the Independent Party, regularly on the ballot, has no party organization and no party rules, the legal bureau of the Department of Elections has held that the vacancies cannot be filled as prescribed by law.

In addition to Magee, James F. Malone, Mrs. Sarah M. Phillips and Louis Wechsler are the Independent councilmanic candidates, and their names will appear on the ballot.

E. J. Wuerthle, who filed for the Square Deal Council nomination, and John D. Nuskay, tied for first place with two votes. In the roll off Nuskay won.

Junior Patrol Mail Box

The first letter today is from John McMahon, of 635 McKee street, Monessen, Pa. He says in his dandy letter:

"I am sending a pledge in because I would like to join the Junior Patrol. I am getting along fine with my lessons in school. When I come home from school in the evenings I play football with my playmates."

Alma Desch, of 3359 Bigelow boulevard, writes that she would like to get pins and cards for 10 members. But she doesn't send any pledges for them. Please don't forget, fellows and girls, that each new member must sign the Junior Patrol pledge.

Frank Vitelli, of 3132 Shadeland avenue, writes this letter:

"I have a gang. The name of it is The Three Braves. We have a code when we send notes to each other. I want to know if you know it."

And he sends us a message written in his code. IXXX YYY BBB, A xxxy. Mxx. Jxx. ox lx. nx. l. nx. gx. Txxy. Hyx. Ex. Yb. Jxx. Vxx. Nyx. lx. Oyrz. pxx. Axx. Txx. Rx. ox. ly. No, sir, we don't know the answer to this one. Do any of you other fellows know it?

Billy Hutchison, of 220 Twenty-first street, Sharpsburg, is almost a new captain today. He sends in nine pledges and now he only needs one more before he gets his armband. Hurry another pledge along, Billy, so that your patrol can elect a captain right away. Have you made any plans how you are going to help others?

'Dicing' for Ballot

ALBERT C. STALEY F. P. INGHAM

BOARD IN NINTH WARD CALLED

Irregularities in primary returns from the Fourth District of the Ninth Ward resulted in the district election board being summoned before the recount board, working under Judges Samuel H. Gardner and Thomas M. Marshall. The election board members appeared yesterday, but the tabulation for the district was incomplete and they were recalled for Monday morning.

The recount board judges indicated discrepancies had been found in the district's figures for the independent nomination for alderman, and in the count for judge of election.

The board of the First District, Second Ward, North Braddock, was summoned for questioning after the return board discovered totals on the tally sheets did not match totals returned. The election board reported 175 votes for Edward F. Boyle as the Democratic nominee for Council and 171 for Michael Stretavski.

SENATE TURNS QUIZ TO CHASE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—(AP.)—New evidence of bankers' practices and profits, gleaned from the books of Dillon, Read & Co., was before the Senate investigators today as they turned toward operators of the Chase Security Corporation which have been under scrutiny for months.

The Dillon, Read inquiry was concluded yesterday with a final burst of statistics intermingled with sharp words between Clarence Dillon, senior member, and Senator Couzens, outspoken Michigan Republican.

Amid the mass of figures bearing on the banking firm's operations was recorded a loan of $300,000 to Harvey C. Couch, now a director of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation in 1928. It was listed as only half paid at the end of 1931.

RECIPE CLIPPERS KEPT BUSY

Housewives Compile Cookbooks From Prize Winners

Clip! Clip! Clip! Clip with care and soon you'll have a cookbook rare!

This seems to be the opinion of hundreds of housewives who are either reading the Prudence Penny prize recipes in the Sun-Telegraph every day or are sending in their favorites to be judged by experts.

Prudence Penny is flooded with letters from women who say that they are carefully clipping and saving the prize-winning recipes as they appear each day. If they continue to do so, they will soon have a cookbook of rare value.

The Sun-Telegraph continues to award $15 in daily cash prizes for the best home recipes for the preparation and cooking of good things to eat—recipes that their friends have enjoyed copying. All of the recipes submitted are examined by experts who will award one daily cash prize of $15 and ten $1 prizes. Get in the contest. Send in copies of your favorites to Prudence Penny, Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa., and then watch for your name among the prize winners.

FIVE DOLLAR PRIZE WINNER

MRS. JOHN FARINA,
826 North Euclid Ave., Pittsburgh.

ICE BOX SANDWICH

One small loaf white bread.
One-half pound package pimento cheese spread.
One-half pound liverwurst.
One cucumber, diced.
Eight leaves lettuce.

Cut crust off bread all around. Cut into six long slices (lengthwise of bread). Butter slices. Spread pimento on one slice of bread, cover with another slice. Take third slice, spread with liverwurst which has been mixed with mayonnaise, and cover with buttered slice. Cover last slice with one-third of the Philadelphia cream cheese in which have been mixed the diced cucumbers. Cover with last slice. Put all the slices together to form original loaf shape. Cover entire loaf with remaining cream cheese which has been mixed with the nuts and thinned with cream. Put in refrigerator for two hours. When ready to serve, cut in half pieces three inches thick and serve with olive or pickle on lettuce leaf. Makes eight portions.

TEN $1 PRIZE WINNERS

MRS. J. D. HUNT,
206 Martin avenue, Mt. Lebanon.

GRANDMA HUNT'S RICE PUDDING

One quart milk.
One-half teaspoon salt.
One cup sugar.
One cup water, boiling.
One teaspoon vanilla.
One tablespoon butter.
Three-fourths cup rice, uncooked.

Dissolve the sugar in the cup of boiling water, add salt, milk and vanilla, grease a deep baking dish with butter, pour the above liquid mixture into baking dish, sprinkle the rice evenly into this, top with dices of butter and a dash of cinnamon. Bake in a slow oven about 100 degrees, three hours.

MRS. A. L. FREDLAND,
6355 Waldron St., Squirrel Hill.

BRAISED LIVER WITH VEGETABLES

One and one-half tablespoons flour.
One-half teaspoon salt.
One-eighth teaspoon pepper.
Two tablespoons melted fat.
One medium onion, sliced.
One-quarter cup diced celery.
Two carrots sliced.
Two cups strained tomatoes.
One-half bay leaf.

Cut liver into two-inch squares. Roll in combined flour, salt, pepper. Broown on all sides in hot melted fat. Remove meat from fat and arrange in casserole. Brown onion, celery, and carrots slightly in same fat, then place in casserole with tomatoes and bay leaf. Cover tightly and bake in moderate oven for one and a half to two hours, or until liver and vegetables are tender. Serves six.

MRS. DON M. BEST,
Box 134, Parkers Landing.

SIMPLICITY CAKE

Four egg yolks.
Four egg whites.
Seven tablespoons cold water.
One and one-half cups granulated sugar
One and one-half cups flour.
One teaspoon lemon extract.
Pinch of salt.

Beat egg yolks and cold water with dover egg beater for five minutes. Add sugar gradually and beat five more minutes. Add flour, pinch of salt and lemon extract. Beat thoroughly. Fold batter in stiffly beaten egg whites. Bake in moderate oven, using ungreased angel food pan, for 45 to 50 minutes. Invert pan until cake is cold. Ice as desired, or serve as shortcake with fruit and whipped cream. Since there is no baking powder, cream of tartar or soda used, it is necessary to beat the batter more than usual.

MRS. LYNN E. HOFFMAN,
New Alexandria.

HONEY ROLLS

Two quarts bread flour.
One level tablespoon salt.
Three-fourths cup sugar.
One-half cup lard.

Combine the above ingredients as for making bread, allow to stand until increased to again its original size. Work and allowo to raise again. Press out on pie board to about one-half inch in thickness, spread with butter, sprinkle thick with brown sugar, raisins and dust well with cinnamon. Roll, cut in slices two inches wide. Place in deep pans, which have been well buttered and the bottoms covered with honey or brown sugar, one-half inch deep. Let rise to again their original size. Bake in moderate oven 30 to 40 minutes, turn out upside down on platter.

SISTER MARY ROSE,
710 Melrose avenue, Ambridge.

TOMATO RELISH

Twelve ripe tomatoes, chopped.
Two cups brown sugar.
One cup vinegar.
Two teaspoons salt.
One teaspoon pepper.
One teaspoon cinnamon.
One-fourth teaspoon cloves.
One-fourth teaspoon allspice.
Two large onions, chopped.
Two large apples, chopped.

Boil ingredients together until onions are soft.

MRS. E. H. WILSON,

COCOANUT MACAROONS

Three egg whites.
Two-thirds cup granulated sugar.
One-third cup water.

Boil sugar and water till it spins a thread, pour slowly on stiffly beaten egg whites, add cocoanut, drop by teaspoon on greased cookie sheet and bake till brown in medium oven.

GERTRUDE H. A. DISLER,
218 Bakewell Building, Pittsburgh.

WORKINGMAN'S DELIGHT

Six solid medium-sized peppers (green).
One lb. round steak—ground.
One and one-half cups cooked rice.
Two small onions.
Two sticks of celery.
One egg.
One good sized apple, or two small ones.
Two cans strained tomatoes.
Seasoning.

Wash peppers, slice in half lengthwise, clean seeds from the insides. Place the ground meat in a mixing bowl and add the cooked rice and mix well. Then add the onions which must be chopped very fine, also add the celery which must be chopped, and then add the apples which are also to be chopped. Mix the ingredients thoroughly. Then add a well-beaten egg and mix again. Add salt and pepper and a three-quarters of a teaspoon of pepper. Then fill the peppers with this mixture, dividing equally. Place the peppers in a baking pan and pour over the two cans of strained tomatoes, which has been seasoned with sugar, salt and pepper. Place in moderate oven and bake from one to one and one-half hours.

MRS. J. S. BASHLINE,
Tioga, Pa.

NUT PUDDING

One tablespoonful of butter.
One-half cup of sweet milk.
Three-fourths cup of flour.
One teaspoonful baking-powder.
One-half cup brown sugar.
One teaspoonful of cinnamon.
One cup nut meats (chopped). Hickory nuts especially good.

Make a batter of the above ingredients, then place one and one-half cups of water and one and one-half cups of brown sugar in a pan and bring to a boil. When this boils up pour it into a three-pint pan, then drop the batter by the spoonful into the syrup and bake one-half hour at 350 degrees. Serve with whipped cream or vanilla ice cream.

MRS. A. S. RODAK,
3605 Pary street, Brentwood.

GRAPE CONSERVE

Four pounds Concord grapes.
Four cups sugar.
One-fourth teaspoon salt.
One and one-half cups seeded raisins.
One orange.
One lemon.
One cup walnut meats.

Stem the grapes and separate the pulp from the skins. Cook the pulp for 10 minutes and rub through a sieve. Add the sugar, salt, chopped raisins, the orange juice and finely chopped rind and the lemon juice. Cook rapidly until the mixture begins to thicken, stirring frequently to prevent burning. Add the grape skins and cook until the conserve is thick. Stir in the chopped nuts and pour into hot sterilized jelly glasses.

MRS. FRED M'CLAIN,
P. O. Box 294, North Side Station, Pittsburgh.

EGGS A LA NAPOLI

Melt a tablespoon of butter in a saucepan, over a slow fire, and add gradually one and a half tablespoons of flour. Cook to a smooth paste, then add one and a half cupfuls of milk, stirring all the time, and four tablespoons of grated cheese, half a teaspoon paprika. Remove from the fire, stir in a teaspoon of lemon juice. Pour half the sauce in a shallow baking dish, break in four to six fresh eggs, sprinkle these with salt and pepper, then cover with the remaining sauce. Sprinkle grated cheese and paprika over the top of the dish. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for 10 minutes.

MACHINES FACE NEW TEST BY EXPERTS

Two outside mechanics selected by the Harris investigating committee will examine some of the county's voting machines Monday or Tuesday, bringing to a close the public session of the committee and permitting the three members to prepare recommendations for the County Commissioners.

The mechanics also will be present when B. B. Sklar, vote machine expert, is given an opportunity to prove the statement that he can cheat on the machines by voting several time for one candidate.

Sklar, in his own defense, yesterday denied he had ever received money from representatives of the Automatic Voting Machine Company, of Jamestown, N. Y.

It was testified Wednesday he accepted expense money from representatives of the company, to testify in Northumberland and Schuylkill counties as to defects of voting machines built by the Poole Engineering and Manufacturing Company, makers of the machines used here.

Sklar admitted he had received advances from D. A. Wolf, a representative of the Jamestown concern, but said he understood they had been paid back by Attorney W. Hackenberg, of Scranton, who was leading a taxpayers' fight in Northumberland County to throw out the Poole machines.

Sklar said he had from the first informed the County Elections Bureau of certain defects, but said the late Director John W. Vickerman had taken no action to correct them.

Sklar said he had never been induced to testify in any court action by either Mrs. J. O. Miller or Mrs. R. Templeton Smith, leaders of the Allegheny County League of Women Voters and critics of the Poole machines.

'SWEETEST DAY' GIFT REMINDER

Today is the "sweetest day in the year"—the day you're to remember not only your sweetheart, but your family and friends and even your enemies.

You can buy any kind of candy you wish, but if figures mean anything, you're most likely to choose chocolates. Confectioners' statistics for past years show that 75 per cent of the candy consumed annually by Americans is of the chocolate variety.

When the general average is taken, the citizens of the United States manage to consume 16 pounds of sweets per person each year.

What with debutante parties and weddings and sporting events, it wouldn't be a bit surprising if the "400" would forget for a time their philanthropies.

But they don't—they manage to get everything "in." So we're going to have just as many rummage sales as ever this winter.

There'll be one on Wednesday and Thursday at 115 South Highland avenue, where hundreds will go seeking a priceless antique or bit of old jewelry or some other "find." The Women's Missionary Society of the East Liberty church will hold the sale.

Sale Heads

Mrs. William M. Robinson, president of the society, has asked Mrs. Charles Miller, Jr., and Mrs. Walter Laird to be chairmen of the sale.

Mrs John G. Buchanan will be chairman of publicity; Mrs. Robert H. Youngman, of Finance; Mrs. W. H. Normecutt and Mrs. Albert Duckman, of sales; Mrs. William E. Allen, of transportation; Mrs. Alexander S. Hunter, article collection.

Also serving on the committee will be Mrs. Alex Negley, Mrs. George T. Hartley and Mrs. Foster Dickie.

Club Player Adopts Role Of Bride

A member of the Golden Triangle Players will not appear in their series of plays at the Twentieth Century Club this winter, because she has adopted another role—she will be a bride. She is Matilda Bodycombe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David E. Bodycombe, of Oakland avenue, and her marriage to Edward M. Sarraf, son of Mr. and Mrs. I. N. Sarraf, of Fair Oaks street, will be solemnized at 4 o'clock this afternoon.

The Rev. Drury Patchell will officiate, in the Church of the Ascension. The bride is wearing white taffeta made with brief, puffed sleeves, a slight train, white velvet girdle, and in the back a bustle effect. Her turban will be of white velvet, and she will carry white roses.

Miss Isabelle Yealy, who attended Carnegie Tech drama school with the bride, is her maid of honor and is wearing brown with matching accessories and carrying Talisman roses. Walter Sarraf will be his brother's best man.

After a southern motor trip Mr. Sarraf and his bride will be at home in Jackson street.

The bride is a graduate of the Tech drama school and has appeared on the New York stage in "The Noble Experiment." She has been active in Pittsburgh amateur plays and has been director of dramatics at the Woods Run settlement house. The bridegroom is a graduate of the University of Pittsburgh engineering school.

Wilkinsburg Girl And Duquesne Man Marry

A bride of today is Miss Marjorie Gage Naudain, daughter of Mrs. Myra Reed Naudain, of Frankstown road, Wilkinsburg. At noon she weds Kenneth J. R. Davies, son of the late Thomas P. Davies, of Duquesne.

The ceremony is taking place in the Naudain home and the bride's uncle, William F. Brown, is giving her in marriage. Her gown is of Burgundy red velvet made with puffed sleeves, and she is carrying gardenias and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Nicholas Alexander Ziegler, who is her cousin's matron of honor, is wearing black velvet and her bouquet is of sweetheart roses, arranged to simulate a muff, with a shower of lilies of the valley. Mr. Ziegler is serving as best man.

Mrs. Floyd St. Clair, sister of the bridegroom, is wearing orchid chiffon velvet and the bride's aunt, Mrs. Brown, is wearing pearl gray crepe with a corsage of sweetheart roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Davies left after the family breakfast for the East. They will reside in Wilkinsburg.

Miss Mary Frye Becomes Bride Of Doctor

At a home ceremony at noon today Miss Mary Elizabeth Frye, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Dan Wadsworth Frye, of Glenmore avenue, Dormont, marries Dr. J. Allen Llewellyn, of Butler, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Llewellyn, of Pittsburgh.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, is wearing blue velvet and carrying golden bronze chrysanthemums. Miss Virginia Elizabeth Kerr, maid of honor, is wearing brown crepe and velvet. Her flowers are autumn hued dahlias. Jack Llewellyn is serving as his brother's best man.

Dr. and Mrs. Llewellyn will leave by motor for the mountains after the wedding breakfast. After November 1 they will reside in Butler.

CHIC LITTLE HATS SNUGGLE INTO FUR COLLARS

By PRUNELLA WOOD

THE crowning glory of the feast is the pudding—and the last touch to a stunning ensemble is a swell hat. It should be a vastly becoming ornament which sets off the face as expertly as it does the costume beneath it, and it is just this double trick that many a lid fails to do.

A woman with style sense kwows that a certain model is undeniably smart, and she won't face the fact that it looks like the deuce on her head. Or vice versa, she gravitates toward one type of hat, say a toque or a wide-brimmed model, and wears it twelve months of the year, with tweed, chiffon, or cotton, no matter how incongruous it is bound to be a large part of the time.

* * *

JUST now there are two types of hat that are very good indeed and which need specific clothes and coiffure to carry them off. One is the lush, cavalier hat with feathers; it must have a trailing frock of handsome material, costume jewelry, and a soft hair arrangement to put it over. The other is the coolie scoop hat which was designed for rather tailored clothes, but which, nevertheless, looks horrible on a tightly clipped short bob.

Between these two individual models is the vast variety of hats which are draped so that almost any coiffure becomes them, and hats that have a rakish small brim to cover up most of one's hair, anyway. Both are excellent bets for wear with high fur collared coats, one formal and the other informal. Neither one calls for the elaborate arrangement of back hair, all cascaded, that shallow, front-tilted hats must have, nor for the pseudo-pompadour effect that makes a picture hat becoming.

* * *

HATS trimmed with bits of fur are much in the mode now, but the fur should be in step with the fur on a frock or a coat to be correct. They should be treated as costume accessories, just as one selects a bag or gloves or shoes of the proper hue for an ensemble.

Reception to Open State D. A. R. Conference in Washington Tuesday

By MRS. CHARLES V. BREGG

The hostess chapters, Washington County, Canonsburg, John Corbly and Monongahela Valley, will give the reception which will open the thirty-seventh annual state conference of Pennsylvania Society, Daughters of the American Revolution, on Tuesday evening in the George Washington Hotel, Washington, Pa.

Mrs. William H. Alexander will call the conference to order on Wednesday morning when the address of welcome will be made by Robert E. Griffiths, mayor of the city. Reports and greetings will fill the remainder of the morning.

The afternoon, too, will be given over largely to reports. A memorial service to Margaret Barnett, of the Pittsburgh Chapter, will be conducted by Mrs. Alexander Ennis Patton and there will be music by John Davis, Waynesburg violinist.

The conference dinner on Wednesday will be addressed by Dr. Ralph C. Hutchison, president of Washington and Jefferson College. On Thursday afternoon Mrs. William A. Becker, chairman of national defenses embodying patriotic education, will speak and Miss Edith Fox, of Charleroi, will play an accordion solo. Tea at the Nemacolin Country Club will conclude the afternoon.

Henry W. Temple, former Congressman, will address the Thursday evening session, the program also including the minuet danced by children from the Ida Cummins Chapter, C. A. R., Waynesburg.

The final session on Friday morning will be devoted entirely to business, which will include election of the nominating committee.

Artistic Program Given For Southern Club Head

One of the most artistic and beautiful, as well as appropriate programs ever presented before the Southern Club was that one given yesterday at the reception in the Hotel Schenley for the new president, Mrs. D. B. Frampton.

This program called "The Negro Speaks for Himself," was a compilation of folk tunes and lore of yesterday and today, separately and combined, and was done with great artistry by the compilers, Bertha Schraff Sadler, soloist and reader, and Miss Janet Spaugh, pianist.

Meetings Listed By Voters for Next Week

The Wilkinsburg League of Women Voters will meet Tuesday at 2 o'clock in the Penn-Lincoln Hotel and will hear C. H. Dennison, executive secretary of the Better Business Bureau, speak on "White Collar Bandits." Mrs. Arnold M. Replogle, chairman, has invited the chairmen of other locals to be guests of the Wilkinsburg League that afternoon. A musical program will be presented by Marion Duell McDade and Milton McDade.

Miss Louisa Knox, chairman of the Ben Avon League, announces the October meeting for Wednesday at the home of Mrs. C. M. Kefover, Irwin avenue. Mrs. F. C. Sinn will speak concerning the proposed amendments to the state constitution.

The Dormont-Mt. Lebanon League meeting in Dormont New Century Club on Wednesday will be a luncheon. Dr. B. J. Hovde, of the University of Pittsburgh, will be guest speaker, and his subject "Our Civic Responsibility."

On the same day the Twentieth Ward League will hold a benefit card party at the home of Mrs H. E. Huck, Allendale street Sheraden.

The Twenty-third Ward League meeting on Tuesday evening is in the Schiller School with Mrs. Sin speaking.

J. L. Masons Entertain New Rochelle Guests

Mr. and Mrs. William Carruthers Evans and Miss Mary Katherine Evans, of New Rochelle, N. Y., are the guests of Mr. and Mrs James Lawrence Mason, of Beverly place.

HAROLD L. ICKES, Secretary of the Interior and Administrator of the Federal Emergency Administration of Public Works, writes that the United States loans for useful public works are lagging—that the Administration wants borrowers for $1,500,000,000.00 at once. Apply to his department.

DR. DEAN LEWIS, President of the American Medical Association, declares that the nation's health is better in depression than in good times—that saner, simpler living is the main factor contributing to this condition.

HENRY MORGENTHAU, famous diplomat and economist, sees Franco-German hate hastening another war in Europe; he believes that the Reich is not so "disarmed" as the world has been led to believe.

EDWARD TOMLINSON, noted lecturer on South American affairs, believes that the Cuban crisis has proved the fairness of the United States toward Latin-America.

CAPT. F. VON RINTELEN, officer of the German Admiralty Staff of former Kaiser Wilhelm, discloses that he planted infernal machines in New York that ignited vessels in mid-ocean. He also sold munitions to Russia and blew up the ships bearing them—according to his own story.

CHARLES L. FLICK, from Berlin, says: "Nation-wide propaganda has mobilized every man, woman and child to 'defend the Fatherland against impending enemy air attacks,' which, it is declared, 'may take place any day.'"

GEORGE SEIBEL, literary editor and commentator on the stage for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, says that something went wrong with the voting machine that recently selected "America's Twelve Great Women Leaders" of the last 100 years—and he tells why.

TELL IT TO ELSIE -:- Follow This Unusual Feature Day by Day -:- -:- By ELSIE ROBINSON

It Is Fine for a Young Girl To Learn Housework

Is it stupid and old-fashioned for a girl to learn housework?

Will she lose out on all the good times, and probably be an old maid, if she stays at home and helps Mom instead of going in for hot-cha gadding?

"Sassy's" friends tell her that it is, and she will. And "Sassy," being only 17, is doing some anxious wondering.

Dear Elsie:

Maybe this letter will sound kind of crazy, but I'm a little worried about something, and I would like to have you straighten me out.

I am not like that girl who wrote you that her mother never had allowed her to "help" with the cooking or the housework. I have a slightly different problem.

I help Mother all the time. Ever since I was a little girl (I'm almost 17) I have helped her. I was awfully proud the first time I made a pie alone. She showed me all sorts of things about cooking and keeping house, and I loved it.

Every once in a while we have a bunch over for dinner, and I do most of the cooking when we do. I get a big bang out of fixing the table up to look pretty, and making something nice to eat. And that seems to be the trouble with me.

None of the other girls I know goes in for doing anything like that. And they kid me, and laugh about my liking to cook, and call me "old-fashioned."

ADVISED TO GO OUT

Lots of times when they want me to dash off somewhere, Mother and I are busy about something, and I won't be able to go. I would like to go, often, too, but Mother isn't awfully well, and sometimes she really needs me, or sometimes she will be going to show me something I haven't learned yet and that I am terribly interested in, so I'll tell them I will go next time.

And they tell me then that I am a sap—that I will never get anywhere, with my nose buried in home—that I will lose out on dates, and on meeting the live-wire boys, who are the life of the party and "amount to something."

One day one girl said to me, "My heavens! You just don't know what it's all about. You'll be an old maid, sure, if you don't snap out of it! You're just too domestic for any good use! Cooking's all right, but it's too dull if you ask me! You oughta snap out of it and get going!"

Do you think she is right? Boys seem to like me, but I have been wondering. Do you have to be giddy-gaddy to get anything out of life? I'm not brilliant, but maybe I could be if I tried. What do you think? Should I try to "liven up"? Is cooking old-fashioned? SASSY.

LEARNING LIFE

Is cooking old-fashioned? Yes, maybe it is, Sassy, but so's life, and all the great adventures that go to make life fine. And that's what you're learning now, little girl—not just how to make pies and cakes, polish silver and sew seams, but how to make other spirits happy when they're sad, brave when they're timid, hopeful when they're desperate, gentle when they're mad with pain.

There in the kitchen with Mom you are learning life, Sassy dear—and don't ever be ashamed of it.

Of course, you need to have life outside the kitchen, too. You must learn how to meet people, how to play with them and understand them, as well as how to serve them. And so you should have your parties and your friends, as well as those warm, sweet hours over the mixing bowl.

But never let them laugh you out of doing the real things, and never fear that life will pass you by because you have chosen to be a real woman instead of a burntout little fly-around.

And while I'm at it, here's a wreath to that fine mother who is having the sense to raise her girl to be a real home-maker, in these days when real homes are so pitifully rare.

Contract Bridge -:- HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Unwise Doubles

The factor of safety dictates that in making a Penalty Double a player should have a margin of at least 2 tricks, for the fact that a Penalty Double is made quite frequently permits the Declarer to adopt unusual methods of play which would be neither logical nor probable if he were playing an undoubled contract, and thus the player who takes it upon himself to double quite frequently sees one of his expected setting tricks vanish in thin air, as was the case in the hand below, played by Mrs. Carroll Forrest in a rubber game at a bridge club in New York.

North, Dealer.

North:
♠ A Q J 10 5
♡ 8
♢ K Q 10 7
♣ A 9 4

West:
♠ K 7 6 4 3
♡ A Q 7
♢ 9 3
♣ Q 8 2

East:
♡ K J 10 5 4 3 2
♢ 8 6 4 2
♣ 6 5

South:
♠ 9 8 2
♢ A J 5
♣ K J 10 7 3

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	2 ♡	3 ♣	3 ♡
4 ♠ (1)	Pass	Pass	Double (2)
Redouble (3)	Pass	Pass	Pass

1—North has a very fine hand and partner's free bid, which suggests that there is at least some kind of support for a spade bid, indicates that the hand should play at game.

2—A bad Double. It is true that West has five trumps and that the Declarer probably will be forced on a heart lead, but still West has nothing to gain and much to lose by disclosing the trump situation before the play. In addition, his hand does not seem to contain the tricks to set the contract. His partner has made an Overcall, and may not be able to produce any tricks whatever, as, in fact, he did not.

3—Probably unwise, as East and West have a very fine save in the bid of five hearts. They will probably lose only two clubs and two diamonds at a contract of five hearts, and thus suffer a mere penalty of 250 points. However, East, influenced no doubt by the fact that he was void of spades, anticipated a certain penalty and so made no further bid.

East opened with a small heart. West won with the Ace and returned the suit. Mrs. Forrest ruffed with the spade 10, desiring to retain the possibility of leading trumps twice from the Dummy. The Dummy was entered by leading a small diamond, which was won with the Knave, and the first lead of spades disclosed what North had feared—namely, that all the trumps were held by West. A second round of trumps was led, but North then realized that she could not afford to lead trumps once more as then the entire hand was likely to disintegrate. So the Ace of diamonds was returned and followed with another diamond. West decided not to ruff, but instead discarded a club. North continued with the fourth round of diamonds, and West now had no choice. He cashed a small trump and returned another trump, which gave North an overtrick, as there was no difficulty whatever in the play of any suit at this time.

TODAY'S QUESTION

North opens the bidding with three diamonds. Is this a Forcing or shut-out bid, the declaration being one more than necessary to complete the game?

Answer—The three-diamond bid shows a solid diamond suit of about six or seven-card length with a sprinkling of Queens and Knaves on the side. It invites a sporty three-notrump bid. With 60 on the score the situation is a little different—in this case it should be construed as a shut-out bid.

Teach Child to Be Happy

By CONSTANCE CAMERON

"Ridiculous!" you retort. "Anyone knows how to be happy. We don't need to be taught that. Least of all does a little child have to be taught to be happy."

But wait a minute.

Show me a happy mother and I'll show you a happy baby. Baby's first happiness is but a reflection of joy that he sees in the face best known to him. Babies in institutions lack that thing we call joy. Their little faces are solemn. They play soberly or not at all, sitting with a stillness that isn't normal in the young human being.

Baby's first training for happiness should begin while he is still in his crib.

Mother can thrust a rattle at him soberly, and soberly will he regard it and investigate it. But let mother present it to him with smiles and the idea that it is a glorious thing, something to enjoy, and you will witness an entirely different reaction.

The mother may be phlegmatic about the yellow canary bird singing in the sunny window. Baby won't feel that the canary is anything to write home about either. But let that mother draw the baby's attention to Dickie, let her teach the child to listen to the full-throated songs, and baby will soon know that the feathered creature is something to enjoy.

If the mother of the 2 or 3-year old runs to the door at evening crying gladly: "There's daddy!" daddy's homecoming will take on the aspect of something to be delighted over.

If the new dessert is heralded as a treat, the family picnic as a glorious good time coming, the automobile ride as a high adventure and to be appreciated, your young child will soon learn to find happiness in the events that we so often allow a child to be a part stolidly, soberly, without consciousness that within them lies happiness.

Yes, happiness can be taught and often has to be taught. Look about you and you'll find plenty of adults who haven't a feeling of happiness, although they have nothing to make them positively unhappy. Joy in small, free things is a valuable asset. You can give it to your child by your own attitude toward life and life's events.

'CLOSE HARMONY'

Drawn by Nell Brinkley

There is no picture quite so beautiful to the contemplative Old Ones, so sure to summon soft memories, as the one of young love in perfect tune, in a perfect moment. Young first love. The time of childhood, irresponsible, filled with adventures of the world still new, is potent; early days of marriage, the first baby in a household, spiritual adventure, all potent to rouse the memory of past scenes and the longing to go back to these dear spots along the back road. But there is none that softens the old heart and makes the old heart "silly" like the sight of two young things singing the chant of love, with Love himself chiming in with his faery voice.

To be very young, to be deeply in love, for the first time, is to live for a little while in the world but not of it; to have time to hold the hands of his clock and hush its chimes for you; to not even see or hear or feel the other things that are happening in the world, unless they loom close enough to thrust you apart; to walk in cloudland, lit by a rosy light; to hear Pan calling and find faeries; to become poets and songbirds; to know perfect serenity of heart and perfect anguish blended into an unbelievable happiness; to find unselfishness and a fine self-pride; to feel like an angel and to love another angel; to live divinely—for a little while.

Later-love takes root in the earth; like a god coming to live on the earth, if it be true love, it never loses its divinity. But it is never again the thing wholly of air and fire, above earth, feeding on dreams, that it is at the first.

So the Old Ones contemplate and remember—so well, so clearly, with smiles made salty with tears. One Old One holds the hand of the other Old One; says he, "Why we did not even think of marrying! It was so wonderful just to speak to one another, to be near each other, to say 'I love you.' There seemed no beginning to it and we certainly thought of no ending. You were just the world's loveliest and most perfect girl, and I was a hero out of a book come to life. Dear, dear! It's a long time ago. . . . Look at those two, Mother." —NELL BRINKLEY.

Madge Turns to Baby Faith for Solace

If I had been in a mirthful mood, I should have laughed in my mother-in-law's face when I told her that if she would outline the dinner she wanted for Philip Veritzen, I would endeavor to carry it out.

Puzzlement, disappointment, chagrin, in turn chased each other across her high-bred old face. It was the last thing she wanted, this shifting of responsibility from my shoulders to hers, even though she had summoned me to her room and bidden me take pencil and paper, as if I were the cook and she the mistress of the house.

But I know her little ways from years of association, and I knew that what she subconsciously wished was to have me choose the menu for Mr. Veritzen's dinner, with but a suggestion or two from her, so that if anything went wrong she would have no shadow of blame or responsibility.

"The darling old Buck Passer!" her own son calls her, with irritation softened by affection, and I have had reason many times to echo his appellation. Just now, I was more amused than irritated, as I waited for her answer to my demure proposal.

It was not long in coming, for, running true to form, Mother Graham took refuge in martyrdom, a frequent pose of hers. Drawing herself up to her full height, she addressed me as formally as if she were making a speech.

"Are you aware, Margaret," she said, "that I am an old woman, a feeble one, and that I have had the burden of these wedding preparations upon me while you were yet unable to come from the city because of your ankle? I supervised the cleaning of this house from top to bottom, and—and—attended to countless other details.

MADGE DISMISSED

I would have liked to hear what "details" she meant, for it seemed to me that outside of the cleaning, which is a matter of routine to Katie and Mrs. Ticer, Lillian and I had attended to everything. But I made no comment, and after her first stammer, Mother Graham swept on.

"I am perfectly willing to advise you about this important dinner, which you are willing to dismiss so lightly as 'pot luck'," she went on loftily, "but as for taking my time to plan it, I am astonished, Margaret that you should think of such a thing. Upon second thought, I shall not even offer you any advice.

"If you do not know how to plan a dinner now, after all these years, I cannot teach you how to do it. Go ahead and get anything you wish. But I implore you, let it be something worthy of the guest, not a hodge podge of left-overs, such as you were planning. Now if you'll excuse me, I feel much in need of my nap."

It is her most effective dismissal, and she knows it. Ashamed of a secret wish that she were young enough to shake soundly, I murmured something about doing my best and went out of the room, closing the door softly after me, although I would have gladly slammed it.

For a long half minute I stood outside that door pulling myself together, ashamed of the nervous irritation that was swaying me. I knew that I must seek Katie without delay, and plan with her the dinner that must be elaborate enough to suit my captious mother-in-law, yet possible to compass in the short time allotted to us.

GOES TO NURSERY

Not yet could I plan or do anything save humor my frayed nerves; but I knew one sovereign remedy for all dolor, and with swift noiseless steps I went back down the corridor to the nursery. Taking infinite pains that there should be no noise of a closing door to betray my presence there to my jealous mother-in-law, I went into the large, sunny room where Katherine sat beside my small baby daughter.

"I just want to look at her, Katrina," I said, as she started up at my entrance. "I need her; you can't tell how much."

"Oh, yes I can," my little kinswoman's dear, trained voice replied. "Just sit down there a second, and see what Santa Claus brings you."

I took the chair she indicated, while she went swiftly to the door and noiselessly turned the key.

"If Mother Graham smells a mouse and comes here, you can go down to the kitchen the back way, while I wake up from sleep and unlock the door," she whispered mischievously. "Now sit still and relax for one minute."

She went to the crib, busied herself with the baby for an instant, then lifted her from the crib, brought her over to me and put her in my arms.

"Mother Graham will murder me for this," she said, "but she'll never know I broke one of my strictest rules for you. But all rules go by the board when a woman comes in looking as you did a minute ago."

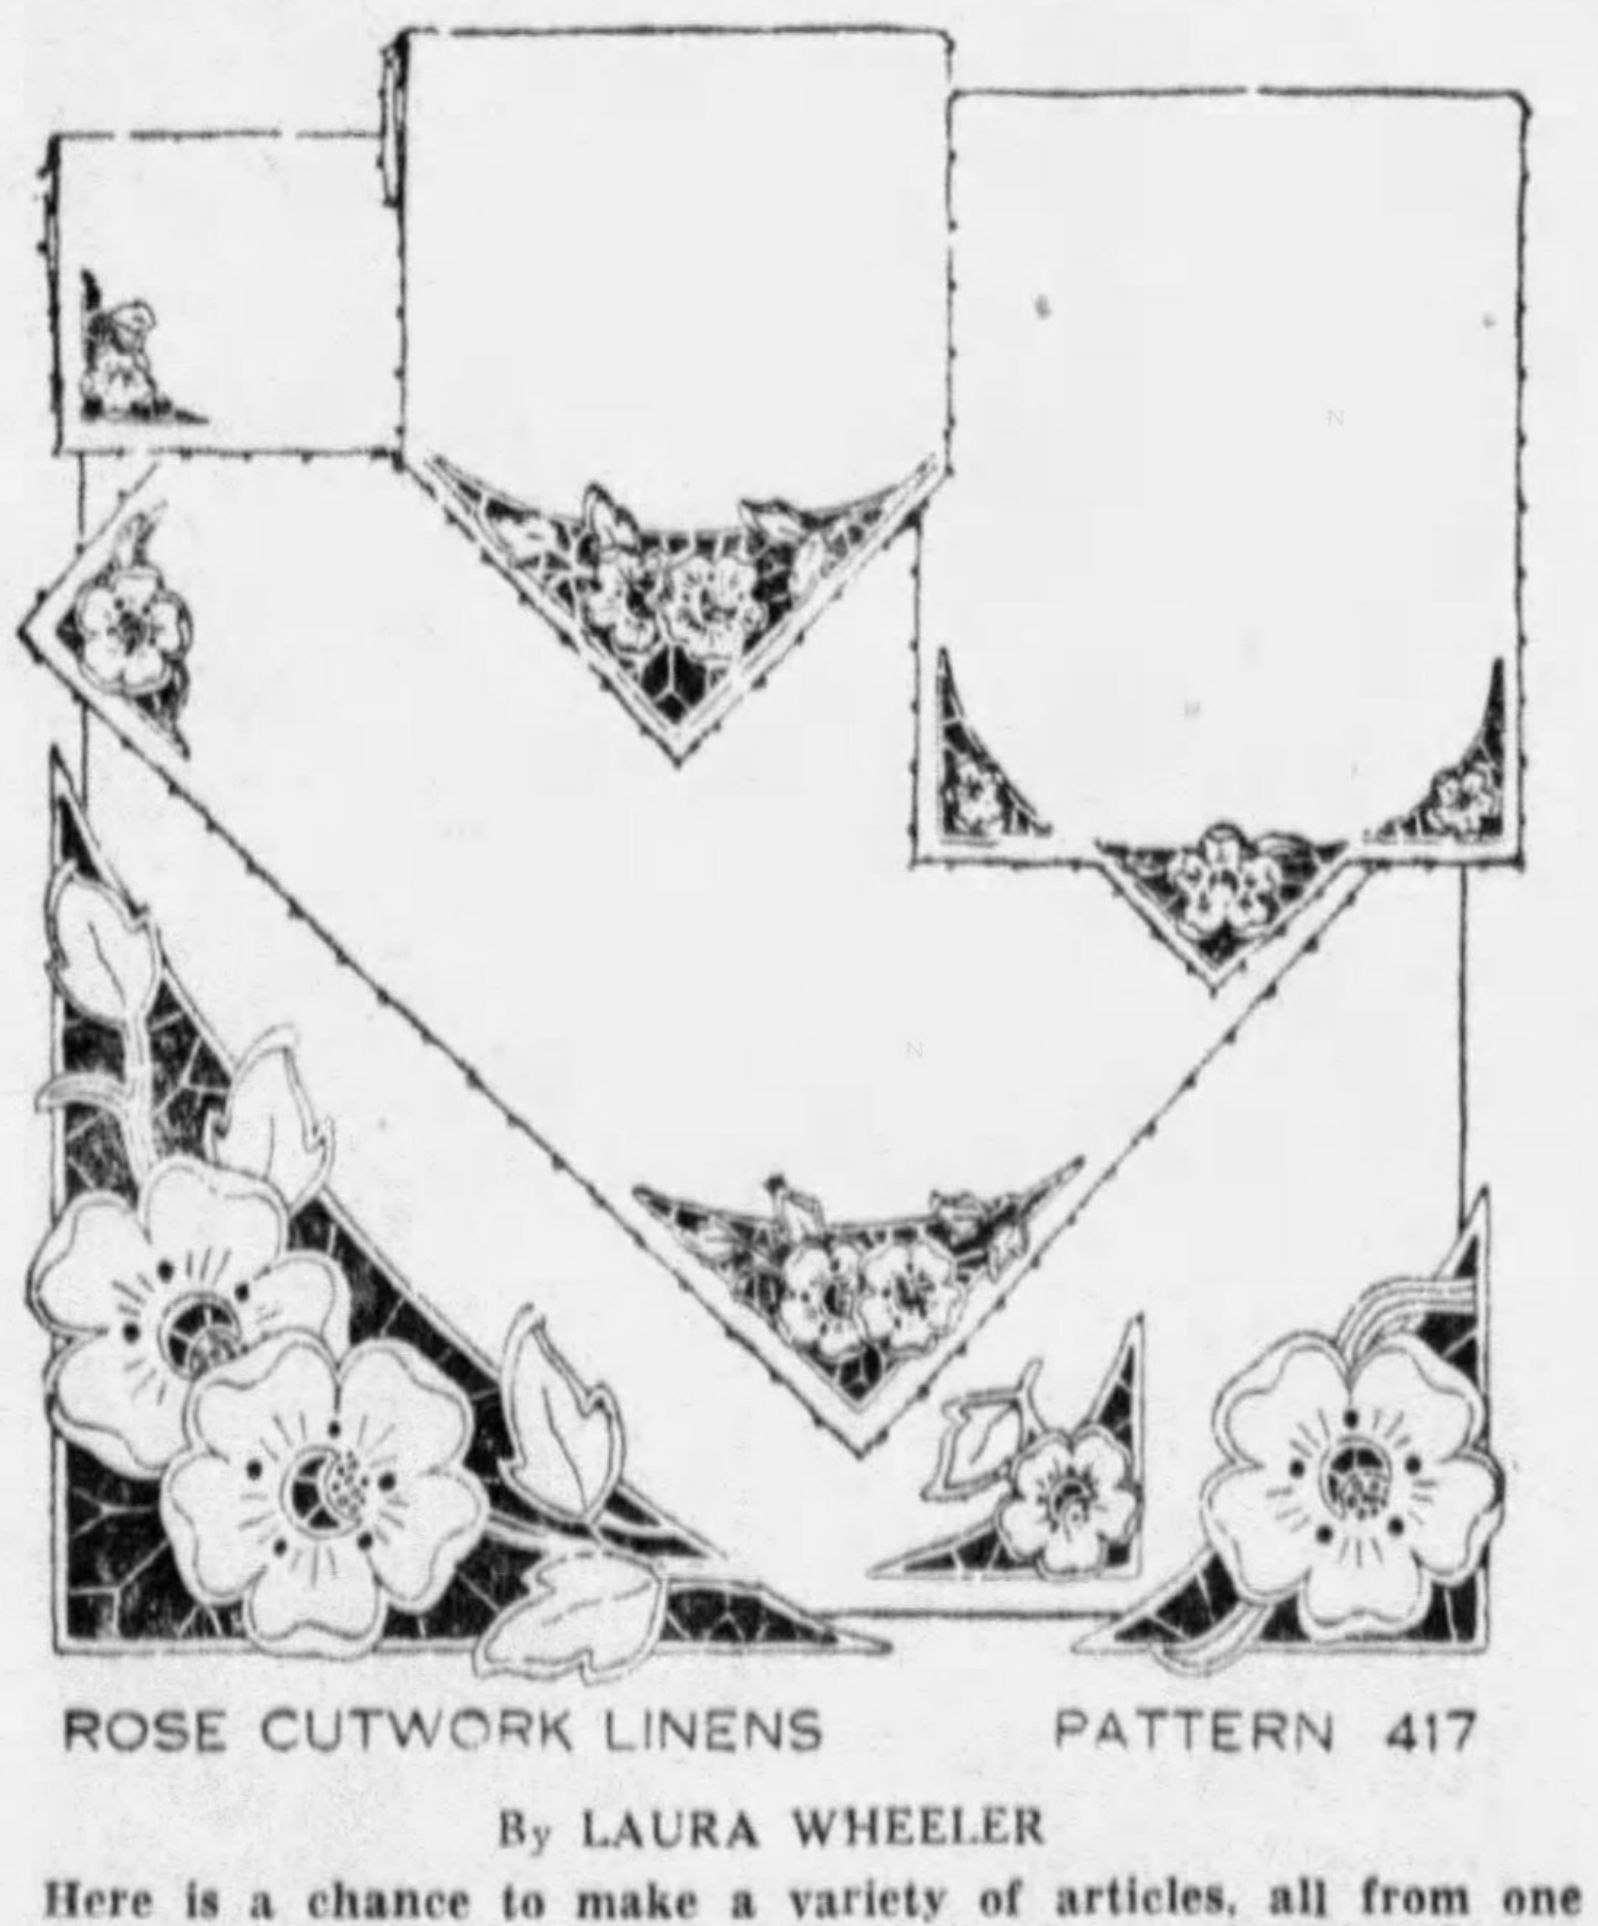
CUTWORK ENHANCES LINENS



ROSE CUTWORK LINENS PATTERN 417

By LAURA WHEELER

Here is a chance to make a variety of articles, all from one pattern, and in one of the most decorative forms of embroidery—cutwork. Scarfs in white or color, in-between cloths, tea cloths, towels, pillows, are a few of the things that can be made from this collection of motifs. Cutwork is always in good taste and has earned its popularity, for it is a simple form of embroidery, most especially with the illustrated directions that go with the pattern. If you prefer, the design may be carried out in outline and running stitch.

Pattern 417 comes to you with a transfer pattern of two 8½-inch corners, three 4½-inch corners, and six 3-inch corners; detailed instructions for doing cutwork, and suggestions for applying the motifs.

Send 10 cents for this pattern to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth avenue, New York City.

Facts About "Spotted Fever"

Rocky Mountain spotted fever is an infectious disease, but fortunately not commonly met. Until recently it was found only in the Rocky Mountain area in the United States. Idaho and Montana reported the largest number of cases.

Dr. Copeland

Not so long ago a few cases of this mysterious disease were discovered in North Carolina, Virginia and Pennsylvania. It wandered away from its original home.

A recent report regarding it was made by the United States Public Health Service. It called attention to the appearance of the ailment in certain sections of the eastern states, where it differs somewhat from the form found on the other side of the Rocky Mountains. It is believed that the eastern type of spotted fever is not as serious as the western type. Both closely resemble typhus fever, and in many instances they are mistaken for this disease.

The report states that the western type is believed to be transmitted by a species of the wood tick. But there is evidence that in the East it is transmitted by the American dog tick.

The wood tick is an insect that lives on blood. It clings to the skin of man and cattle, appearing in the early spring when the snow melts on the mountain sides. Because of the habits of the wood tick, the disease it carries is most frequent in spring and early summer.

As I have suggested, the symptoms of Rocky Mountain spotted fever closely resemble those of typhus fever. The victim complains of chill, high fever, severe headache and pains all over the body. As a rule there is a reddened rash over the skin and on the lining of the mouth. The sufferer is extremely restless and unable to sleep.

A skin eruption appears about the third day after the onset of the fever. The skin becomes mottled, giving the patient a "spotted" look. The rash first appears on the wrists, ankles and back and soon covers the entire surface of the body.

Though most of the cases are of a mild nature, severe epidemics of Rocky Mountain fever sometimes occur. For many years little was known about it. Our present knowledge concerning this disease, as well as the preventive measures that we now have at our disposal, are only of recent date.

As yet, no specific cure has been discovered for this baffling disease. There is reason to hope that the capable research bureaus of the public health service will soon discover a cure for this strange ailment.

Recently a vaccine has been developed and it is expected it will be of great benefit in the control and prevention of future serious epidemics. It is given to all individuals exposed to this disease. Already it has been successfully used as a preventive measure against this unpleasant ailment.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Shower

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My friend thinks that a bride who is going to have a large church wedding should not have a shower as it is incorrect etiquette. I think that it is perfectly all right for the bride-to-be to have a shower. I have never heard that a shower is improper under these conditions, and I would like your opinion. E. T.

There is no rule or even suggestion about the giving of showers that would make the giving of a shower incorrect when the bride-to-be is planning to have a large church wedding. I can't see what difference this would make. There are many instances in which the giving of showers is not in good taste, but these are always obvious ones, such as the giving of a series of showers by close relatives of the bride-to-be.

The Formal Dinner

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—At a formal dinner should buttered rolls be served, or shoud bread be served and the butter passed?

2—Should there be bread and butter plates?

3—Should the candles be lighted?

4—Should the napkin be placed between the knife and fork, or next the fork?

5—Are place cards necessary?

6—Should there be individual salts and peppers?

7—If cocktails and appetizers are served in the living room on large trays, what sort of napkin should be used, if any? N.

1—At a strictly formal dinner, butter is not served at all. If the dinner is of informal nature, small buttered rolls may be passed, or bread and butter plates may be placed when the table is being set, butter placed on them, and bread passed later.

2—At strictly formal dinners bread and butter plates are not used. But nowadays there are very few "strictly formal" dinners, and we see bread and butter plates oftener than formerly. And they certainly are convenient, not only for holding the bread and butter, but for other food accessories, such as olives, radishes and celery.

3—Yes, the candles should be lighted, just before the guests enter the dining-room.

5—Place cards are not necessary, but for a dinner of any size they are extremely convenient.

6—Usually there are not individual peppers and salts, but there is a set between two places. If the table is set for four, the sets may be placed diagonally across opposite corners.

7—Very small napkins, of the size known as the "cocktail napkin." Often they are not more than three or four inches square.

Thoughts While Waiting for an Escort

This date will be like any other date,
This man, like any man at all, I know;
They say that all things come to them that wait,
But as for me I have not found it so.
I have not found it so; it seems to me
It is my lot to try to lose my heart
To someone "diff'rent"—who turns out to be
The last man's replica and counterpart.

His counterpart in ev'ry last detail . . .
There is no hope; oh, why this futile fuss?
This endless longing is of no avail;
I am no fool, I know it will be thus.

I know it will be thus—but all day long
I've prayed that just this once I may be wrong.

Broadway's Like That

Walter Futter, the producer of good movies, relates it himself. One of those typical Broadwayites, trying to impress others in a lobby, introduced Futter to two old gentlemen, who mattered long ago.

But you'd never know it from the way the introductions were set forth.

"I want you to meet Walter Futter," said the introducer; "he's the man who produced 'Africa Speaks,' 'India Speaks' and oh, so many movies."

In Rebuttal

Form of Criticism

Bill Halligan, one of the gayer guys on this Artery of our, often keeps his girl worried. The other night, frixample, when he didn't show at dinner time and it was long past midnight, she phoned his favorite speakeasy:

"Is Bill there?" she asked. "You know, Bill Halligan?"

"Are you sure?" was the retort, "did you look under ALL the tables?"

Heheheh

George White, the producer of so many good "Scandals," signed with a Hollywood firm recently, but he still is in town readying a revue for the road. Arch Selwyn, a competitor and heckler, encountered White last night:

"I thought you were going to Hollywood?" said Selwyn. "When do you expect to shoot?"

"The first time," said George, "they don't pay me."

Pun My Soul!

Observation

Perhaps no other line has been used so much in movies, plays and revues as, "Oh, come now—pull y'self together." Some of us wondered when an author would figure out a line to replace it.

Nifties

In the Izzy Elinson manner: A friend of mine is just getting over the shock of the Wall street crash. He can eat spaghetti now without trying to read the stock quotations . . . I hear that next week our Mayor is going to present the gold key to the city—to the nearest pawnbroker . . . This season New Yorkers seem to be specializing in giving Senators a beating . . . I see where an expedition has set out to bring up gold sunk at the bottom of the Atlantic. Aw, that's too easy! Why don't they try to get back the gold we've sunk across the Atlantic?

Then there's the feller who hasn't even had an interview for so long, that when a boss finally asked him to leave his name and address—he'd forgotten it!

Opinion

Martin De Haan relates this one on a Hollywood producer, who, weary of paying a writer a huge wage with no results, gave him a hint of his dissatisfaction.

"I tell you," said the writer, "this time I've something different—the finish is great!"

Character

The racetrack people know him best by the name of "Avisack," one of the shrewdest handicappers at the Coney Island track. His record, they say, is picking 98 winners out of 242 selections (never done before or since on a Pari-Mutuel track).

So keen is his judgment on what horse will win that robbers broke into his hotel room in Florida last year and stuck pistols at his head.

"Okay, okay," he stuttered, "there it is over there on the dresser—$110 and my watch."

"Who wants that?" was the reply, "we want your figures for tomorrow!"

Which he gave them—five out of seven races winning.

In Other Words

Broadway's a dippy place. When you feed sugar to a horse people stare at you and call you a nut. When you put sugar on a horse—you're a smart guy.

Anecdote

"And don't worry," he comforted, "I've done 38 of them and never lost a case."

Reaching under his pillow, Mizner brought out a roll of $1,000 and handing it to Monte, said:

"Take this down to the poolroom and see what odds you can get me that I don't break his run."

Oop!

Among other things, the late Ring Lardner was expert at stifling people who got on his weary nerves. There was the time at the Friars Club when a newcomer watched Lardner slump in a chair for three hours—without saying a word—although the group about him were swapping fly talk.

"So," said the newcomer, "you're the great Ring Lardner. I've heard so much about how clever you were. Huh, I've just as much brains as you!"

"Well," drawled Ring, "why don't you take advantage of it?"

Davis Screen Has Middies

By ZORA D. UNKOVICH

The Navy is in town in a double bill today. While the middies are fighting for their alma mater in the Stadium, the Davis feature, "Midshipman Jack," presents their screen comrades in a straight-forward account of life at Annapolis.

Love—in a sane proportion for a change—friendship, loyalty and obedience constitute the background for an, at times, almost news-reelish account of naval academy life, which is refreshing after the recent local avalanche of "girl" pictures.

Bruce Cabot is the central figure in the tale of a midshipman who refuses to recognize the necessity of exactly obeying rules. His experiences with a group of plebes he commands are essentially human and are in no way tinged with the wildly extravagant escapades too commonly attributed to all phases of undergraduate life.

Girls, except for the "hop" scene, play a minor part in the picture. Betty Furness, as the commandant's daughter, manages to look extremely lovely whenever she appears, and the directors, apparently, do not demand too much else of her. Blonde Florence Lake, the only other young female with a talking part, giggles and chatters unceasingly as little Sally, the week-end pest.

Roommates in love with the same girl, the question of loyalty versus dismissal, uniforms galore, combine in a regulation plot to produce a happy ending in a fairly capable manner.

Especially good is the cocky Burns (Frank Albertson) who appeals instantly to the audience. His creed of obeying orders, even if it results in a humorous ducking, is well presented.

For shorts, the Davis provides you with an NRA sketch depicting economic events before and after March 4, and a silly yet clever cartoon, "The Fatal Note."

Helen Hayes Helps Foil Bad Wolf

By GEORGE SEIBEL

Mr. Seibel

Whether it was Helen Hayes in "Night Flight," or the return of the "Three Little Pigs" who foil the Big Bad Wolf, the Penn Theater had crowds yesterday from early to late. Helen Hayes does admirable acting in the unusual picture that portrays the tragedies and hardships of airmen who cross the Andes in the dark, but very likely it was neither Helen nor the aviation complex that drew the crowd—it was the Three Little Pigs of Walt Disney.

This silly symphony is just about perfect of its kind. For melodrama, genuine humor and lilting tunes, as well as admirable drawing, it is the highest achievement of the Shakespeare of Cartoon Comedy. And it has a fine moral, which cannot be said of every screen hit. Its success is a great compliment to the taste of picture patrons.

As for "Night Flight," this is a truly remarkable picture in various ways. The entire cast—including such stars as Helen Hayes, the two Barrymores, Clark Gable and Robert Montgomery—do some of their best acting. Especially Helen Hayes and John Barrymore, she as an air widow, he as a hard-boiled executive, play superbly. Irving Pichel also has a brief but splendid moment.

The story is about some serum for infantile paralysis, needed in Rio de Janeiro and having to be sent from Santiago de Chile. The airplane on the previous flight encounters storms and runs out of gas—the flight ends in tragedy. But the serum gets to the suffering child in time, so out of sacrifice comes life.

Football Film In Warner

By HI HOWARD

The Warner and Sheridan Square's new picture, "Saturday's Millions," is one football picture in which the hero doesn't win the ball game. Instead, he wins the girl, and regains the respect of his friends and teammates which his hard-boiled cynicism had lost him.

But there is little else about this picture to distinguish it. The plot is forced, and, as another "All-American" game show, it fails to equal such previous Universal efforts as "All-American" and "The Spirit of Notre Dame."

The pictures of the big game are good, but they are mere flashes, and the players spend most of their time, as they actually do in a game, lying on the ground with time out.

Robert Young is the greatest football player Western U. has had on its team in a long time. But three years of gridiron campaigning have sickened him of the whole business. He gets the professional outlook, and the night before the game he disillusions his sweetheart, Leila Hyams, who is the daughter of a millionaire railroad man. She leaves him in disgust.

The same night he breaks his "passing" hand walloping the husband of another girl in his life, who has handed him the double-cross. Angered, remorseful, in spite of pain, broken hand, injured shoulder, Young plays the next day.

The subsequent locker room scene is one of the best bits in the show. Young's teammates and coach congratulate him, and the boys seem to speak from their hearts.

But the picture also contains one more proof that the movie makers still don't know anything about the newspaper business. A girl reporter and a photographer are interviewing Young. He refuses to talk, but says to his father, who has come all the way from Idaho to see his son play for the first time, "Come on, dad." The reporter and the photographer hear him, but they both walk away from the swell "feature story."

There are also a newsreel, singing comedy, and a Popeye cartoon in the Warner.

Alice Brady On Guard

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 15.—Alice Brady is wondering whether she is the victim of a practical joker or whether she is the first star to be approached with a remarkable proposition of kidnap insurance.

The actress has turned over to the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio police a letter and a picture she received in the mail at her Beverly Hills home.

The letter, signed and giving the address and telephone number of the sender, warns that anyone who can put their hands on $1,000 is a possible subject for abduction.

Alice, who was finishing up a new picture, "The Vinegar Tree," for M. G. M., is inclined to laugh the matter off, but just to be on the safe side, notified the studio police.

CAROLE LOMBARD OF 'WHITE WOMAN' SITS PRETTY FOR THE ARTY PHOTOGRAPHER

All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

You Never Can Tell

THE state in which the following story took place shall be nameless here. Besides, it doesn't really make any difference. Under the banner of Prohibition, it could have happened in almost any state in the Union . . .

Some years back, Big Mike O'Malley and Martin Moon had shaken hands on a deal. The deal was simple, and had been arranged in the best of political families. You are privileged to gaze back through the years as Big Mike and Martin Moon shake hands.

"Moon," says Bike, "ever since Tom Williams kicked in, I've been looking for a man like you. You're a pretty good lawyer, and a fine party man. And you can play dumb when you have to. I like that.

"I'm going to make you, Moon. You know my political power in this state and you know that, with me behind you, there is little that you can't accomplish.

"But you must always remember just one little thing. You're my man and, no matter what your position, you're taking orders from me. I can make 'em—but I can break 'em just as quickly. You understand, Moon?"

The other man nodded slowly. "I'm no fool, Mike," he smiled. "I want to get ahead, and this is my great chance. I understand—everything."

Big Mike O'Malley kept his word. At the very next election, Martin Moon—the people's choice!—was sent to the assembly. And dear Martin kept his word, too. All a bill needed for Martin Moon's sanction was one word from Mike O'Malley.

What these bills were for, and what they meant to the public, meant less than nothing to Mr. Moon. He was going to succeed, and the devil with the public. Under which motto, Martin Moon automatically became a real politician . . .

Some four years went by, and the name of Moon definitely meant something in the legislature. He was a convincing talker, and two or three really big bills had been credited to him. More, he was a good mixer. And in due time he was again seated with O'Malley.

"Moon," asserted the big shot, "you're doing okay. You're ready for something big now, and I'm tossing it right in your lap. I'm making you the candidate for district attorney in this city. Watch your step and you can't lose."

O'Malley knew whereof he spoke. One more popular bill, the nomination, a few good speeches, the backing of O'Malley—and Moon was swept into office. He was now the district attorney of a thriving American city . . .

What happened in that particular spot after that particular election was just too bad. If the criminal was a friend of a friend of O'Malley's you can be certain he was freed. But every time a poor sucker was convicted, the publicity reaches new heights.

Yes, sir, every day in every crooked way, Martin Moon was getting bigger and bigger. The governor's chair was possible in the very near future; very possible. One or two papers were speaking of it and, more important, O'Malley was speaking of it.

Things looked very rosy indeed . . .

I'm sorry I've written so much already, because subsequent events really demand more space. Doing the best I can, however, I must tell you that O'Malley rushed into Moon's office one morning and cried aloud that the gods had been unfair to him.

Joe Posito, of all people, had been arrested and charged with murder! Joe was the town's leading power in the underworld, and he controlled almost as many votes throughout the state as O'Malley did. This was one awful situation!

"We're on the spot, Moon," he almost wailed, "and just when the governorship would have been a cinch. Free Posito, and the newspapers will murder you. Convict him, and his mob will ruin our chances all during the campaign. No matter where we turn, we're licked."

"Take it easy, boss," he returned. "My plan is simple, and it's going to work. I'd rather have Joe Posito with me than all the newspapers put together. Newspapers can't steal elections. Posito can.

"Now listen. I, personally, am going to prosecute Posito. I'll get plenty of headlines on that, and they will help to offset the headlines when I lose. For I'm going to see that Posito beats the rap.

"I'll be a bust as a prosecutor. But I'll make a swell governor. Just wait and see."...

Mr. Martin Moon, district attorney de luxe, performed his statements to the letter. He personally handled the people's case against Joe Posito, and he made that gentleman seem anything but a murderer. He was a better counsel for Posito than the racketeer's lawyer. And every time he forgot to ask an important question, he knew he was that much closer to the governor's chair.

The case went to the jury, and the first ballot was eight to four for acquittal. Of the four who voted against Posito, two were doing so merely because of Posito's record, and could be easily swayed. But the other two were convincing talkers. This man should be found guilty, they argued, for the sake of the family, the city, the state, and all mankind.

They pleaded. They begged. They convinced. And the jury returned to the courtroom after 14 hours with a verdict of guilty!

As he listened to the news, Moon almost collapsed. He figured that he was ruined, and so did O'Malley. But strange things happen. Some four months later, Martin Moon was elected governor of his state. How? Why, it was very simple.

He was elected because of his fearless prosecution and conviction of that notorious racketeer, Joe Posito! . . .

Insults Joke In Variety Of Pitt

By WILLIAM T. SCHOYER

The cleverest bit in the Pitt's vaudeville offerings this week—and incidently the only one that doesn't run to music or dance—is Hilton and Garron's "Gab Fest." It's just a couple of girls who, in an insult-trading bout, admit they aren't so young. But insulting's no easy art, and they step into it with a finesse that would become a character sketch on the legitimate stage.

The featured act, Jack Shea's burlesque Ritzmore Orchestra, literally brings down the stage in an hilarious denouement of smashed chairs and musical instruments and wins an enthusiastic response from the house.

Also well received are Harry Pease and Edward G. Nelson, with scenes that formed the inspiration for their song hits—which of course they don't forget to sing.

Two tall-man acts, one of them synthetic, provide good laughs. Dick Nash and little Midgie Fately, in the first, do some energetic acrobatic dancing and joshing, with a rope dance thrown in. In the second the tall man, composed of two of the cast, appears to bulldoze a wrestling champion in the Frank and Pete Trado company's musical farce program.

There also are Paulo, Paquita and Menita, in a colorful Mexican dance and song piece, and Johnny Bryant in a whistling act.

The movie, "The Phantom Broadcast," is a rather appealing story of a crippled singer, whose "front," the man who takes the bows for him, almost ruins the life of the girl he loves.

Volcano Boils On Screen

THE GLOBE TROTTER

Pictures of the volcano, Krakatoa, situated in the Malay Archipelago, which blotted out 30,000 lives in 1883, again in violent eruption, are contained in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News with a graphic description by The Globe Trotter.

In the fight against sleeping sickness, 10 convicts on a penal farm in Parchman, Miss., risk their lives by permitting mosquitoes fed on victims of the recent St. Louis epidemic, to bite them. They will be recommended to the Governor for pardons if they win the fight against death.

With the end of prohibition only a few weeks off, views are presented of the conditions as they are today. There are scenes in some of the swanky speakeasies.

Spectacular Movie in Stanley

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

You'll have to hand it to the Warner Brothers again for a premier girl and music film. The reason—"Footlight Parade" spectacular photoplay now in the Stanley. It is just as dramatic, though not so romantic as "42nd Street," just as amusing and pleasing as "Gold Diggers," but is more spectacular than either. In fact, from the spectacular standpoint, it is what the movie boys, themselves, in their modesty, like to term a "sensational smash hit."

James Cagney earns himself a lot of new blue ribbons, laurel wreaths, bouquets, or what have you as a symbol of triumph, for his work in this picture. All the action revolves around him, and he spins around dizzily at top speed within the action. He is a director of musical shows down on his luck, whose wife heads for Reno just before he gets a big idea—a musical prologue a week. He gets headaches, and blonde-trouble, and treachery in his organization that benefits a rival and the return of his wife whe she hears he's in the money.

The spectacular part of the picture—and most of its music comes in the previews of thr prologues he has to show on single night in different theater to win a contract for a year work. To produce them witho secrets going to the opposition h has to lock up the entire orgar zation for three days. But, lad what a result! Yeh, maam!

These are the elaborate produ tion numbers surrounding t outstanding songs of the sho "By a Waterfall," "Honeymo Hotel," and "Shanghai Lil." T first two feature Dick Powell ar Ruby Keeler, while "Shangh Lil" features Miss Keeler ar Cagney, who finds himself acc dentally on the stage when t curtain goes up and has to through with it.

"By a Waterfall" introduces new element in ensemble techn water—water in falls and poc in which the girls disport in ev lutions shot from camera ang that produce surprisingly strik effects. The other two ha equally sharp tones in widely d ferent themes, and register alm as strongly.

PITT TRAINS GRID GUNS ON NAVY DREADNAUGHT

SPORT COMMENT

By James J. Long

City Leads in Football. Klein Deal Again Rumored. Mack Soon to Sell Star. Mayor Fights for Mamaux. Big Season at Fordham. Wash-Jeff Grid Family.

TODAY'S GAME TWELFTH FOR LOCAL FANS

If the country has any hotter football centers than Pittsburgh this season, they have escaped general notice. For number of college and professional games staged in the short period that has elapsed since the thud of the booted pigskin began to echo throughout the land in the campaign of 1933, this city leads all the rest. Though it is only October 14, and in some places the season is just being put under way by big college teams, Pittsburgh fans before nightfall will have seen no fewer than 12 collegiate and professional games. If that isn't a record, it ought to be.

John D. Holohan

Eight college and four National League pro contests will have been seen here before other cities are fairly started in the new grid season. John D. Holohan, graduate manager of Duquesne University's athletics, is a mile ahead of other college showmen in number of home games run off so far, as last night's event at Forbes Field was his fifth offering of the year to local football followers. Incidentally, in defeating Western Maryland College in that contest, 13 to 0, the Dukes kept up the record in another direction by making it five victories in a row, continuing their impressive march. The Pittsburgh pros have been seen in four games, the Navy tilt today is the second home appearance of Pitt, while Carnegie Tech has played one engagement on native soil.

And there is no sign that the town has been over-footballed. Consistently large crowds, with a total attendance of close to 150,000, attests that public interest has kept up to a par with the unusual activities of the home teams. Supporting four big elevens, and patronizing three games per week, Pittsburgh surely has been the capital of football this fall.

SALE OF KLEIN TO CUBS RUMORED AGAIN

Rumors of a big deal that would send Chuck Klein from the Phillies to the Cubs have been heard at regular intervals during the last two years. Each time they proved groundless. Now they're going the rounds again, the latest story being that the Bruins will get the Quaker star in exchange for Babe Herman, Pat Malone and a bundle of currency. The Phil owners have said repeatedly that they might as well sell their ball club as to part with Klein, intimating that Chuck was not for sale at any price. Whether or not they have changed their minds remains to be seen.

One angle that leads some baseball men to doubt the yarn is the fact that Herman and Malone are high-salaried players and the Philadelphia club is said not to be eager to assume an increased overhead. In this connection, it may cost the Quakertown magnates a tidy sum to pay off Burt Shotton for the remaining two years of his contract, if, as is reported to be the plan, Shotton is dropped as manager for next season in favor of Catcher Jimmy Wilson, who is slated to go to the Phils from the Cardinals shortly in a trade which will send Catcher Virgil Davis to St. Louis.

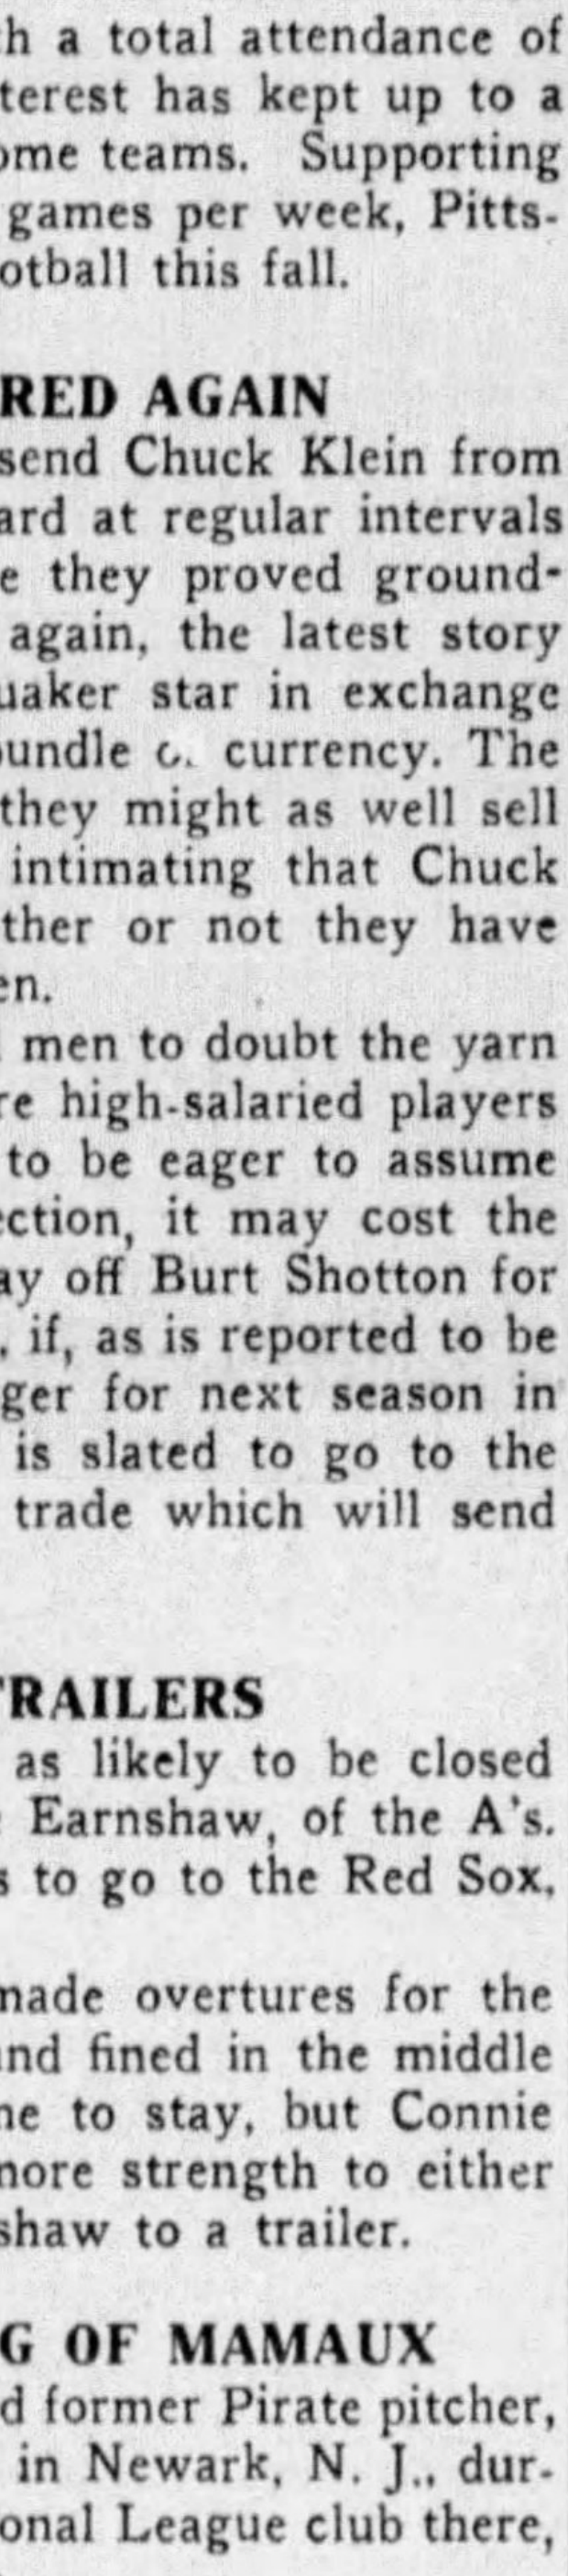
EARNSHAW GOING TO ONE OF TRAILERS

One of the player deals rumored as likely to be closed very soon is the sale of Pitcher George Earnshaw, of the A's. Reports from the front say Earnshaw is to go to the Red Sox, White Sox or Indians.

Both the Yankees and Senators made overtures for the big right-hander, who was suspended and fined in the middle of the 1933 season and later sent home to stay, but Connie Mack refused to consider adding any more strength to either of those clubs and prefers to sell Earnshaw to a trailer.

NEWARK FANS FIGHT DROPPING OF MAMAUX

Al Mamaux, native Pittsburgher and former Pirate pitcher, has made himself such a popular figure in Newark, N. J., during his term as manager of the International League club there, that the citizenry from the Mayor down has risen in indignant protest against the decision of Owner Jacob Ruppert to displace Mamaux as the leader of the Bears for next season.



Al Mamaux

Mayor Meyer C. Ellenstein has sent a strong letter of disapproval to Ruppert, requesting that he change his plans and retain Mamaux as manager of the Yankee farm. The Mayor wrote that the decision to remove the former Pittsburgher was "disapproved, if not resented," by Newark fans, adding that Mamaux has the good will and backing of every sporting fraternity in the city and is decidedly popular with the baseball public. Mamaux won the pennant and the little world series with the Bears last year, and also finished first by a margin of 14½ games for the regular season this year, only to lose out under the ridiculous play-off system.

MOUNTAINEERS IN ANOTHER TOUGH SPOT

None of the other district football teams found itself in quite so tough a spot today as did West Virginia University in meeting Fordham in New York. It has been just one jolt after another for the Mountaineers this fall. They hadn't won a game up to today and had scored only one touchdown in three engagements.

The Fordham game looked like a case of "worse and more of it." Jimmy Crowley inherited two full teams when he stepped into Fordham from Michigan State and he has molded the wealth of material into an eleven that some critics already pronounce the strongest in the entire East and one that may go through the season undefeated.

FOUR BROTHERS PLAY FOOTBALL FOR W. & J.

William D. Shilling, of the athletic department of Washington and Jefferson College, sends a letter telling of having read in the Sun-Telegraph a few days ago an article about a family of football players—the three Onders, of Jeannette. He says it struck him that Wash-Jeff can go that one better and present a family that has four football players in its tree—the Malcolms, of Indiana, Pa.

Harry Malcolm

Shilling recalls that Harry Malcolm played a tackle position for Andy Kerr at W. & J. in 1924-25-26. Harry was followed by Don, a guard, who played two years under Kerr and one season under the co-coaches, Bill Amos and Ray Ride. At present Douglass Malcolm is a junior halfback at Wash-Jeff, and as soon as he has recovered from an operation will be back in the Prexy fold. The fourth brother is enrolled at W. & J. as a freshman, and is a guard on the Plebe team. He is Tom Malcolm, a Kiski product, rated as possibly having the makings of the best performer in the entire family, which, the correspondent adds, is saying a lot.

"Yo, ho!" shout the Pitt Panthers as they haul and tug at what may, on the other end, be the Navy's anchor, preparatory to scuttling the fleet in today's football game at the Stadium. To which the Navy's answer obviously would be: "Well, just give them enough rope, and they'll hang themselves." Anyway, it looks like a close battle, with Navy touted as stronger this season than in many years and considered an outstanding contender for Eastern championship honors. This picture is by D. E. Benjamin, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph staff photographer.

XAVIER HOPES TO GIVE TECH REAL BATTLE

CINCINNATI, Oct. 14.—Carnegie Tech's classy football eleven, conquerors of Temple University, was all set this morning for the impending clash with Xavier University. Head Coach Howard Harpster brought his grid warriors into the city last night and judging by the appearance of the Pittsburgh boys they will make things quite interesting for the local lads this afternoon.

Xavier had hopes that Carnegie would be overconfident as a result of its fine victory over Temple last week. If the invaders go into the fight under such a mood they are apt to get quite a surprise. One year ago the home defenders were good enough to hold the foe down to 15 points and this season Xavier has developed a better scoring punch.

Upon his arrival here Coach Harpster said he was undecided as to the lineup he would use against the local collegians. It might and, might not be the same combination that went into action against Temple.

LEAGUE SOCCER TEAMS CLASH

By TOM BIRKS

The recently enlarged Central District Soccer League has only three games scheduled for this afternoon, which means the newly admitted clubs to the circuit will not swing into action until next Saturday.

Today Ambridge goes into Swissvale to clash with the Union Switch and Signal; Dunwick Rovers invade Aliquippa while the third game brings together Clan Douglas and Arsenal at Lawrenceville.

Pat O'Conner, local referee, has been awarded the Penn State-University of Illinois game at Bellefonte, on November 18.

The national challenge cup committee has ordered the first qualifying round games to be played October 28 and 29. Seven teams from this district have entered the competition, with six playing in the first qualifying round, and one team, Curry, drawing a bye.

TITLE MEETS AWARDED

Allegheny Mountain Association championship meets have been awarded the following organizations: Conley Club, senior volleyball; Boys' Club of Pittsburgh, junior volleyball championship, junior wrestling and junior weight-lifting; Milo Athletic Club, senior weight-lifting; East Liberty Y. M. C. A., senior wrestling.

EASY FOR UNIONTOWN

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Oct. 14.—(AP.)—A smooth-working Uniontown team smothered Morgantown yesterday, 33 to 0, the locals never getting further than the visitors' 14-yard line.

Four Methods Used To 'Dope' Horses

CHAPTER IV—Horse Doping

By FRANK G. MENKE

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—Narcotics are administered to horses in four different forms:

First—Liquid with hypodermic.
Third—Powder.
Fourth—Pills.

When liquid is used, either hypodermically or as a spray, it contains ingredients in keeping with the owner or trainer's idea as to which preparation will stimulate a horse to the most frenzied exertion and, thus, its presumed top speed.

The powder is used in the "dusting" process. The head of the horse is seized, his mouth opened and so held by assisting stable hands while the trainer "operates." The tongue is pulled forward, wiped dry with a cloth, and the drug, in powder or crystals, is shaken off a paper container far back onto the tongue. It is then rubbed briskly into the tongue. Narcotics used in powder form are absorbed with great rapidity, and, to borrow the horse dopers' expression, "hits in a hurry." It is almost as immediately effective as an injection into the blood through a vein, and, unlike an injection, leaves no possible blood mark, as when a "hypo" job is bungled.

"Speed Balls" Used

Dealers in drugs also prepare pills, which are called "speed balls." The head of the animal is tilted, the pills are dropped into the side of his mouth, his jaws are clamped shut and so held until it is certain he has swallowed the pellet. "Speed balls" are not very popular among owners and trainers because there is no certainty as to their exact potency. The transferring of a pill from stomach to blood stream is a slow process, and there is no accurate gauge as to how much drug will "hit the animal" because the uncertain digestive apparatus of a horse alone determines that.

Cocaine, so generally used to dope horses, is a drug extracted from the coca leaf, and is one of the most powerful stimulants known to chemistry. Morphine, once used quite generally as a neutralizer for cocaine, has been succeeded by heroin, a concentrated morphine, triple in power as compared with morphine.

Some trainers use heroin without cocaine, but heroin, like morphine, is never consistent in its action because, while it may rouse one runner to wild action, it will act like a sedative upon another.

Heroin Neutralizer

In almost all instances where men give terrific jolts of cocaine to horses they add a certain quantity of heroin. This is because they believe that, while heroin will not effect the insane running desire created by cocaine, it will act as a steadier for the animal and

RIVALS TO MEET AT LAUREL

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—(AP.)—George D. Widener's Jamestown and A. C. Bostwick's Mate, rivals as juveniles three years ago, will match strides again when they oppose six other high-class handicap horses in the one mile of the Laurel, feature event of the American turf program.

Financially the $5,000 Maryland Futurity, for which 11 two-year-olds foaled in the old line state have been named, outranks the $2,500 Laurel but the chief interest will be in the mile dash for older horses.

Mate, winner of only two races, one of them in 1932, since his successful juvenile and three-year-old campaigns, apparently has returned to the form that carried him to victory in the Preakness and Arlington classic. He won his last race within a fraction of a second of the track record.

As for Jamestown, the five-year-old son of St. James, has been out twice this year and in both races turned in spectacular victories over six-furlongs. The mile should not prove too far as the Widener speedster reeled off the eight furlongs in a fraction under 1:35 before the great Equipoise set the world's record of 1:34 2-5 last year.

COACH OF IRISH FAVORS OHIO AND PURDUE

By HEARTLY W. (HUNK) ANDERSON

Notre Dame Football Coach.

The big game of today in the Middle-West brings together Purdue and Minnesota at Minneapolis. The outcome of this game will have a distinct bearing on the Western Conference championship.

Hunk Anderson

Purdue, because of its great superior backfield and more seasoned line, should win by a small margin. Bernie Bierman will rely largely on sophomore talent, but he has some very fine second-year men who, playing the spirited defensive game characteristic of Minnesota's large teams, should hold Purdue to a small victory margin. There is a chance that Francis Lund, Minnesota's outstanding back, will break up the ball game, but Purdue can match his exploits with a "twelve-threat" backfield containing Fred Hecker, Duane Purvis, Jim Carter and Paul Pardonner.

OHIO STATE STRONG

Northwestern will attempt to make a comeback in its game with Stanford at Evanston. I pick Stanford to win this game because Coach Tiny Thornhill has the nucleus of a fine line, and a great set of sophomore backs. Last year's Stanford freshman team defeated Southern California's yearlings.

I pick Ohio State to beat Vanderbilt because the Buckeyes are stronger and Vanderbilt is apparently weaker than in 1931, when Vandy won a thrilling 26-to-21 game. Sam Willaman has a fine line and all the backfield material any coach could hope for at Ohio State. Vanderbilt was tied by Oklahoma in its opening game, and apparently is not up to par.

CHICAGO FACES TEST

Chicago, under Coach Shaughnessy, promises to be much better than in recent years, but will have a real test in its game with Washington, of St. Louis. Both are sophomore teams, but Jimmy Conzelman has had an advantage of one year in organizing his team. This is Clark Shaughnessy's first year at Chicago after a brilliant career at Tulane and Loyola.

Chicago's hopes largely are built around Jay Berwanger, fast, shifty 200-pound back, who did great things last year as a freshman. This will be a nip-and-tuck game and can go either way.

Entire Fleet To 'Hear' Pitt Game

By HARRY KECK

Sports Editor.

The play-by-play story will be telegraphed to the Naval Department in Washington by Walter Aamold, gymnasium officer and publicity chief of the Middies, and from there will be radioed to the ships. This is done on every Navy game, and Aamold, in addition to being in charge of the sending end, has the extra task of spotting, from the press box, the Navy players who fail to get their men in tackling or fail to function properly in interfering or in any other phase of play.

How'd you like to trade jobs with Mr. Aamold?

One cannot read through the chapters of Frank G. Menke's expose of horse racing conditions in the United States, having to do with the doping of the thoroughbreds to engineer betting coups, without feeling that the people who bet on these races at a distance from the tracks, or even on the scene, are a prize collection of saps.

Throughout Menke's well-authenticated story runs the history of case after case of abuse of the fine racing animals, with the public betting its money blindly on the "form charts," which mean nothing when heroin and other drugs are invoked to make past performance information worthless.

It is said that in the average eight-horse race only three horses are trying, and they are trying because they have been hopped up before the race to make them run faster. The other five don't figure because they have not been readied.

It will be amazing if a complete housecleaning does not come from this expose, which is being published in the Hearst newspapers throughout the United States. If the so-called Sport of Kings is as brutal and as crooked as is indicated by these revelations, the world will be better off without it. Read the fourth chapter of this interesting series today. Another appears tomorrow. There are 14 instalments in all. If you are one of the sucker bettors, you have an eye-opening shock coming to you.

ANDERSON'S CHOICES

Purdue over Minnesota.
Ohio State over Vanderbilt.
Stanford over Northwestern.
Wisconsin over Illinois.
Michigan over Cornell.
Notre Dame over Indiana.
Missouri over Kansas State.
Marquette over Mississippi.

TARS REAL PERIL IN STRUGGLE AT STADIUM

first since 1916, when Pitt won by a 20-to-19 score. The Panthers won three of the four games of the series, the first contest resulting in a tie.

MIDDIES FORMIDABLE

During the past few years, the Tars have been pretty well kicked around by all caliber of opposition. They've won few major games and have been beaten by some amateurish opponents, but this year Rip Miller, the former Notre Dame star, appears to have a real football team. It is the most experienced squad the Sailors have boasted for a long time; has as many individual stars as they've seen at the Academy for a decade and possess both punch and defensive strength.

At that, it may be leaning backward a bit to rate the Sailors on even terms with the Panthers, who are no small potatoes in a football sense themselves. Pitt hasn't had to show anything but its uniforms in the two games played to date with Wash-Jeff and West Virginia. The Panthers are heavy, fast and experienced and have what ever advantage is to be found in playing in their own back yard. Pitt ought to win today's game and by a fairly comfortable margin and in these days, most any margin is a comfortable one.

The starting Navy lineup, subject of course to change at the eleventh hour, will have Holy Lee at quarterback, Borres and Bamberger at the halves and Clark at fullback.

On the line, Capt. Hugh Murray and Dornin will be at the terminals. Brooks and Clark at the tackles and Zabriskie and Burns flanking Harbold, the hefty center.

Gordon Chung-Hoon, the Hawaiian, a capable passer and ball toter, is not likely to see much service today, due to slow recovery from a recent operation.

PANTHER LINEUP INTACT

Pitt's starting lineup will be the same as usual, with Skladany and Rooker at the wings; Walton and Meredith at the tackles; Hartwig and Onder at the guards and Nick Kliskey back at center. In the backfield, Hogan will run the team from quarterback, with Howdy O'Dell at left half, Mike Sebastian at right half and Izzy Weinstock at fullback.

Pitt will have a big edge in weight, especially in the backfield, where Hogan alone will weigh as much as the entire Navy quartet. Well, almost as much, if you have to be so preceise. The Panthers' advantage on the line will not be quite so great, but it will be sufficient.

Pitt expects the Navy to pass 'em to death and the Tars are looking for Pitt to overpower them with running plays. Wouldn't it be funny if the situation were to be reversed?

The attendance is not expected

Referee—W. H. Friesell, Princeton. Umpire—Dan B. Daugherty, Wash-Jeff. Head linesman—Earl Cavanaugh. Field judge—H. O. Dayhoff, Bucknell. Time of quarters—15 minutes.

It was Friday the Thirteenth with a vengeance for the footballers of Western Maryland. They were defeated 13 to 0 last night by Duquesne's fast traveling Dukes and were out-first-downed, 13 to 0, although they put up a valiant battle against superior odds.

Fighting from start to finish, the Green Terrors, ably coached by Dick Harlow, held the Dukes at bay in the first and third periods, but had their goal line punctured by touchdowns in the second and fourth. The triumph was the fifth in a row for the locals and marked the second defeat out of three starts for Western Maryland. Two years ago, the teams fought to a scoreless tie here. A crowd of about 10,000 witnessed the clash.

RESERVES START

Coach Elmer Layden, of the Dukes, started his second stringers against the visitors and kept them in the action throughout the first period. Superior punting gave the locals a big edge during the early action and kept the play well within Western Maryland territory. Just as the period ended, Vidoni, Duquesne tackle, broke through a blocked punt, recovering on the Western Maryland three-yard stripe.

The Terrors held and forced the Dukes to punt as the second quarter got under way, but taking the ball on the visitors' 43, the Dukes drove to the 19, alternating a brisk running attack with a forward passing game. On fourth down, Al DeLuca, regular Duquesne halfback, faded far back and tossed a pass to Zaninelli, the fullback, for the touchdown. Zaninelli added the extra point with a placement goal.

Later in the quarter, Western Maryland took the ball on downs on their own five-yard line, when another Duquesne touchdown seemed imminent.

The third quarter was scoreless, although the Dukes threatened once when they advanced to the Western Maryland 24.

DeLUCA SCORES

Early in the final period, Duquesne got a break when the Terrors lost the ball on downs on their own 31. DeLuca and Zaninelli alternated in toting the ball to the seven-yard stripe, from which position DeLuca took it over. Zaninelli's try for the extra point with anotoher placement goal was wide.

The Dukes piled up 13 first downs to none for the Terrors and completed seven out of 17 passes. Western Maryland attempted six heaves, completed none and had two intercepted.

The defensive play of the Western Maryland ends, Blissman and Shilling, was outstanding, Blissman especially turning in a fine game. Shepherd, the Southerners' fullback, performed in creditable manner. Both on the attack and defense.

Ailing Pirates Leave For Green Bay Tilt

It was a crippled squad of Pittsburgh Pirates that entrained this morning for Green Bay, Wis., where it will play the Green Bay Packers in the first game of the season away from home for the local National Professional Football Leaguers.

Three star backs, Angelo Brovelli, Tony Holm and Elmer Schwartz, and Artman, the tackle, were left behind. Holm has a bad foot, Brovelli an injured leg and Schwartz a hurt shoulder. George Shaffer, the quarterback, who was released a week ago, has been re-signed to fill in the gap. Artman has aggravated a hand fracture.

Temple Squashes Haskell Indians

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 14.—(AP.)—A fighting, smashing Temple eleven came back into its own last night, and, with power in its drive and deception in its attack, gained "sweet revenge" on the Indians from Haskell Institute, by a score of 31 to 0.

A week ago, Glenn (Pop) Warner's Temple men were slow and unimpressive and lost to Carnegie Tech by a wide margin. Last night they mingled a superb combination of team play and a driving brand of force to make five touchdowns and an impressive comeback in the gridiron wars of 1933.

MAZZEI IN LONG RUN

CHICAGO, Oct. 14.—(AP.)—Juan Zabula, the Argentine runner, will line up with 25 others today in the National A. A. U. 30,000-meter championship at the Century of Progress. His opponents include Anthony Mazzei, of Pittsburgh; Joseph J. Wiley, of Wilmington, Del.; Alfred W. Snyder, of New Castle, Pa., and William Greig, of Jeannette, Pa.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: A RECORD STUDENT—Dr. Felix E. Etchegoyen, while studying at the Federal Law School in Buenos Aires, Argentina, in 24 months of intensive study completed a six-year legal course, a two-year diplomatic course and all the studies required for a consular career. During these 24 months, ending in July, 1915, Dr. Stchegoyen studied 15 hours a day, including Sundays and holidays. This great achievement is rendered even more remarkable by the strict requirements obligatory in Latin-American schools. The suggestion, supported by proof, was submitted by Dr. Etchegoyen's son, Senor Felix P. Etchegoyen of Gualeguarychu, Entre Rios, Argentina. BOTTLE TREES—The Australian Bottle Tree (Sterculia Rupestris) is so called from the bottle-like shape of its trunk. The branches grow from the mouth of the bottle. The wood is brittle and short, but the stems contain much water, which is eagerly sought by natives and travelers.

TOMORROW: THE PROGENITOR OF CRIME

W. & J. BEATEN BY DETROIT

DETROIT, Oct. 14.—Fighting a stubborn foe which knew the fundamentals of football, the University of Detroit Gridders had to take to the air last night to achieve a victory over the peppery gridders from Washington and Jefferson College. The aerial attack of the home eleven appeared to take the Presidents off their guard as it culminated in two touchdowns. The score was 14 to 0.

The invading hosts from Western Pennsylvania threw a big scare into 14,000 Detroit supporters as they outplayed the locals in the first period. The Titans resorted to a passing attack in the second period. Halfback Nott, standing on his 33-yard mark hurled a long pass to Reisterer, who after taking the 30-yard shot, carried the ball through a broken field for the remaining yardage.

The Presidents threatened twice in the second period when they reached the foe's 10-yard line on line smashes and then attempted a placement kick that failed. Later Hardy's pass over the goal line to Headley was knocked down and Detroit took the ball on downs.

There was no scoring in the third period, Wash-Jeff taking the offensive in a clever manner when the fourth quarter got under way. The Presidents tried the short passing attack but Hardy eventually threw one which Lutz nailed on the W. and J. 39-yard line. The receinver eluded several tacklers and raced to the foe's six-yard marker before he was dropped. After Nott had made two yards, Lutz took the ball over for the second touchdown. Nott place-kicked the single points.

The lineup:

ZIVIC BROTHERS WIN

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 14.—Fritzie Zivic, of Pittsburgh, knocked out Joe Pimenthal, of Los Angeles, in the fourth round of their bout here last night. Eddie Zivic, a brother, won a decision over Sibian Elloriga in a four-round bout.

AMBRIDGE HIGH, BUTLER FACE REAL TESTS

By JULIUS LEVIN

Two important class A games, both of which involve contenders for the championship, head an important schedule of scholastic fotoball contests today.

Ambridge High School, defending champion in the class A division of the W. P. I. A. L., faces one of its hardest tests of the season this afternoon when Beaver Falls is met at Ambridge. Beaver Falls was in the running for the title until Thanksgiving Day in 1932, New Brighton eliminating the Tigers in their annual holiday tussle at Beaver Falls.

TIGERS POWERFUL

Although Beaver Falls' chances for the crown this season were all but ruined as a result of a scoreless tie with Ellwood City last Saturday, the Tigers still loom as one of the strongest teams in the class A division.

Out at Butler, Regis Heinzer's contenders for the crown now held by Moe Rubenstein's Bridgers, go after victory No. 4 by opposing Tarentum. Butler is tied at present with Ambridge in Class A triumphs, each having scored three.

Two members of the City League are involved in out-of-town games, Taylor Allderdice being the attraction of Wilkinsburg, while Peabody invades Canton to engage McKinley High School, of that city.

Followers of the Class AA group have three games on the program today. Norwin plays at Greensburg and Clairton is the attraction at Charleroi in afternoon frays, while Jeannette faces Monessen in a night duel at Monessen.

East Huntingdon, making a bid for the Class B title, faces a real test in its clash with Youngwood, which was eliminated last week by Belle Vernon.

CITY TEAMS IN TIE

Staging a scoreless battle of many thrills, Westinghouse and Schenley furnished a high spot in the local W. P. I. A. L. play yesterday afternoon. The Westinghouse boys had the ball on the enemy's one-yard line when the curtain fell. Schenley gave the Silver Lakers a scare in the third period when it carried the ball to the three-yard line. Westinghouse led in first downs, 12 to 3.

South High had to step on the gas to take the measure of a scrappy Fifth Avenue eleven. Fifth held the South boys to a scoreless deadlock in the first half, the victors making single touchdowns in the third and fourth periods. Carrick High romped away with a 6-to-0 success over Allegheny in a well-played game. Carrick made its touchdown in the last quarter. Oliver scored a touchdown in the second quarter to achieve a 6-0 triumph in a hot battle with Langley.

NEW CASTLE COPS

Mt. Lebanon went out to Shady Side Academy and returned with a 14-0 victory; Edgewood had no trouble in ringing up a 20-0 advantage over Brentwood; St. Justin took a 13-6 game from St. Joseph; Stowe Township had to hustle to overcome Carnegie, 6-0; Scott High landed its fifth class A success in subduing Midland High, 27-13, while Duquesne eliminated Hurst from the title chase, 7-0.

In the sectional territory, New Castle showed a lot of class as it smacked down Washington High, 13-0; Sharpsville trounced Farrell, 25-0; East Liverpool trimmed Salem, 26-13; Monongahela overwhelmed South Huntington, 45-0, and Freeport won a 6-0 victory over Mars.

PANTHERS SET FOR NAVY

to pass the 40,000 mark, although a good day may coax out 45,000. The fact that the regiment of midshipmen did not accompany the team has detracted somewhat from the color of the contest, but still it stands out as the big game of the day. Look for Pitt to win, maybe by a couple touchdowns, but count on the Sailors making an aggressive and never-say-die fight of it, from starting whistle to final gun.

Steele Flops Boesch In Philly Mat Tilt

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 13.—(AP.)—Ray Steele, 212, of Glendale, Cal., threw Paul Boesch, 203, of New York, with a crotch hold and body slam in 1 hour, 8 minutes, 49 seconds of the windup bout of a wrestling show tonight.

Dick Shikat, 225, of Philadelphia, pinned Wladek Zbyszko, 240, of New York, in 18:12 of the semi-windup with a flying headlock and body press.

Fight Results

At Philadelphia—Johnny Jadick defeated Stumpy Jacobs, 10 rounds; Kid Decker won by technical knockout over Johnny Craven, four rounds; Wally Novak defeated Jimmy Dunn, six rounds; Charley Loughran and Joe Duca, fought draw, four rounds; Tony Manos defeated Harry Jadick, six rounds.

At Syracuse—Mickey Serrian defeated Sammy Mandell, six rounds.

Barnum Gets All-America Rating

By CHRISTY WALSH

Member All-America Board of Football. (Reg. U. S. Patent Office.)

The World Series is over and football monopolizes the spotlight of the sport world. Last week saw a number of favorite teams dramatically upset and brought to light a number of new football personalities whose performance entitles them to All-America rating and will receive the customary Card of Merit from the All-America Board of Football.

The 10 outstanding players of the week:

1—HUPKE, Alabama. Zipp Newman, of the Birmingham News, rates Tom Hupke as a perfect guard in last week's game against Mississippi. He whipped out of the line with speed and power and raced down the field for tackles under many punts.

2—OFFENHAMER, Colgate. This sophomore discovery raced 95 yards for the longest runback of a kickoff made at Colgate in the past 20 years. He scored three touchdowns.

3—LANE, Princeton. Although against minor competition, this tackle stopped minor competition, this big tackle stopped line and his blocking and running were big factors in the Princeton offense.

5—LYONS, Indiana. Lou McKenna, St. Paul Pioneer Press, rates this Hoosier wing man All-America because he seldom was taken out of play and plucked and finally ran a Minnesota fumble 58 yards for the touchdown that gave Indiana a tie score.

6—BLOWER, California. Sid Ziff, Los Angeles Herald Express, rates this sophomore halfback All-America for all-round value. A triple threat star. His 13-yard run from punt formation provided the winning touchdown.

7—NESMITH, Kansas. This rangy halfback went through the Notre Dame line and around its flanks with regularity and was a factor in keeping the Irish on their heels.

8—BARNUM, West Virginia Wesleyan. Six feet tall, weighs 200 pounds, punts, passes, a hard line-smasher and a great defensive back. He dominated the entire game and kicked the field goal which beat N. Y. U.

9—LITTLEHALE, Maine. Three times he smashed the stubborn, heavier Yale defense on the one-foot line, finally carrying the ball across for a touchdown on his fourth attempt. His all-round work held Yale to a small score.

10—SAUER, Nebraska. This great fullback helped crush the University of Texas by making two touchdowns and stopping every Southern play aimed at the middle of the line.

GENEVA SMEARS WESTMINSTER

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., Oct. 14.—Geneva's followers today were convinced they had a good contender for the Tri-State Conference on top of their favorites' 20-to-0 success over Westminster on the home field last night.

The Beaver County boys did their most effective work through the air. Westminster offered a stiff defense in the first half and this part of the contest was almost over before Golly, standing on the enemy goal line, took a 23-yard pass from Grahame for the first touchdown.

The invaders threatened in the fourth quarter as they paraded down the field to the 15-yard line. At this point they tried to score by way of the air route, but Troiana intercepted a pass. Grahame then faked a kick and threw a pass to Robbins, who ran 35 yards for a touchdown. The other touchdown was made by Johnson late in the game. The ball-carrier broke through center for a 27-yard dash to the goal line.

Former W-J Star In Serious Smashup

CLEARFIELD, Pa., Oct. 14.—Robert Schreck, maintenance superintendent for the State Highway Department in seven Central Pennsylvania counties, with headquarters here, was perhaps fatally injured near Weedville, Elk Count, yesterday when in attempting to avoid hitting a number of school children on their way to classes, his car swerved into a culvert and overturned, crushing Schreck beneath it.

Examination at Clearfield Hospital, where he was brought, disclosed a broken hip, several broken ribs and possible internal injuries. Schreck is a graduate of Washington and Jefferson College and was named all-America guard by Walter Camp while starring on the college eleven.

Pittsburgh Golfer Loses to Mrs. Vare

HOT SPRINGS, Va., Oct. 14.—(AP.)—Edwin H. Vare, Jr., of Philadelphia, won the men's championship in the annual fall golf tournament at Hot Springs yesterday after Mrs. Vare, the former Glelna Collett, had won the women's title.

Mrs. Vare defeated Mrs. Beverly H. Shriver, of Pittsburgh, 6 and 5, but her husband had a harder job whipping John J. Hicks Kerr, of Richmond, 1 up.

Mrs. Shriver put up a courageous fight against her more talented opponent who was far superior in her wood play.

Newsies to See Pitt-Navy Game

Almost 300 newsboys, winners in a subscription contest, will be the guests of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph at the Pitt-Navy football game this afternoon and at a banquet in the Fort Pitt Hotel at 2 o'clock tomorroow afternoon.

Howdy O'Dell and Izzy Weinstock, Pitt stars, will be honor guests at the dinner, along with several other sports notables.

B. W. Bloom, circulation director, John L. Boyle and Harry Keck, sports editor of the Sun-Telegraph, and others will speak at the dinner.

MT. UNION LOSES

ALLIANCE, O., Oct. 14.—Mount Union bowed to Muskingum last night at the annual home coming. The score was 19 to 0.

HORSES DOPED IN BRUTAL MANNER

In the experimental days of stimulating horses, the first "medicines" used were caffeine, whisky and then strychnine. A great many horses were killed because of overdoses of the latter drug, which set the animal's heart to beating so wildly that, when the added strain was put upon it by exertion during the race, that organ simply collapsed and reduced, and renegade horsemen, searching for some drug more stimulating, yet safer than strychnine, decided upon cocaine.

Digitalis, coming more and more into use, steadies a wildly palpitating heart, but usually is added only to such mixtures as include heroin. Thus, owners and trainers of horses subject the organism of a race horse first to cocaine, the insanity-prompting stimulant, some of the frenzy so created by an addition of heroin, and then attempt to regulate a heart back to normalcy from the combined ravages of cocaine, heroin, strychnine, etc., by infusion of digitalis.

Nitro Still Mystery

Nitro-glycerin is something new. None of the trainers seem to know much about its power or its value as a stimulant. It still is an experimental compound. This is shown by the fact that while one "prescription," which called for two ounces of kola nut, five drops of digitalis, one-fourth grain strychnine, one and one-half grains heroin (and no cocaine whatsoever) merely included two drops of nitro-glycerin, whereas another "prescription" of eight grains of cocaine, one-half grain strychnine, two ounces kola nut and only one-fourth grain heroin, included the huge total of two and one-half ounces of nitro-glycerin.

Obviously, the best results are obtained with nitro-glycerin when a big quantity is given in conjunction with cocaine, and only a small amount where heroin content is large.

Whether nitro-glycerin, by itself, or in mixture with other drugs, is a stimulant remains to be established. Most horsemen are leaving the "laboratory work" to the other fellow, as is noted by the fact that nitro-glycerin is a content of only two of the score of prescriptions seized by narcotic agents.

Heroin Stimulant

Every trainer who dopes horses believes that his solution is the only effective one. That is why there are so many prescriptions, each differing radically from the other.

A well known writer on the narcotic subject said:

"A striking proof of the power of opium to put a demoniacal obsession into the blood occurs when it is given to race horses. Heroin so stimulates forces in the horse that every grain of energy in him is made twice as strong."

MARKET TAKES DIP IN QUIET TRADING

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—Stocks dropped in quiet trading during the first hour today. Utilities and a few scattered industrials maintained a steady tone while others, including metals and rails, eased fractions to more than a point. Oils suffered minor losses in light dealings.

American Telephone improved a fraction, while American Can, Consoliudated Gas and Johns-Manville held about unchanged. Homestake Mining sagged 5 points and recession of around a point or more were shown in Allied Chemical, Bethlehem, Baltimore and Ohio, Sears-Roebuck, Case, Western Union, Du Pont, National Distillers, American Smelting, Santa Fe, McIntyre and Dome.

The overnight news of the resignation of Germany from the League of Nations and the disarmament conference was of much interest to the financial district which saw in this development a further complication of the already mixed European situation. It was thought this turn of events would not particularly affect the recovery program in the United States. Bankers, however, were principally concerned because of the huge loans which the United States has in the Reich.

Industrialists were cheered by the weekly bank statements which showed a further rise of $40,000,000 in "all other" loans of reporting New York Federal Reserve members. In the past two weeks these loans have increased about $93,000,000. While the broadening of the "all other" loans item, which includes commercial lending as distinct from security loans, is seasonal in character, bankers saw in it an encouraging note because of the reversal of the trend of the past few autumns.

The sharp advance of the dollar in foreign exchange markets was halted in early trading when some of the more depressed European currencies steadied. The British pound sterling rallied 1 cent at $4.55 and the French franc was only slightly under its previous rate at 5.67½ cents.

SEASON'S LOW HIT BY GRAINS

CHICAGO, Oct. 14.—Wheat prices plunged down almost five cents a bushel today in the first instant of trading. Talk of important developments in regard to the United States monetary program was a leading influence.

Wheat, corn and oats all broke the season's low record. Opening 1⅞@4⅞ cents lower, wheat afterward fluctuated violently within the initial range. Corn started ¾@2¾ off, and subsequently recovered somewhat.

Wholesale expansion of stop loss orders was witnessed. Rallies in wheat prices were of brief duration, and with successive selling waves, all deliveries of wheat were later barely escaping contact with the extreme minimum quotations which exchange rules permitted for any one day.

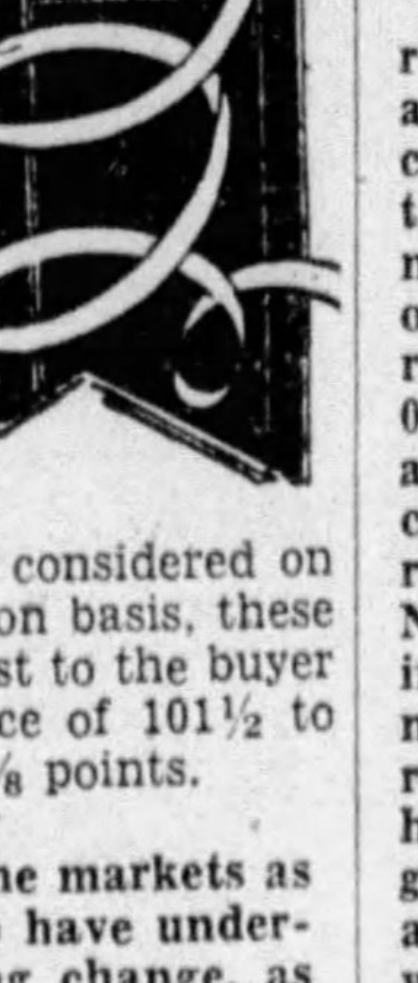
"Allowances" on New U. S. Offering Reduce Actual Price



One phase of the Treasury's bond offer to which little attention has been directed is the fact that cash subscribers will get their bonds as of October 15, but will not make payment for them until November 1. Thus they get interest at 4¼ per cent for 16 days, which dealers figure is eqivalent to a reduction of 4/32s on the price, of 101½. Moreover, the buyers will draw 4¼ per cent for the first year. Thus if the issue is considered on a 3¼ per cent coupon basis, these "rebates" cut the cost to the buyer from the stated price of 101½ to 100⅜, a saving of 1⅛ points.

The pattern of the markets as a whole appears to have undergone a far-reaching change, as recently held ideas on inflation have steadily faded. Wheat broke the limit yesterday under steady flow of liquidation, selling the lowest levels since last June. Silk broke some 75 points and cotton fell back $1 a bale or more notwithstanding the sustaining influence of the projected plan for making of loans on this year's cotton remaining on farms.

The Boston wool market is very slow but quotations on domestic wool are mostly very firm. Mills have apparently pretty well covered their orders by purchases of wool made in the past eight weeks and now are buying only small lots to piece out stocks on hand. Foreign markets are being closely observed for signs of changes in the trends of values aboard. Cable reports to private concerns indicate prices in Australian and South American markets are firmer than earlier in the week.

Eastern railway presidents yesterday reached no agreement on a reduction in the basic passenger fare, it was stated after a two-hour meeting at the Bankers' Club. A sub-committee, headed by F. F. Williamson, president of the New York Central, which has been considering the question of a cut from the standpoint of the eastern lines, made a "progress report" to the executives. The committee will continue its study and will report to the Presidents' Conference when it has reached definite conclusions.

A prolonged strike in the bituminous coal field caused a production slump of more than 3,000,000 tons during September as compared with August, the Department of Mines reported. Only 5,231,000 net tons of soft coal was produced during September compared with an August production of 8,696,000 net tons. Anthracite production during September soared 11 per cent. The production during that period amounted to 4,981,000 tons as compared with 4,396,000 tons in the previous month. Seventeen lives were sacrificed in the bituminous field as compared with 14 for August. Hard coal mines claimed 20 lives each month.

The Federal Reserve System reported its familiar $35,000,000 addition to the government security portfolio, again refuting the prophets who had foreseen more aggressive action in the open market campaign. Total reserve bank credit rose $28,000,000 and is now $243,000,000 above a year ago. Currency circulation had another seasonal rise, this time of $21,000,000. New York City member banks increased "all other" or commercial loans by $40,000,000 and reported a rise of $16,000,000 in holdings of securities other than governments. Security loans, and holdings of federal paper were both down.

Harris-Lawrence Planning Smoker

A get-together smoker and buffet luncheon is to be given by the Harris-Lawrence Company, Inc., to their various insurance agents and friends in the Amen Corner rooms, William Penn Hotel, Thursday evening, October 19. The hours are from 9 o'clock until midnight and some interesting entertainment is promised. It is to be an informal gathering of old and new friends, just for a good time. The officers of the company are: Senator Frank J. Harris, president; David L. Lawrence, vice president; James P. Kirk, secretary; C. T. Durham, treasurer; Eugene L. Connelly, John H. Harris and Leo G. Griffith, directors.

Steel Scrap Quoted 50 Cents Lower Here

Although the scrap market is entirely nominal in this district with no sales reported recently, No. 1 heavy melting is quoted 50 cents a ton lower with the range $12 to $12.50 per ton.

The new quotation is principally based on the sales of scrap by the Baltimore and Ohio and Pennsylvania Railroads, none of which brought bids of better than $12.25. Other grades are proportionately lower.

CORPORATE EARNINGS

Johns Manville Corporation and subsidiaries in the September quarter earned 42 cents a common share against $1.23 a share on the 7 per cent preferred in the quarter preceding, and net loss of $277,693 in the third quarter of 1932. Nine months net loss was $417,140 against net loss of $1,792,571 in the first nine months of 1932.

Marshall Field & Co. reports for the third quarter a net profit of $995,000 as compared with a loss of $1,709,800 last year. Net sales were $24,475,600, an increase of 51 per cent over the same quarter in 1932.

MORE RESERVE CREDIT OUT

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—(AP.)—The daily average volume of Federal Reserve Bank credit outstanding during the week ended October 11 was $2,452,000,000, an increase of $26,000,000 compared with the corresponding week of last year.

The Federal Reserve Board reported today that on October 11 total reserve bank credit amounted to $2,477,000,000, an increase of $28,000,000 for the week. This corresponds with increases of $44,000,000 in member bank reserve balances and $21,000,000 in money in circulation, offset in part by an increase of $32,000,000 in Treasury currency adjusted and a decrease of $5,000,000 in unexpended capital funds, nonmember deposits, etc.

Bills discounted declined $4,000,000 at all Federal Reserve banks. Holdings of bills bought in open market and of United States Treasury notes increased $5,000,000 and of Treasury certificates and bills $30,000,000.

BROKERS' LOANS DECREASE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—(AP.)—Loans to brokers and dealers held by New York City member banks amounted to $781,000,000 during the week ended October 11, the Federal Reserve Board reported, representing a decrease of $9,000,000 for the week.

The loans for the same week of last year totaled $433,000,000.

The detailed distribution of the loans for the three weeks dealt with was given by the board as follows (000 omitted):

	Oct. 11.	Oct. 4.	Oct. 12, 1932.
For own account	$664,000	$677,000	$410,000
For account of out-of-town banks	114,000	107,000	17,000
For account of others	3,000	6,000	6,000

September Cotton Consumption Down

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—The Census Bureau reports 499,488 running bales of lint cotton were consumed in mills of the United States during September, comparing with 588,570 bales consumed in August and 492,742 in September, 1932.

Consumption for the two months ended September 30 totaled 1,088,056 bales, as against 897,230 bales consumed in the like period of the 1932-1933 season.

Cotton spinning spindles active during the month of September totaled 26,002,148, which compares with 25,884,704 active in August and 23,835,106 in September, 1932.

AMERICAN SMELTING

American Smelting & Refining Company, which resumed operations at its Leadville smelter August 28 on a 24-hour basis, has enough ore on hand to go through October and, with ore coming in as a result of increased mining activity, may continue through the winter on a full-time basis. The plant has been operating intermittenly during the past three years, but the recent impetus to gold mining has accelerated operations by 25% above a forecast made in July.

HOGS AND CORN CONSUMPTION

Overproduction of hogs in recent years, it is stated, has caused a considerable revision of the percentage of corn consumed. Nine out of every 50 bushels of corn grown in the period from 1910 to 1914 were fed to horses and mules; eight bushels to cattle and 18 bushels to hogs compared with seven bushels to horses and mules, 10 bushels to cattle and 21 bushels to hogs from 1924 to 1929.

BUILDING AND LOANS

A sizeable increase of investments in building and loan associations took place in July, sufficient to indicate that mid-summer was the upward turning point for these home financing institutions according to the United States Building & Loan League, national trade organizations of the 10,997 associations in the country.

SUGAR IMPORTATIONS

Sugar importations into the United States during the first eight months of the year, according to Lamborn & Co., Inc., sugar brokers, totaled 3,312,406 tons, raw sugar value, against 3,422,340 tons for the same period of 1932.

LOCAL MARKET LIST HOLDS STEADY

Securities on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange were nervous and hesitant in the short session today as the "big board" was forced to absorb additional selling brought out by a continued decline in the wheat market. Trading here was in light volume. Bids were scarce but there was a compensating absence of selling pressure which aided the list in holding near the previous day's levels. Pittsburgh Plate Glass reflected the general situation in a decline of almost a full point on a small trade.

The fuels held back and only a little business was transacted in that section. Utilities are among the issues in a position to benefit from a "sound money" policy such as the street seems to read into the administration's move to refunding the Fourth Liberty Bonds.

Pennsylvania Railroad Financial Position Shows Strength

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

INCREASED EFFICIENCY in operations has made it unnecessary for the Pennsylvania Railroad to buy any large amount of new equipment since the war and will make it unnecessary to buy any for some years to come. This was made known yesterday by an official of the road.

The equipment purchases made by the Pennsylvania in recent years have been confined to special types to meet changed traffic demands and to keep pace with new transportation developments. The road has not found it necessary to buy new cars of the standard types in any great number.

The explanation is found in the changed methods of handling traffic. Before the war an average of 15 days was required for the movement of freight between New York and Chicago. At present the average time needed is three days. This gain in efficiency has created a surplus of equipment which, even in the peak period of 1929, was not fully used.

The road has modernized a large share of its older equipment in recent years, but this has been done at a much lower cost than would be needed for the purchase of new equipment.

Road Able to Keep Fixed Charges Down

AS A RESULT of this situation, the road has been able to avoid substantial increases in its funded debt and increased interest charges. This, along with operating economies, has been an important contributor to the fact that the system has been able to show profits throughout the depression period.

Gross revenues have been reduced, and earnings have suffered but the company has kept out of red ink and has demonstrated the soundness of its capital structure.

The policy of recent years has been to confine capital expenditures to improvements which could demonstrate savings in expenses. Among the outstanding improvements made during the past few years was the electrification of portions of the line in the East. To complete this program the company borrowed $27,500,000 from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. The last of this loan was paid off in July.

Profit Reported For Year of 1932

THE ROAD reported net income after all charges of $13,573,536 for 1932. This was equivalent to $1.03 a share on the stock. While this represented a sharp decrease from net income of $101,487,062 or $8.83 a share in 1929, it reflected good management and the conservative capital structure of the system.

The increase in traffic during the present year has demonstrated the improved ability to earn, resulting from greater efficiency. In August gross railway operating income amounted to $32,900,785. This compared with $25,148,291 a year ago. On this relatively small increase in gross, the company was able to increase net railway operating income from $2,919,853 a year ago to $7,201,507 in August of this year.

In the first eight months of 1933 gross was $211,547,420 as compared with $223,648,659 in the corresponding period of 1932. In spite of this decrease in gross, net railway operating income for the period increased to $37,383,999 from $30,269,296.

WEEKLY BANK CLEARINGS

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—(AP.)—The short week at many of the larger cities a year ago results in a very favorable report on bank clearings. The total for the past six days for all leading cities in the United States, as reported by Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., was $4,157,196,000 and was larger than the amount for the five days of last year by 23.9 per cent. At New York City, clearings for the six days this year of $2,818,918,000, by the same comparison, were in excess of those for a year ago by 30.1 per cent, while the aggregate for centers outside of New York of $1,338,278,000 was 12.7 per cent higher.

The Columbus Day holiday this year will come in next week's return. Allowing for the difference this week, clearings show practically little change from those of the weeks immediately preceding. The total for this week was $634,675,000 under the amount for the week included in the clearings for the first days of October; a year ago, five days' clearings were $1,492,499,000 less than those for the preceding week. On a daily average basis, the comparison is slightly more favorable to this year's figures. In addition to New York City, large gains are now reported at Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago, and some other leading centers, particularly those at the South and for Pacic Coast Points At those cities where six days are included in both years the loss in clearings continues.

STEEL MARKET IMPROVEMENT EVIDENT

By B. E. V. LUTY

The steel market displays a much better tone as a result of the tendency of labor troubles to clear up. A week ago buyers were greatly disturbed, feeling that when outbreaks of such curious character could occur there might be much more elsewhere, seriously menacing the NRA program.

Production of steel ingots this week was at about 40 per cent of capacity. There was a decrease to approximately 40 per cent early in September, since when there have been only minor fluctuations. Official reports showed monthly averages of 58.95 per cent for July, 49.42 per cent for August and 40.89 per cent for September.

With no railroad buying, little consumption in building, light drilling for oil and virtually no pipe line work, a 40 per cent operation of the steel industry indicates a very fair demand in other directions. When production attained a 40 per cent rate at the end of last May the market was regarded as quite active. An annual rate of 28,000,000 tons of ingots is indicated, more than 60 per cent of the average rate in the seven active years, 1923 to 1929 inclusive, more than double actual production in 1932 and 10 per cent above production in 1931.

Mills are still producing a little tonnage against contracts and orders placed at less than present prices and in that respect are faced with a decrease in operations during the next fortnight, but there is a possibility of seasonal increase in demand, not yet observed in any important quarter, and eventually there will be much tonnage for the railroads and the federal building program.

RAILROAD PROSPECTS

A summary made by Joseph B. Eastman, railroad co-ordinator, indicates that 844,000 tons of rails and 245,000 tons of track material will be bought if the rail price is reduced to $35 or less. The mills would make the reduction only as a matter of policy and expediency as they insist that the present price of $40 per gross ton at mill is low considering costs, the light employment of rail mills at best, and prices of other finished steel products. Rails were advanced from $40 to $43 on October 1, 1922, and put back to $40 on October 20, 1932. At $40 they are 1.78 cents a pound, against 1.75 cents base for common ordinary merchant bars, subject to extras for carbon, size, etc.

Purchases would be financed by the government where necessary. Plans are under consideration for assisting the railroads to make car and locomotive repairs and the steel trade estimates that a large tonnage will be required eventually.

Nearly all tonnage in tin plate contracts for the year on the old price basis of $4.25 has been specified, representing nearly full-time employment of the mills through next month. There has been a little buying at the advanced basis of $4.65, which became effective on August 29, and a further advance for the first quarter of the new year is more or less expected because the recent advance did not even cover fully the advance in pig tin and there are other large increases in cost. Such an advance would further stimulate buying for this year's delivery.

The automobile industry is buying little steel as it is almost fully covered for completion of runs on old models and work on new models is delayed by the strike of die and tool makers.

GENERAL BUYING LIGHT

General line buying of steel has been light in the first fortnight of the new quarter, including buying by jobbers. There has been no seasonal increase in demand for standard pipe or wire products.

Decrease in the Steel Corporation's unfilled obligations in September by 114,704 tons to 1,775,740 tons, the lowest on record, reflected lightness of forward buying on account of code restrictions and perhaps also cancellation of some long-term business not admissible under the code. For many years there has been a downward trend in forward buying. Even on July 1, 1929, when the steel trade was at its record high level of activity, there was only two-thirds as much unfilled tonnage as six years earlier.

Connellsville coke prices have been set at $3.75 for standard furnace and $4.25 for standard foundry coke, with the three premium brands of foundry at $5.75 for spot and $5.25 on contract.

I. C. C. Denies Astor Seat on D. & H. Board

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—(INS.)—Vincent Astor, personal friend of President Roosevelt, today was denied the right to serve on the board of the Delaware and Hudson Railroad while serving in a similar capacity on the boards of the Illinois Central and Great Northern.

The Interstate Commerce Commission, in denying Astor's application, said that to grant it would contravene the commission's policy of requiring full independence among railroad system groupings contemplated by its consolidation plan of 1929.

SECURITY LAW HELD CAPITAL BLOCKADE

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER

Universal Service.

Mr. Rukeyser

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—The drying up of the fountains and streams of Wall street, from which long-term credit used to flow, has resulted in increased demand for state socialism in the capital market.

With railroads, builders, and industry unable to get capital through the sale of bonds to investors on a normal scale, pressure is growing to get the federal government to become the master supplier of long-term funds.

Where will it all end?

At present, the partners of the great investment banking houses are really in the ranks of the unemployed. Yet they will make a renewed demand for a still newer deal at the forthcoming convention of the Investment Bankers' Association of America at Hot Springs, Va., at the end of the month. At the convention there will be a drive for substantial revision of the federal security law, which has made both private borrowers and lenders too timid to do business.

BACKS REFORM

Frank M. Gordon, of the First National Bank of Chicago, the president o fthe Investment Bankers' Association, insists that the association approve President Roosevelt's statement of the need of reform, but contends that the law fails to carry out those principles. He maintains:

"Unfortunately, the law which finally resulted has had an effect particularly upon officers and directors of issuing corporations and to some extent upon underwriters apparently not contemplated in the President's message. In any event, the issuance of new securities since the effective date of the law has practically ceased."

In diagnosing the causes behind the capital blockade, which is delaying the economic recovery, Mr. Gordon adds:

"It is argued by some that it is the conditions of the times and not the securities law which have dried up the market for new issues. Doubtless this, to some degree, is true. But it is equally evident to those in intimate contact with prospective issuers that the unusual liabilities of the law constitute hazards which officers and directors of corporations decline to assume.

URGES MODIFICATION

"There are those who state that any such fears are wholly unwarranted. Competent and independent legal counsel, however, give legal opinions supporting the fears and give legal reasons therefor. Unfortunately, most of those who insist there are no causes for fear are not legal advisers to issuers or their officers and directors and for the most part have nothing other than their opinion at stake.

". . . modifications must be made if sound securities are to be issued and sold the public."

Though extreme paralysis of the money market is obviously disadvantageous, there are offsetting gains in the fact that issuance of securities is more difficult. Industrialists are thus to some extent protected from dangerous competition in the erection of excess capacity plants by promoters eager only for an excuse to make a stock-jobber's profit. Thus the soundly-managed enterprise, which habitually expands only out of earnings, is less harassed.

The immediate problem is to retain the benefits of the law, while revising certain sections which will facilitate the resumption of normal financing activities which lead to job giving projects.

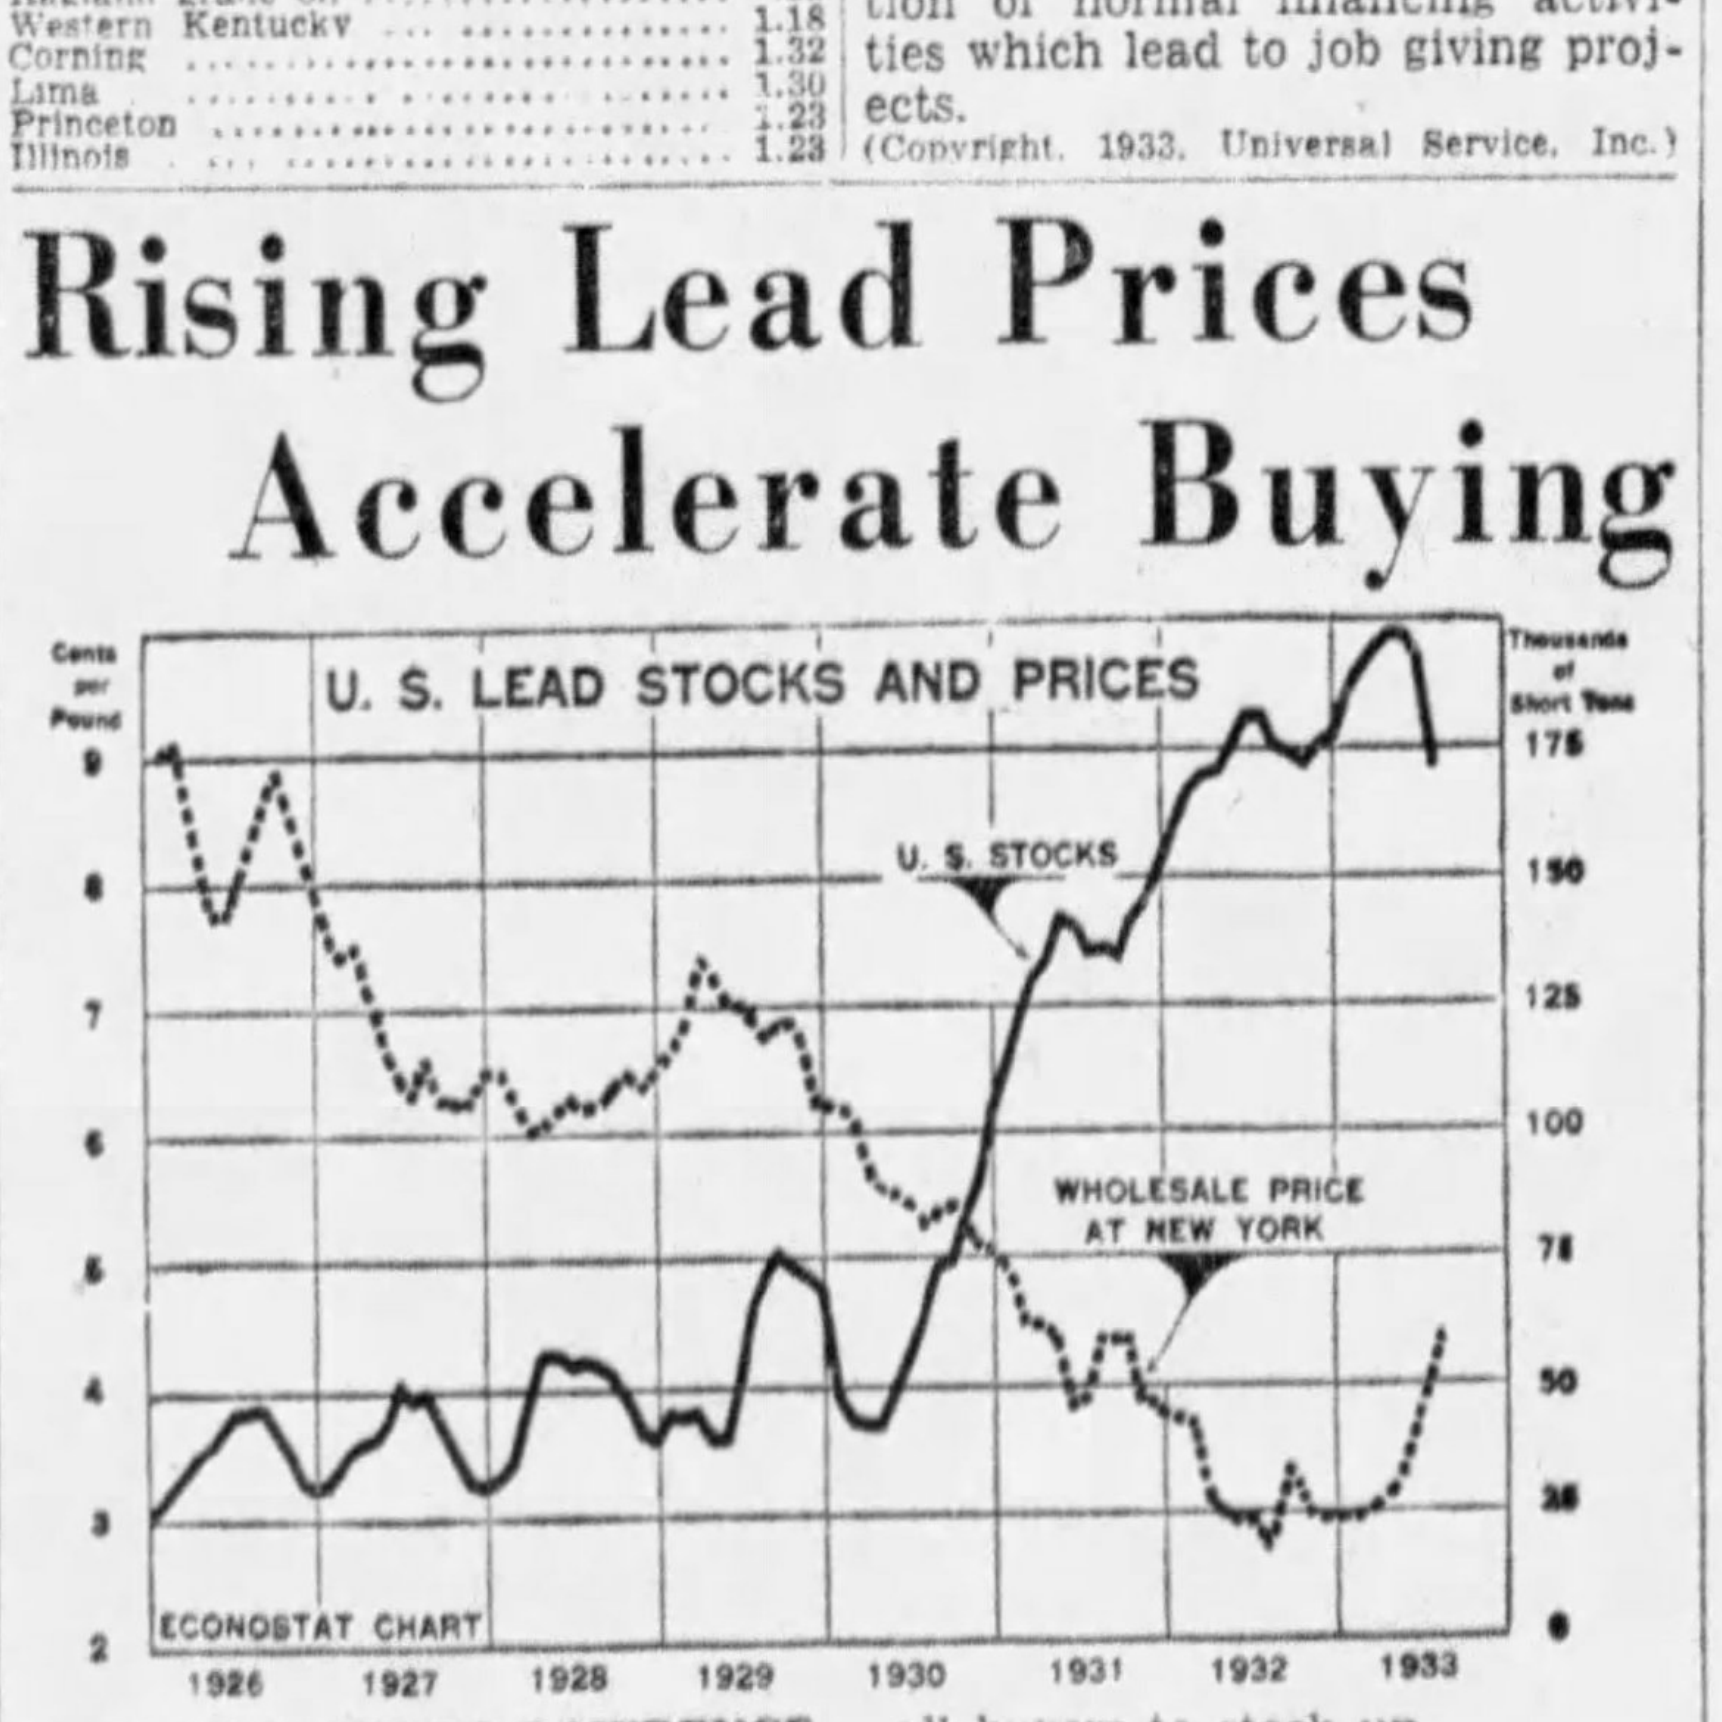
Rising Lead Prices Accelerate Buying



By JOSEPH STAGG LAWRENCE,

Editor, The Econostat.

This chart shows an orthodox picture of supply and prices. According to classroom theory, as supplies mount, prices must decline, unless demand at the same time keeps pace. A superficial examination of the chart would seem to indicate the truth of this theory. However, it may be noted that prices in this case started to rise some time before lead stocks ceased mounting so that it may be possible to conclude that the reduction in lead stocks is the result of a rise in prices rather than vice versa.

The fault may be found not only in the theory but also in the statistics relating to these two lines. It is by no means certain that falling prices are the result of mounting stocks. In fact, a strong case can be made for just the opposite side. As long as prices decline there is a reluctance on the part of all buyers to stock up.

Heavy inventories under such conditions mean heavy losses. They are kept at an absolute minimum and hand-to-mouth buying is practised with emphasis. As a result, stocks of raw materials tend to accumulate at their primary sources.

The great difficulty with our statistics of supply is that they usually give us a picture at only one point in the movement of material from its original source to final consumption. The figures on lead stocks are provided by the American Bureau of Metal Statistics and represent stocks at refineries. There is no way of telling what amount is held on hand by cable, ammunition, tin foil, battery, brassmaking and how much is in the hands of jobbers.

During a period of falling prices such stocks tend to reach a minimum, whereas in a period of rising prices they expand and tend to distort the meaning of stocks held by refineries.

SUCCESS SEEN FOR LIBERTY BOND RECALL

By LEWIS HANEY

Professor of Economics, New York University

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—The "calling" of a part of the government's fourth Liberty 4¼ per cent bonds is a matter of considerable interest. Over six billions of these are outstanding and as they mature in 1938 they constitute a financial problem. They are to be exchanged for new bonds which pay 4¼ per cent the first year and 3¼ per cent thereafter.

England and France have both "converted" bond issues bearing high interest rates into new issues bearing lower rates and having more favorable maturities. It may, therefore, seem that our move is the same as theirs, which were both important and successful.

INTEREST CUT ABROAD

England, however, was in serious financial difficulty. She made a large saving in interest charges. She reduced her interest from 5 to 3½ per cent.

France converted 5, 4 and 7 per cent bonds into a 4½ per cent issue. Both nations appealed to patriotism, and England actually declared a moratorium on private long-term financing to help her conversion. Their price levels were stable, both at home and abroad.

But our government claims to have balanced its budget and to be in shape to borrow large sums for its recovery program. The saving in interest charges from our conversion is small—less than $19,000,000 a year. We are making no appeal to the patriotism of the public to put the conversion across. Our prices are not stable.

MAY HELP MOVE

Perhaps the chief similarity is that we, too, have a sort of moratorium on private long-term financing. But this is because our monetary and legal uncertainties have prevented business concerns from raising funds through the bond market. Such a condition may, however, help the move here in somewhat the same way that the English prohibition of private issues helped.

It seems obvious that our step will be "successful," chiefly because there are enough people getting less than 3½ per cent on holdings of government securities to make it probable that they will want to convert. Billions of securities now yield less to their holders.

The new bonds will go at a premium. In fact, a half billion is to be offered on the side for cash at 101½—a 1½ per cent premium.

PROBABLE EFFECTS

The probable effects of the new move seem rather slight. As I see it they will be as follows:

1—There will be for the near future some increase in the hopes (or fears) of "stabilization." It is certainly logical to reason that the government cannot for a few months do anything which will increase doubts as to the value of the dollar or as to the soundness of the nation's credit.

One would accordingly suppose that the general market for government bonds would be helped, although some issues may be sold to switch into the new bonds.

2—No early resort to the inflationary powers under the Thomas amendment seems likely. The administration has virtually decided not to pay off bonds by issuing notes.

3—The conversion move does not require any revaluation of the dollar or return to the gold standard. England did not take such a course in connection with her successful conversion.

MORE SUPPORT SEEN

Rather it seems likely that the Federal Reserve banks will maintain or increase their activity in supporting the government bond market, and that the government will be encouraged to increase its credit expansion program.

The new move means no decrease in government debt, but rather an increase. A half billion of the new issue is over and above the amount necessary to retire the old issues.

On the whole, the new move seems to increase the tendency toward credit inflation. If it should fail (which is highly improbable) the government might resort to "greenbacks" to pay the holders of called bonds who insisted on cash payment. If it succeeds, the government will feel able to expand its debt.

ELECTION DUE AT PROPELLER CONVENTION

Election of officers and final action on resolutions were scheduled today as the Propeller Club convention closed in the William Penn Hotel.

Maj. Gen. T. Q. Ashburn, chairman of the Inland Waterways Corporation, spoke at the banquet last night on "A Practical Plan for Co-ordinating Transportation." He quoted Secretary of War George Dern as saying:

"Transportation is so vital to all commerce that there must be neither injury nor destruction of any useful form. The essence of such a policy is compensatory rates for each kind of service and giving the shipper the economies inherent in every form."

Gen. Ashburn advocated reorganization of the Interstate Commerce Commission into rail, water, motor and airways and pipe line groups. These, he said, could arbitrate disputes between different forms of transportation.

He pointed out that he has begun the formation of regional waterways committees to negotiate settlement of issues between similar committees representing the railways.

Arthur M. Tode, national president of the club, also spoke at the banquet. Guests included I. Lamont Hughes, president of the Carnegie Steel Company; C. H. C. Pearsall, vice president of the Colombian Steamship Company, and Mayor John S. Herron. A grand ball followed the banquet.

OBITUARY

Merrill Funeral.

Funeral services for Edwin C. Merrill, 73, a member of the board of deacons of the East Liberty Presbyterian Church since 1895, who died Thursday in his home, 363 Lehigh avenue, will be held at 2 p. m. today in Tabernacle Presbyterian Church, Baum boulevard. Private burial will be in Homewood Cemetery.

Mr. Merrill, a retired gas engineer, was active in the gas field in and around Pittsburgh since 1884. He leaves five children, Ralph K. Merrill, of Grand Rapids, Mich.; Miss Hattie G. and Grace E. Merrill, both of Pittsburgh; E. Gray Merrill, of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., and Leslie M. Merrill, of Elizabeth, N. J.; a sister, Miss Grace E. Merrill, of Buffalo, N. Y., and three grandchildren.

Connolly Funeral.

Funeral services for Thomas F. Connolly, 65, who died Thursday at his home, 3323 Bainton avenue, North Side, were held in St. Francis Xavier Catholic Church this morning, when solemn requiem high mass was celebrated.

Mr. Connolly was born in England and came to the Pittsburgh district when a boy. He had lived in Pittsburgh 55 years. For many years he was active in the American Federation of Labor, and at one time was business agent of Pittsburgh Council, Iron Moulders' Union.

Besides his widow he leaves six sons, John A., Declan, Francis, William, Joseph and Bernard Connolly, and a daughter, Mildred Cobb Connolly.

Simple Rules and Prize List for COMICRAX Contest

(1) "Comicrax," the new pastime, will run as a weekly contest in the Daily Sun-Telegraph—appearing on the Want Ad pages. (Second weekly contest begins Monday, October 9).

(2) The contest will consist of 6 Daily cartoons, each drawn to represent some popular phrase or "by-word" and with each cartoon there will appear a list of these popular phrases in which list the correct answer for the cartoon of the day will be included.

(3) The prizes to be awarded by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph will total $100.00 weekly as follows:

First Prize	$25.00
Second Prize	$15.00
Third Prize	$10.00
4th & 5th Prizes, $5.00 each	$10.00
6th, 7th, 8th, 9th and 10th Prizes, $3.00 each	$15.00
25 Prizes, $1.00 each	$25.00
35 Cash Prizes totaling	$100.00

(4) These prizes will be awarded to the entrants who submit the most nearly correct and neatest sets of answers in each weekly series and who submit the best letters of not more than 50 words on the question "Which Want Ad appeared in the Sun-Telegraph during the current week most interested you and why?"—attaching the Want Ad or a copy of it to your letter and giving the date and classification of its appearance.

(5) The first group of cartoons—6 in all—must be submitted as a single unit and distinctly separate from any contest cartoons to appear in succeeding weeks' issues of the Sun-Telegraph. The sets of answers for the second week's "Comicrax" contest must be in the hands of the Comicrax Editor, Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa., before midnight, Tuesday, October 17th.

(6) The judges will be selected by the Sun-Telegraph and their decisions will be final. The Sun-Telegraph will not enter in any correspondence about letters or cartoons in this "Comicrax" contest. The contest is open to everyone in the reading area of this newspaper except employees and their families, of the Sun-Telegraph or of Radio Station WCAE, affiliated with the Sun-Telegraph.

(7) It is not necessary to buy the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph in order to compete. Copies of the Sun-Telegraph are on file at public libraries and may be examined without charge. Copies may also be examined at the Sun-Telegraph. Contestants may send tracings of the contest cartoons if they so wish.

Official—Miscellaneous 113

U. S. Engineer Office, Huntington, W. Va.—Sealed proposals will be received at this office until 3 p. m. on the 17th day of October, 1933, and then opened, for furnishing all labor and material and constructing two parallel locks about one mile below Lock and Dam No. 28, Ohio River, Hogsett, W. Va., and approximately nine miles below Gallipolis, Ohio. Further information on application.

Official—Pittsburgh 111

CITY OF PITTSBURGH, PENNSYLVANIA.
NOTICE OF SALE OF BONDS

Sealed proposals will be received at the office of the City Controller of the City of Pittsburgh until the 17th day of October, 1933, at 10:00 a. m., eastern standard time, for the purchase of the following issues of bonds of said City:

$300,000.00 Public Work Relief Bonds, 1933, Series B.

All of said bonds will be dated as of October 1, 1933, and will mature in twenty (20) equal installments on October 1, of each year. Said bonds will bear interest at the rate of four and one-quarter (4¼%) per centum per annum, payable semi-annually on the first days of April and October in each year without deduction for any taxes which may be levied thereon by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, pursuant to any present or future law.

Said $300,000.00 Public Work Relief Bonds, 1933, Series B, are issued to provide funds for providing supplies, materials, equipment, labor and supervision (including engineering expenses) for the improvement of streets, parks, playgrounds, wharves, sewers, water lines, bridges and other public properties of the City of Pittsburgh, the labor to be provided from among the unemployed, and were authorized by the Electors at an election held April 26, 1932.

Said bonds will be coupon bonds of the denomination of one thousand ($1,000.00) dollars, exchangeable at the option of the holder at any time for a registered bond or bonds of the same maturity and of the denomination of one hundred ($100.00) dollars or a multiple thereof not exceeding the aggregate principal amount of the coupon bond or bonds surrendered in exchange therefor.

Unless all bids are rejected the said bonds will be sold to the highest responsible bidder complying with the terms of sale. No bid for such bonds at less than par and accrued interest from the date of said bonds to the date of delivery will be accepted. The right is reserved to reject all bids and any bid not complying with the provisions hereof will be rejected. Any bidder may condition his bid upon the award to him of all or none of the bonds for which he bids.

All bidders are required to deposit a certified check drawn to the order of the City of Pittsburgh, on a National Bank or Trust Company, for two per centum (2%) of the principal amount of bonds bid for. Checks of unsuccessful bidders will be returned upon the award of the bonds. No interest will be allowed upon the amount of the check of the successful bidder and such check will be retained and applied in part payment for the bonds or to secure the City against any loss resulting from the failure of the bidder to comply with the terms of his bid.

The City of Pittsburgh reserves the right to deliver to the successful bidder temporary typewritten or printed bonds, in the form of one temporary bond for each issue, or one bond for each maturity of each issue, which shall be substantially in the same form as the definitive bonds, with appropriate omissions, insertions and variations as may be required. Until their exchange for definitive coupon bonds, the temporary bonds shall be in full force and effect according to their terms, and shall bear interest from October 1.

Proposals should be addressed to James P. Kerr, City Controller, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, and enclosed in a sealed envelope, marked on the outside "Proposal for Bonds." Bids must be made upon blank forms which may be obtained from the City Controller.

The successful bidder will be furnished with the opinion of Messrs. Reed, Smith, Shaw & McClay, of Pittsburgh, that bonds are binding and legal obligations of the City of Pittsburgh.

JAMES P. KERR,
City Controller.
Dated, Pittsburgh, Pa., September 29, 1933.

NOTICE is hereby given that the following ordinance was introduced in the Council of the City of Pittsburgh on September 19, 1933, pursuant to the provisions of the several acts of Assembly, authorizing said city, without petition of property owners, to open, widen, straighten, extend, vacate, grade, pave, curb, macadamize and otherwise improve streets and alleys or parts thereof, within its limits, viz:

BILL NO. 1400

AN ORDINANCE—Setting aside, annulling and vacating the location of Brashear street, from South Lang avenue to Mosaic way, in the Fourteenth Ward of the City of Pittsburgh, as located by Ordinance No. 118, approved June 29, 1894, and as said Brashear street was laid out and located in a certain plan known as "Parts of the Twenty-first and Twenty-second Wards Plan of Streets," approved by Common Council November 4, 1872, and by Select Council November 11, 1872, and vacating said Brashear street as laid out in the "Lloyd Heirs' Plan of Lots" between said terminals.

SECTION 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the City of Pittsburgh, in Council assembled, and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same, That the location of Brashear street, from South Lang avenue to Mosiac way, in the Fourteenth Ward of the City of Pittsburgh as located by Ordiance No. 118, approved June 29, 1894, and as said Brashear street was laid out and located in a certain plan known as "Parts of the Twenty-first and Twent-second Wards Plan of Streets," approved by Common Council November 4, 1872, and by Select Council November 11, 1872, and also as said Brashear street was laid out in the "Lloyd Heirs' Plan of Lots," of record in the office of the Recorder of Deeds, etc., of Allegheny County, in Plan Book Volume 7, page 276, shall be and the same is hereby set aside, annulled and vacated.

SECTION 2. That any ordinance or part of ordinance, conflicting with the provisions of this ordinance, be and the same is hereby repealed, so far as the same affects this ordinance.

The Girl Who Won

By MAY CHRISTIE

Slowly she opened her eyes, coming up from her deep spell of unconsciousness.

What had happened? Where on earth was she?

A hand with plump white fingers ending in extraordinarily long and claw-like nails—varnished a bright red—was attached to the handle of this cooling instrument.

Synopsis

Nollie Day, young and pretty, lives in a small town with her aunt and uncle. She works in her uncle's paint shop for a nominal salary, most of which her aunt takes for board. Her 18-year-old cousin, Lil, lazy, irresponsible girl, who borrows from Nollie rather than work, shares her room. Nollie longs for a career in New York. The opportunity arrives when she wins a $50 prize. Jake Tippett, calling to keep an appointment with Lil, mistakes her for Nollie because she is wearing Nollie's clothes. He throws his arms around her and says, "At last, I've got you alone, Nollie darling." Lil is furious. Next day, Nollie discovers $10 of her prize money missing. Lil denies the theft. Nollie goes to New York. Exhausted, trying to find a position, Nollie faints on the sidewalk.

Now Go On

Then the owner-of-the-white-hands' voice: "No, you don't, Bill. That last lot from your darn bootlegger sure was poison!"

The face was plump and pretty, in a garish way, and topped by a mop of hair in a peroxide yellow.

"Awake, dearie?" The movement of the straw fan stopped, and Yellow Hair came into fuller vision.

"Yes. Why—how—?

"You fainted, dearie. We found you on the sidewalk. This dump of mine was near. So Bill and I brought you home."

GETS TENDER CARE

"No, don't do that. You stay still and rest. I'm going to make you some coffee."

Bill volunteered his drink. Nollie had leaned back, suddenly giddy again. She did not see his face. Her eyes were closed.

"You take that booze away, Bill. D'ya hear? I'm not going to have this kid poisoned . . ."

"You drink this coffee, dear. It's good and strong. It'ull put new life in you."

There was buttered toast, too, which Yellow Hair insisted that she eat. In her own past life, Yellow Hair had experienced and understood the symptoms of acute hunger.

Bill disappeared into another room, where presently—by the sound of male voices—another man joined him.

"Out of a job? I know! Say, kid—" —this when she had extracted some of Nollie's story —"you can stay right here with me until you land something."

NOLLIE GRATEFUL

"Now try and take a little sleep. You'll be a different girl after a rest. You need it."

She felt better now — and grateful, too. It was true that for the last few days she'd cut down terribly on rations.

And that had made her weak, and—combined with the heat, the lack of sleep and her anxiety — had brought about a fainting spell. It was lucky she had met a Good Samaritan . . .

Such a garish room! And tawdry, too! Nollie's eyes took in the long divan against the other wall, with its bright, soiled cushions . . .

A screen of hanging glass-bead chains divided the bedroom from the living room. The furniture was of bamboo. There was a tremendous array of makeup material on the dressing-table.

Voices drifting from the living room were mingled with the honk of automobiles . . . the clatter of the streets . . . She was so tired it was all like a lullaby.

Nollie's weary eyelids drooped. She dozed. She dreamed of being in some restful, wonderful country.

* * *

She awoke to a dim room. Someone had drawn down a shade. She glanced at her small, cheap wristwatch. It was nearly 7!

There was an eerie silence in the little flat. Then the clop-clop of feet that were shod in mules. Yellow Hair came in. She had heard Nollie stirring.

"Awake, dearie? You slept like the dead. I've been out and got something for us from the delicatessen."

ACTRESS UNEMPLOYED

Yellow Hair was wearing a heavily embroidered orchid peignoir that was none too fresh. But she smiled kindly at Nollie. It was evident that she enjoyed her role of benefactress.

"You sit in that chair by the window till I fix our supper," ordered Yellow Hair, "and I've put a clean towel in the bathroom if you'd like to wash."

"How kind you are!" said Nollie when the two were seated at a little table in the diminutive living room that seemed no bigger than a handkerchief.

"Oh, bosh! I'm kind of lonely, too, though New York's a grand town," conceded Yellow Hair, "I'm in the show business—but you guessed that, of course?"

"Not working now?"

Nollie was grateful for the woman's kindness and her company. She told her about the morning's fiasco of the audition. She added, smiling ruefully: " 'Fraid I'm not cut out for the stage!"

"But there's lots of other ways a good looking girl like you can make a living—" Yellow Hair broke off.

"No. Although I'm trained as a secretary I don't see anybody falling over themselves to get my services."

"I didn't mean that kind of a job." Yellow Hair's eyes narrowed as they appraised Nollie. "With your pretty face and figure and your youth, you haven't any real cause—not in this town—to worry . . ."

"But I don't understand what kind of work you mean?" said Nollie.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

The Irish type—dark hair, ivory skin, blue eyes—can wear almost every color of the rainbow. She is about the only blue-eyed girl who can get away with pink or red, which offer a charming contrast to her dark locks. Blues of all shades are flattering to her, even green won't put her out of color form as it does the average brunette. Between black and white there is small choice. She looks well in both.

Frown lines? You put them there yourself by drawing your eyebrows together. Get out the heavy massage cream, apply to a clean skin surface. Place the first finger at the upper end of the line, thumb at lower end, keep finger stationary and smooth upward with the thumb as you would iron a crease from a fabric. Follow with light tapping with finger tips. Then friction with an ice cube.

A SHOT FROM FORT SUMTER INTRODUCED THE CIVIL WAR (April 12, 1861)

In the presidential election of 1860 the Southern Democrats (pro slavery) lost at the polls and Abraham Lincoln was elected President on the Republican ticket (anti slavery). The controversy about the slave question, the tariff and other economic measures grew into a total rupture, starting with secession of South Carolina (Dec. 20, 1860) from the Union, soon followed by other Southern states forming the Confederacy. Fort Sumter, in the harbor of Charlestown, from which the first cannon was fired, was captured by the Confederates and held by them until the close of the war. (American History)

STORMING THE BASTILLE (Paris, July 14, 1789)

The victorious American Revolution found its repercussions in Europe magnified by the penetrating ideas of great thinkers such as Montesquieu, Adam Smith, John Locke, Voltaire, etc.

In France, there broke out a revolt first directed against the Estate General, a feudal order enabling the first and second estates (Nobles and Clergy) to outvote the third estate (Commons). The latter, forming a national assembly, wanted recognition. This was first granted, then revoked by the king. The infuriated people stormed the Bastille (Paris fortress and prison), thereby launching the French Revolution. (World History)

THE WHITE CEDAR (Chamaecyparis Thyoides)

This genus comprises about six species belonging to the family Pinaceae. It has small, bluish green, overlapping, sharp pointed, scale-like leaves. Staminate flowers are oblong, about ⅛ inch long; pistillate flowers are globular, about 1/10 inch in diameter. The fruit, a small globous cone about ¼-inch in diameter, matures in one season; the shield-shaped scales bear the winged seeds. The white cedar grows from Cape Breton Island to Florida. It thrives in swamps, but will grow also in dry locations. As an ornamental tree, it is widely planted everywhere. Its wood is light, soft, not strong, durable, slightly fragrant, used in cooperage, boatbuilding, fence posts, railroad ties, shingles and wooden ware. (Illick: Pennsylvania Trees) (General Science)

FERTILIZATION IN FLOWERS

The complete flower of a seed plant consists of four whorls of modified leaves: 1, sepals (green) forming the calyx; 2, petals (larger, colored) building the corolla; 3, stamens (containing pollen grains) and 4, carpels (pistils), each comprising the ovule (in a case), style and stigma.

The pollen grain—transferred to the stigma—germinates under influence of a fluid secreted by the stigma. The pollen grain bursts, issuing a tube which carries the sperm to the egg cell, forming with it the zygote in the ovule. The zygote develops into the seed and the ovule case ripens into the fruit. HYDROFLUORIC ACID

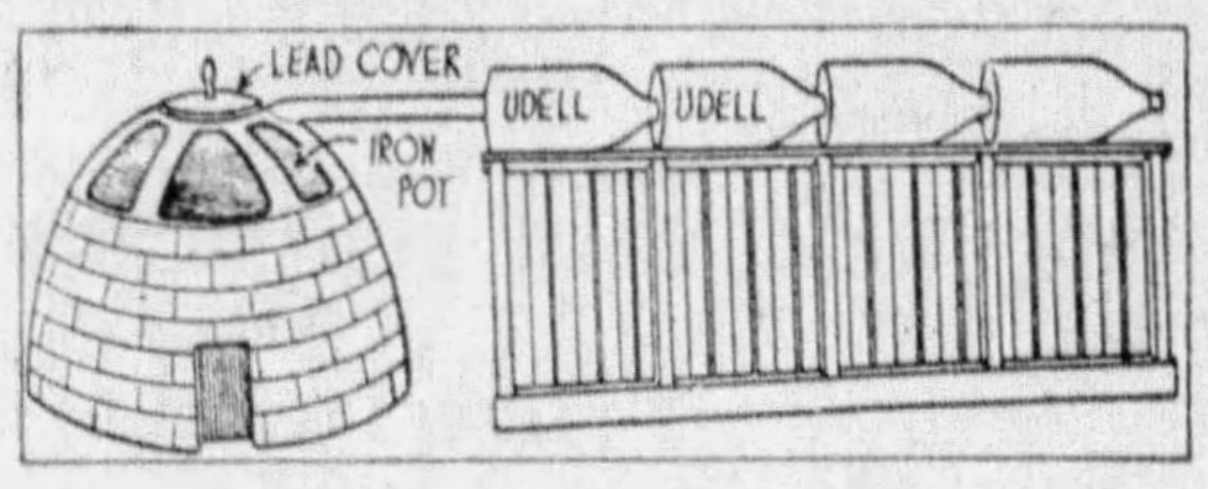
Fluorine and hydrogen form (HF) with water the hydrofluoric acid, used for etching glass. It can be obtained from Fremy's salt heated in platinum or copper still. Heating the salt in one container, HF condenses in the other. $KHF_2 = KF + HF$.



MANUFACTURE OF IODINE

REINFORCING OF CONCRETE WITH STEEL BARS (Gen. Science)

Above left: Lower fibers tend to elongate (under tension stress); upper fibers tend to shorten (under compression stress) in the beam loaded as shown. Alongated and shortened fibres are divided by unchanged neutral axis (dot and dash). Concrete resists compression, but not tension, so it must be reinforced with steel bars laid in the elongating parts; it has to be reinforced also against heat expansion throughout. Test shows effect of proper reinforcing.

HAMLET AND HIS FATHER'S GHOST

"Bring with Thee airs from Heaven, or blasts from Hell . . ."

"King, Father, Royal Dane! O, answer me! . . ."

Reform Within the Card Party

We dovetail with the soreskulled bridge expert who claims the four-five convention is nefarious, informative and otherwise education.

The bidding in that game is full of advance data and leaves nothing to the imagination but your birth marks. You couldn't do better with a megaphone on a sight-seeing wagon.

The four-five system of approach coaching indicates to your partner that you hold all the aces that have not been mentioned and some that have been sleeved.

It is like saying to your partner, "Fear not the raging storm. When you have the tops the bottoms will take care of themselves. I have an ace here that is redder than a tail light on a hill.

"I have another ace that is blacker than night. And this is the night. If you bid the small slam we will make it like turning a cat loose in a bird store.

"We are playing a couple of fish cakes who think the game is sport. Listen to the old moose call. Every bid is a request and every nod a command.

—AND THE OTHER PEOPLE ALMOST SHOWING EACH OTHER THEIR HANDS AND YOU NOT TELLING ME ANY-THING !
WELL, NOW DEAR— I THOUGHT YOU COULD TELL WHAT I HAD BY WHAT THE OTHERS SAID !

"You boost me over this fence and I will bid the grandiose bang and once again victory will perch on our twigs and bird line.

"In case of a tie I have a couple of kings escorting three queens. There is also a blank in diamonds. It's better than a license to steal and far safer than depending on the army and the navy.

"If you pass up this chance I'll wrap the table around your neck and tie the legs in a knot. Opportunity raps but once on every man's door and you are a sucker to ring for ice water.

"Do you get my thoroughly academic and ethical bidding or do we have to rehearse the signals all over again?"

With a line-up like that you have all the future of an apple-on-a-stick. You are playing against a set of mind readers who don't wear hats.

They know the location of every card in the pack before the bidding is over, and the only reason one guy lays down the dummy is because he wants to mix himself a highball. If the four-five convention ain't cheating then we call on Congress for a bill of apology to the man who invented paper shoes.

Hard on Passengers!

John F. Deasy, vice president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, soon to leave Pittsburgh for a higher position in Philadelphia, thinks it is unlikely that the Pennsylvania will build a new passenger terminal here during the next few years. We can understand the necessity of postponing the improvement because of the difficulty of financing it now, but Mr. Deasy offers another explanation which is less satisfactory.

He says that when plans for the new station were made Pittsburgh provided the Pennsylvania with about $13,000,000 of passenger business a year, but the business has since dwindled to $4,500,000, so that present facilities are adequate. In reply to that we desire to call Mr. Deasy's attention in a friendly way to an incident that occurred at the station yesterday.

When No. 646, an accommodation train from Baden, loaded with commuters, arrived at the station at 8:45, the scheduled time, it was run onto a track outside of the trainshed on the Liberty avenue side. The passengers found their way into the station blocked by a train of Pullman cars—a train so long that there apparently was not room for all of it in the trainshed.

They stood for a minute or two on the tracks, waiting for the train to move and let them proceed. Tired of waiting, they attempted to have the vestibule doors of some of the Pullman cars opened; but there was delay in that, too—and fear, besides, that as one was boarding the train it might start.

The upshot of the business was that the majority of the passengers, women as well as men, walked down the track perhaps 50 yards, passed around the rear of the blockading train, and then returned on another track to the station. They had to walk on the track because there was no platform. They did not like to do it, but preferred to take the risk rather than wait indefinitely.

Such incidents are not rare. Thousands of passengers daily are required to cross tracks at grade to reach their trains or to pass into the station. A dozen times a day attendants rush out and with outstretched arms bar the way of persons about to step on tracks on which trains are approaching.

As long as this condition, so inconvenient, if not dangerous, exists, facilities at the Pennsylvania station cannot be called adequate. Because of dwindling passenger business the waiting room may be large enough; but the trainshed is not. And it is to be hoped the Pennsylvania will lose no time, once funds are available, in correcting the situation.

With pleasure we turn from this complaint to an improvement that Mr. Deasy announces. The Pennsylvania is soon to establish store door delivery of freight. Arrangements have been made with trucking companies and tariff schedules are being prepared. It is probable there will be no increase in freight rates for distances of less than 250 miles. This is a new service that will be greatly appreciated by Pittsburghers.

Mr. Deasy expects an increase in business activity as soon as work on the NRA codes is completed. District Attorney Andrew T. Park sends word that he is quite as busy as he cares to be, thank you, and that there is no NRA code to shorten the hours of public prosecutors. These pleasantries came from Mr. Park yesterday morning after he had been up all night, working on an alleged jury-fixing case.

Tampering with juries is all too common a practice in Allegheny County, especially in cases in which politicians are involved. There seems to be an impression that it is not a very serious offense. District Attorney Park deserves much credit for his energy in proceeding against persons charged with embracery. If a few of the guilty ones were sent to the penitentiary, Mr. Park's work might be lighter.

The warden of the Western Penitentiary, Stanley P. Ashe, has just met with a deserved honor in his election as president of the National Wardens' Association. We note with gratification, too, the distinction that has come to another Pittsburgher, Dr. Richard J. Behan, who has just been eletced to the board of governors of the American College of Surgeons at its convention in Chicago.

Pittsburgh may well be proud of the contributions local physicians and surgeons have made to the healing art. We learn from an article by Dr. Theodore Diller in the current number of the Pittsburgh Medical Bulletin that Dr. Albert G. Walter, of this city, who died 50 years ago, was the first surgeon in the world to sew up a ruptured bladder. Dr. Chevalier Jackson developed the bronchoscope while living in Pittsburgh.

The doctors seem to have had a busy time of it yesterday in helping to bring Friday the thirteenth babies into the world. Four were born in Pittsburgh before the day had dawned. Well, it may be that as the New Deal develops these babies born on the supposedly unlucky day will have happier lives than the children of earlier generations, no matter on what day or date they were born. Our congratulations to the parents of all of them!

Friday the thirteenth brought good fortune to Pittsburgh in several forms. One of our pieces of good luck was Maj. Gen. T. Q. Ashburn's strong indorsement of the $53,000,000 flood control plan, which he declared the federal government should carry through at its own expense. The outlook for this important improvement was never brighter.

Percy Crosby's full-page picture in colors, "City Shadows," in tomorrow's issue of the American Weekly, the big magazine distributed with the Sunday Sun-Telegraph, is a masterpiece of art and humor and pathos—a picture to smile at, and dream over, and think about. Don't miss it. The distinguished creator of "Skippy" is showing a new facet of his many-sided genius.

Along with his hilarious "Bringing Up Father" and his mirthful "Rosie's Beau," George McManus furnishes a delicious bit of satire in tomorrow's issue of Puck, the Comic Weekly section of the Sunday Sun-Telegraph, in the sketch, "Things We Can Do Without." There is an abundance of other "funnies" in Puck for both children and grown-ups.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—Recently my wife acquired title to a pleasantly porched brick house on the block where she spent her girlhood and a block from the frame cottage of my juvenile years. A first remembrance of her was skipping a rope on the brick pavement in front of this residence.

She was in blue pinafore with pulled taffy braids and I was driving behind old black Charley in the family surrey with grandma. So it is a sentimental acquisition. Likely we shall never live there. But to us it will be "our home." Every couple has a fanciful wishing for a "Dream's End."

This Ohio town is elbowed in the swift sparkle of a river bend. It has not grown much since we went away. Several trains that chug through daily are about all that keep in touch with a straining world. Wide residential streets, beautifully shaded, and a public square give it reverent peace.

We are fond of the community. Many relatives and friends we loved sleep on the picturesque bluff that is Mound Hill—"a green thought in a green shade." There, too, we both expect to sleep. There are other hills, just as lovely along that rolling valley, long settled, serene.

* * *

Every city man almost, I presume, day dreams of becoming "a country gentleman," a plump-cheeked squire with plenty of jumpers, rows of kennels and a few dusty flagons of heady old Port. It's cheerful contemplation. I indulge many times after the harassing 24 hours of a city's furore. Yet, it's only musing. I know my sentimental nexus to the small town would snap if I lived in one.

* * *

The many things that made the small town glamorous for so many are no more. It is now 1 a. m. in New York. A damp, pearly fog is rolling up from the bay. Out of the window street lights are furry yellowish blobs. The autumnal chill brings its touch of melancholy and train of reveries. In the gathering mist I may fashion many scenes dear to all. I see Miss Gatewood, the public school music teacher, and her pitch prong. And I see Cora Dodge, who lived across the tracks and whose skirts always gapped in the back.

* * *

Other scenes coil up with the mistral: The leaning ticket-taker on the merry-go-round . . . the fascinating flare of medicine show torches . . . a dove acting crippled to lure boys from her nest . . . the wiry little mare, Myrt, picking up as she was turned toward Taylor's livery barn . . . the band in the park tusseling with an "introduction" . . . oxblood shoes . . . "Lucille has the seven-year itch" chalked on the sidewalk . . . the defense lawyer, Chauncey Holcombe, wringing tears in the courtroom . . . Dead bugs in the carbon street lamps.

* * *

Also Doc Black shining shoes with a combination brush, on Sunday mornings, in front of the hotel . . . The Young Ladies Guild home talent affair, wherein a lamb, led to the footlights, put a surprise on the program . . . the Fred Canaday quartet on the Methodist Church steps . . . Billy Shartz running his hand under the top layer of the two-for-a-quarters just before closing his Smoke Shop . . . watching cutters at the marble yard, a half dozen taps with the chisel and then blow! . . . Tired drummers through the street window listening to the waitresses call of dishes. . . And the succotash in the birds' bathtub at the plate side . . .

* * *

And: Captain Jenkins with an empty sleeve from Shiloh . . . the sputter of frying fish at Hud Faudree's . . . Zim's "Weary Willies" in Puck . . . the bent pin anglers along the vehement chuckle that is Chicamaugua creek . . . Mr. Wetherholt, the undertaker, and his milk-white horses . . .the harvester's water jug in the haycock . . . Monk Welch, the hostler . . . The fellow who loafed the summer away "waiting a telegram from Cincinnati" . . .

The dead bull snake run over by a farm wagon . . . a Saturday hill-billy band from West Virginia . . . the running conversation between two house painters . . . Dr. Thompson's Magic Eye Salve . . . Henty Books . . . Talk of a public library . . . Frosh's washes of New England.

These seemingly inconsequentials, very tissue of life, rivet us to the home town. But they vanish—just as this fog will go with the morning sun. No one loving his birthplace should return after leaving permanently. One goes back to find the rainbowy idealism a mirage—a total stranger in an utterly alien land. And that's something of a heart wrench!

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

Tough times, these! So many of us fighting with our backs to the wall. Perhaps you're in a jam like that—battling on hopelessly, and nothing to battle with. Home, money, job all gone. Health failing. Utterly discouraged. How's a man to fight without weapons?

But you have a weapon! Bankrupt though you may be, you have the strongest weapon on earth at your command. You have—FAITH.

"Faith? That's the bunk!" you cry. "A lot of religious hooey. Faith is all right if you haven't anything really the matter with you. But what good is faith in a mess like this? Faith won't feed me, will it? Or get me a new job? Or cure my sick baby? Faith! Maybe you get a kick out of preaching stuff like that, but it's cruel to talk such fairy tales when people are up against it."

Yes, I know. I've been up against it, too, and I said just what you are saying now. But I was wrong—and so are you.

Faith isn't a fairy tale. Faith isn't "religious hooey." It has nothing to do with religion—or even with righteousness. Bad people can and do use Faith quite as successfully as good people. For Faith is simply a normal function of our minds which can be made to work as practically, and as powerfully, as any other function of our bodies.

Our minds have many functions. For instance, there's Memory. Every hour of your life you use Memory. You reach back into the past. You don't know how you do it, but you do it, nevertheless. And you are so used to doing it that you wouldn't know how to live without remembering.

Just as you reach back into the past and find what you want, so you can reach out into the present and future and find what you want. You can do it by FAITH.

FAITH IS THE MIND REACHING OUT TOWARD THE THING IT WANTS—REACHING OUT WITHOUT FEAR OR FALTERING—REACHING OUT UNTIL IT GETS THAT THING.

Memory and Faith are both invisible reachings. There are certain definite steps toward remembering. You don't realize you use them; but wise men, who study the mind, have mapped them out. When you want to remember something, this is what you do.

Some need in you urges you to remember something.

Instantly your mind turns back toward remembering that one certain thing. It begins searching—begins rejecting all other memories—goes on doggedly looking, looking, certain that the thing it wants is there. Suddenly—perhaps after long hours—your mind presents you with the picture or the fact you want.

That's how memory works. And Faith works in much the same way. Faith isn't an aimless, emotional hocus-pocus. It, too, has definite steps which you must observe.

FIRST—You must decide what you want to get, just as you decided what you wanted to remember.

SECOND—You must feel that it's practical and possible to get that thing; that it is within the range of your personal handling. There's no sense in making a lot of pop-eyed demands, and then beefing because you can't get them. There are certain things which belong in your life—certain things you can handle, and other certain things which you can't. Decide that the thing you want is possible for you and right for you.

THIRD—Having decided this, put all other desires and doubts out of your head. Go after that thing you want, as your mind went after that memory. Go after it doggedly, unfalteringly. Use all ingenuity—every practical help within your power. But don't depend on those outward gestures to do the trick. The real power lies in your own mental aim. Keep that aim unfaltering. Don't let yourself be diverted. Don't waste your energy in thinking over past failures. Cleave through your confusions as your mind clove through the chaos of memories.

THE THING YOU NEED—THE THING YOU HAVE A RIGHT TO—IS WAITING FOR YOU. GO GET IT!

And you CAN get it!

With what?

WITH THE WEAPON LIFE MADE FOR THAT PURPOSE.

WITH FAITH!

MARRY-GO-ROUND

By Helen Rowland

Marriage, Spinach and Sensible Girls

Mae West may have brought petticoats back into favor—but those dear, dead days of the perfumed mauve decade, when men were "gents" and girls were credulous, will never again return!

NOW THAT I'M MARRIED—I KNOW WHAT SORT OF A MAN I WANT NEXT TIME

About the only thing a modern girl seems to learn by getting married is what sort of man she DOESN'T want to marry, "next time."

* * *

Men seldom fall in love, and are never really "lured" into it. Most of them are merely shoved into it by chance, fate, accident or "the girl before the last."

* * *

Many a marriage has been preserved because, when the husband's kisses began to cool, the wife simply closed her eyes and decided that he was growing too old for romance.

* * *

It may once have been "cheaper to move than pay rent," but not in these days, when a woman insists on changing the color-scheme, and re-furnishing in a different "period," every time she changes her address.

* * *

Never try to crowd yourself into a man's heart, when it already shows signs of a traffic-jam. There's always room for one more, of course—but why get smashed in the crush?

* * *

A husband and wife who have "never had a word of difference" either love each other blindly or are too indifferent to each other to have the energy to scrap.

* * *

In every love affair there is a psychological moment when it hangs in the balance, and not even a psychiatrist can tell you whether it will turn into an engagement or into an "entanglement," or just go to smash.

WE HAVE OUR LITTLE SCRAPS BUT THAT'S BETTER THAN NO SCRAPS AT ALL YOU BET

* * *

A man's chief objection to marriage, spinach and sensible women is that everybody keeps telling him they are "good for him."

Isn't It So?

It is easier for us to see the faults of others than it is for others to see our virtues.

Human Side of the News

A Famous Scotland Yard Detective Publishes His Memoirs—Famous Case of Dr. Crippen

By Edwin C. Hill

THE world's greatest man-hunter is giving up the hunt. Forty years of his life has he given to it. For 40 years he combed the underworld of London. He brought to justice hundreds of the world's most notorious criminals. He looked upon the naked, cringing soul of the murderer as the judge pronounced sentence of doom. The curses they called down upon him passed over his head. The thought of their fate never disturbed his sleep at night. For they were the enemies of society. He was a hound of the law.

He sets forth the record of his career in a book just published by Doubleday Doran. The title is "Man Hunters of Scotland Yard." The author is Arthur Fowler Neil, for two score years one of the chief detectives of the great police center of London.

There is one case to which Superintendent Neil makes no reference in his book, although it attracted more world-wide attention than all of the others put together. It was the Crippen murder case.

Dr. Hawley H. Crippen was an American doctor, who had received his degree in Cleveland, and had practiced in New York, Detroit and San Diego, Cal. He went to London as the representative of a famous firm of patent medicines. His wife, a native of Brooklyn, who had once been known on the stage as Belle Elmore, disappeared suddenly, and Dr. Crippen gave out that she had died in a small town in Continental Europe.

The suspicions of Scotland were aroused by a letter from America, written by a friend of the former actress—Mme. Ginette, a vaudeville performer, who had an equestrian act for which she trained horses at Roselle, N. J. She was an intimate friend of Belle Elmore, and she had never liked Dr. Crippen. When she heard that his wife had died, she suspected something was wrong and wrote her suspicions to the English police.

* * *

Crippen Tells A Plausible Story

CRIPPEN was questioned and admitted that his statement was a lie. He added, however, a story which was plausible enough. He told Scotland Yard that he and his wife had quarrelled and that she had left him and sailed for America. Fear of gossip and its effect on his business caused him, he said, to give out the story of her death.

Strangely enough, the keen brains of Scotland Yard were tricked. They apparently believed the story. And three days later, when they returned to question Crippen, the bland doctor had gone and with him had disappeared Ethel Leneve, a young woman who had been his secretary. Further investigation revealed the remains of the doctor's wife, buried in the cellar of the house in London where they had lived.

A heavy reward was offered. Channel boats were closely inspected. A naive appeal was even sent out in the hope that it would reach the eyes of the doctor's woman companion, offering her immunity if she would abandon the man and help trap him.

Meanwhile, Dr. Crippen was falsely reported in almost every capital of the world. Arrests were made of entirely innocent persons in many parts of Europe. In America, Dr. Crippen was said to have been seen in Chicago, New York and Philadelphia. In Chicago, a man was under suspicion merely because he was wearing an English suit of clothes. An English actress recalled that at some amateur theatricals in London, Dr. Crippen had once impersonated a woman and had made up, she said, exceedingly well. This led Scotland Yard on another wild goose chase, but without result.

Discovered On Canadian Ship

THE hunt went on and seemed doomed to failure . . . It remained for the captain of a Canadian ship in mid-ocean to find the fugitives. Capt. Kendall, of the Canadian Pacific steamship Montrose, from Antwerp to Montreal, had cast a sharp eye on two of his passengers, listed as John Robinson and son. They boarded the ship at Antwerp, and the boy never left the company of his father. Most of their time aboard they spent in secluded parts of the ship.

The skipper had them watched and soon concluded that the pair were none other than the missing Dr. Crippen and his companion, Ethel Leneve, the girl disguised as a boy.

Capt. Kendell notified his home office, and when the ship reached Montreal, the chief inspector of Scotland Yard, who had come over on a faster ship, was waiting at the dock. Scotland Yard had failed, but the swift moving of English justice was again demonstrated.

As the prisoners were being taken to Quebec for arraignment, a New York reporter asked the detective:

It was then mid-autumn. They hanged Dr. Crippen in the week between Christmas and New Year's. Once more Scotland Yard had got its man.

Lobbies Sap Confidence In Our Government

By James T. Williams, Jr.

IF the Roosevelt administration is to lay firm the foundation of "the New Deal" which it has pledged to the American people it must drive from the Federal City at least some of the lobbyists that are sapping public confidence in the integrity of the Government of the Constitution.

Under the leadership of the late Senator Caraway, of Arkansas, a special committee of the Senate investigated the lobby evil several years ago. Extensive hearings were held. A mass of astounding evidence was adduced. But the hearings were never printed. The evidence was pigeonholed. The evils of the lobby continue to plague and pollute the processes of popular government.

Nor are these janissaries of "the invisible government," as the aggregation of lobbyists and the special interests they represent have been described, idle during the recess of Congress.

When Congress is not in session these sappers at the foundation of free government transfer their under-surface activities to the Executive branch of the Government and seek to influence its decisions by the same unconstitutional methods that they employ under the dome of the Capitol.

Flagrant Exampl Of Lobbying

A FLAGRANT example of the lobbyists who operate when Congress is not in session is to be found in the greedy activities of a group of lobbyists in the hire of certain cordage companies of this country.

The cordage lobbyists were one of the most notorious allies of the sugar lobbyists who put through the Seventy-second Congress the disgraceful Hare-Hawes-Cutting bill which broke every promise the American people ever made to the Philippine people.

As reported from committee, the Hare-Hawes-Cutting bill provided for the admission free of duty into this country of the principal products of the Philippines in the quantities in which they were coming at the time this legislation was before Congress.

Unfair Cordage Code Proposed

NOTWITHSTANDING this purpose, which was plainly stated in the reports of the bill made by the committees of both Houses, the cordage lobbyists inserted in the bill before it became a law a provision reducing by nearly 2,000,000 pounds the amount of cordage that could come into this country from the Philippines during their last nine or ten years under American sovereignty.

This is one of the obvious deceptions in this indispensable legislation which has resulted in making it so unpalatable to the entire Philippine people that their Legislature will probably refuse to approve it.

Now these same cordage lobbyists, who turned this sharp trick when the Hare-Hawes-Cutting bill was before Congress, are trying to get through a cordage code of their own concoction. As drafted, this lobby-ridden code would further increase the cost of cordage to the farmers of the United States, its principal purchaser, and to the shipping of the United States, the next purchaser, while at the same time reserving this market to themselves.

It is hard to believe that the Roosevelt administration will approve any such unfair and unintelligent code as the cordage allies of the sugar lobby have dished up in the hope it will be swallowed as easily as the late and unlamented Seventy-second Congress swallowed the cordage joker in the Hare-Hawes-Cutting bill, now nearing repudiation at Manila.

To approve such a code would be to increase instead of reduce the sinister power of all lobbyists now preying upon the federal government.

Once Overs

By J. J. Mundy

When people marry they should expect to give preference, above all others, to those to whom they are matrimonially bound.

Not that near relatives should not have some consideration; but when it comes to making a choice as to who shall be shown favors, the husband or the wife comes first every time.

In-laws cannot expect to have the same claim upon son, daughter, sister or brother that they had before the person was married.

Marriage rituals so intended it, and so specify.

Strained marital relations result often when there is too active interference of in-laws with the affairs of married couples.

They are to carve a new course, and can do it more amicably if there is no outside suggestion of interference.
